Dulles Reports To Ike On Prospects Of Disarmament

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles returned from London and reported to President Eisenhower today on the prospects of ending the global arms race.

Dulles went almost directly from the airport to the White House to report on his efforts to rescue the U.N. disarmament conference from threatened deadlock.

He told newsmen at the airport that "the danger of general war will be lessened" if Russia accepts the revolutionary Western proposals to open vast areas to joint East-West air and ground inspection against surprise attack.

'Up To Soviets'
"It is now up to the Soviet Union to respond," Dulles said. "I hope the Soviet government will realize that an inspection system that makes us all more safe and which facilitates reduction of armaments is as much to their interest as to ours."

Leading Democrats have praised the Western disarmament proposals submitted by Dulles yesterday as a "card on the table" move which puts it up to Russia to "fish or cut bait."

The Communists launched a propaganda barrage against Dulles' new inspection plan. The London Daily Worker charged it was "a trick" and the Soviet news agency Tass claimed that Dulles and his Western colleagues had concentrated on "Means to strengthen the propaganda position of the Western powers."

'A Lot Of Propaganda'
In a speech at Warrington, England, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd declared that Russia "again and again" has declined to get "down to brass tacks" in the London talks. He urged Britons not to be taken in "by a lot of propaganda about Britain or the West dragging their feet over disarmament."

Dulles returned from a week of negotiating among the United States, Russia, Britain, France and Canada. Friday he unfolded a broad Western plan under which the United States, Canada and Western Europe would be opened up to air and ground inspection in exchange for similar rights in the Soviet Union.

He also offered some smaller, alternative inspection zones if Russia rejected the broad proposals.

Read Prepared Statement
Reading a prepared statement, Dulles said, "if the Soviet Union necessary details are worked out, the risk of surprise attack will be greatly diminished. And since a major war is not apt to be launched unless the aggressor..."

14 Women Held Hostage During Prison Rioting

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah, Aug. 3 (UP)—Sixteen Utah State Prison inmates were held in segregation cells today while authorities investigated a brief and bloodless riot in which 20 persons—including 14 women, were held hostage last night.

Acting Warden Walter D. Achuff, who cut short a vacation to return here this morning, said he was "extremely pleased" with handling of the disturbance. A major riot rocked the prison only last February.

Achuff said the flare-up was not a riot but the work of a hard core of long-term inmates. "A great majority of the prisoners actually feel chagrined over the actions of the few," he said.

Charged Stage
The trouble began last evening when a small band of convicts, armed with knives and baseball bats, charged onto a recreation hall stage. As hostages they took 14 women members of a "kitchen rhythm" band who were entertaining inmates with numbers played on wash tubs, scrub boards and kitchen utensils.

Also captured briefly were three men who accompanied the women to the prison and three prison officials.

All hostages were released unharmed after prison guards carrying sawed-off shotguns and pistols threatened to rush the troublemakers.

Twelve Firemen Hitchhike Home

SHERBORNE, England, Aug. 3 (UP)—Twelve firemen raced out to fight a brush fire in their shiny red fire engine today and then hitchhiked slowly back to the fire house after putting out the blaze.

Their fire engine was caught in the flames and burned.

Kids' Party Shot Up By Berserk Man

Drunk Riddles Group; One Boy Dead; One Hurt

KOSCIUSKO, Miss., Aug. 3—UP—A drunken painter stumbled into a kids' television party today and when he was asked to join it he fired nine shots from a .22 caliber revolver "at anything and everybody."

Clarence Woodson Jr., 13, was killed instantly and the gunman's sister-in-law was seriously wounded. The other children fled in terror.

Police Chief J. H. Harvey said Mrs. Grady Russell, about 40, was hospitalized with wounds in her back and right knee.

Harvey said J. R. Russell, 45, was jailed and was to be examined by a physician. His wife told police he had been drinking since Friday.

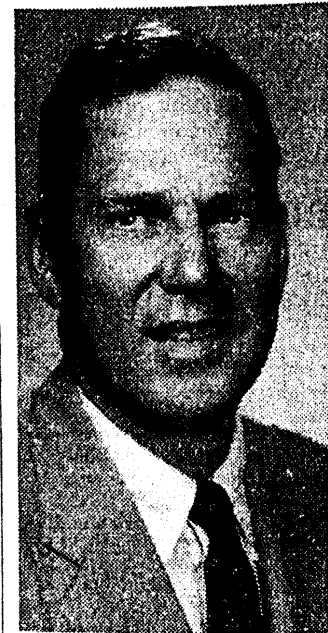

Across Street
Russell lived across the street from his brother Grady, who was at work. He entered the house while his brother's children and seven other neighborhood kids were watching the Saturday morning children's shows on television.

"He told them he was a sick man," Harvey said. "But they were interested in what was on television. They told him to sit down and watch. Then he pulled a pistol and started shooting at anything and everybody."

When police arrived, Russell surrendered without a struggle. His gun was empty. Young Woodson was found dead in the doorway. "I don't know how many children were there," Harvey said. "When he started shooting they scattered in every direction."

Harvey said he could find no signs of animosity between Russell and his brother's family that would cause the shooting.

RICHARD M. TROY

Troy To Head United Givers Funds Drive

Richard M. Troy, prominent Monroe business man, has been named chairman of the 1957 fund campaign for the United Givers of Ouachita Parish.

Troy's selection was announced yesterday by Robert H. Evans, president of the United Givers. The 1957 campaign will mark the second year of operation of the United Givers here. It supports eleven health and welfare agencies.

Last year's campaign chairman was Walter W. Kellogg who led the drive to a successful conclusion and exceeded the goal.

Here Since 1930
Troy, a resident of Monroe since 1930, has been an active leader in local business and civic affairs. He has served as chairman of the Ouachita Parish chapter of the American Red Cross, an organization of which he has been a continuous supporter. He now is a member of the board of directors of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce.

Married to the former Vera Nobes, Troy is the father of three sons, Richard, Jr., Ralph and Nat. He is a member of the Grace Episcopal church in Monroe.

Khrushchev, Tito Meet In Romanian Talks

LONDON, Aug. 3 (UP)—President Tito of Yugoslavia and Nikita Khrushchev met for two days this week in satellite Romania and agreed on "concrete forms of cooperation." Moscow radio announced tonight.

The conference between the Communist party and government leaders of Russia and Yugoslavia took place on Thursday and yesterday. Sitting beside Khrushchev were Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan and Otto V. Kuusinen, former boss of the disbanded Communist International and now a full member of the party presidium. Tito was accompanied by two vice presidents—Edvard Kardelj and Alexander Rankovic—who have spent considerable time in the Soviet Union this summer on vacation, by official description.

To Cooperate
"The two delegations," said the broadcast, "agreed on concrete forms of cooperation between the parties and on the maintaining of constant ties by the exchange of party delegations, mutual information and publications."

Partly Cloudy Seen For Area

Partly cloudy is the weather outlook for the Twin Cities today, with the chance of scattered thundershowers in the afternoon. For the remainder of the state, the forecast is generally the same. Arkansas will stand a chance of isolated afternoon and evening thundershowers. Not much change in temperatures is expected.

Yesterday the mercury rose to 95 degrees here. The lowest temperature for the day was 75.

Billion Cut From Budget Of Air Force

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (UP)—Almost half of Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson's $2,200,000,000 military spending cut will fall on the Air Force, it was disclosed tonight.

Air Force Secretary James H. Douglas, revealing his service must "sweat nearly a billion dollars" out of its appropriation, said that as a result the Air Force structure will "creak a bit" and the aircraft industry will contract.

He handed this news to the final banquet of the annual Air Force Association convention. The 3,000 delegates earlier had adopted a resolution calling on President Eisenhower and Congress to build up the Air Force to numerical superiority over the Russian air arm.

Not Apprehensive
"It distressed me, of course, that we have to postpone or eliminate certain programs," Douglas said in his prepared text. "But I am not apprehensive about our ability to provide a great Air Force... we aim to keep the peace by ready air power."

Gen. Earle E. Partridge, Continental Air Defense commander, told newsmen that atomic-tipped rockets such as the one fired at the Nevada proving ground on July 19 will be stored at a "number" of U.S. bases for use in air defense.

The rockets are carried by interceptor fighters to increase vastly the power of air defense. Partridge did not name the bases but informed sources said there would be only a few at first.

Douglas did not touch on the question whether the Air Force can continue to maintain 128 wings. It was dropped to that level from 137 wings in the budget for the fiscal year ending last June 30. Gen. Thomas D. White, new air chief of staff, told the convention earlier, however, that the service may have to pare its tactical forces some to continue maintenance of the Strategic Air Forces at top strength.

Douglas' disclosures highlighted a series of defense cutbacks forced by presidential and congressional economies.

More Bad News
Wilson said Thursday the "bad news is not all out yet." His problem is to get defense spending down to 38 billion dollars for the fiscal year that started July 1. It has been running for the past six months at an annual rate of $40,200,000,000.

Under the new, austere programs, Douglas and White said, the Air Force will press guided missile development. But both made clear the United States will not follow Britain, whose announced plan is to make a clean jump from war planes to guided missiles.

"Present effective weapons must never be sacrificed for new weapons until the new ones are fully proven," Douglas said. "For some years to come we will continue to rely mainly on manned aircraft for retaliation."

Wright Wants To Put Pigs In Farmer's House

CHICAGO, Aug. 1 (UP)—Architect Frank Lloyd Wright wants to put the pigs under the same roof with the farm family.

Wright demonstrated on a television program today a combination farmhouse, greenhouse, garage and barn as part of a plan for family farms in "exurbia."

"Nothing is worse than city life," the noted architect said. "He said Americans should return to the family size farm for a richer, fuller life."

Wright, appearing on the WGN-TV program "RFD Chicagoland," demonstrated a model of a galvanized metal building he designed in the 1920's.

He said the T-shaped building was intended for a 40-acre plot. Living quarters form the top of the "T." One arm of the "T" is the garage, the other the greenhouse.

The bottom of the "T" is an extended roof to provide shelter for the animals.

Wright said the farm home would cost a third of what a conventional farmhouse and outbuilding now cost because it would incorporate all under one roof, and the building would be prefabricated.

'TORTURE KIT' DISPLAYED—Melvin N. Bakkerud, 21, who police say confessed to the torture and rape of a girl in Golden Gate Park on the night of July 20, willingly showed officers contents of a "torture kit," which figured prominently in the attack, and which Bakkerud had in the meantime secreted in the basement of his home. Bakkerud lives about a block from the park. (AP Wirephoto)

Brutal Sex Crime Cracked By Police

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3 (UP)—Police reported today they had cracked one of the most brutal sex crimes here in recent years with the arrest of a pint-sized narcotics addict who confessed to the sadistic rape of a young student nurse.

Jes' Ramblin'
Chief of Inspectors Daniel McKlem identified the five-foot tall confessed "torture kit" rapist as 21-year-old Melvin Bakkerud.

"This is the man," McKlem said. "There is absolutely no doubt about it."

Another Aspect Cleared
McKlem said Bakkerud's confession plus "all the other evidence we have checked out" has "definitely cleared" John Fexinger, held without charge for 10 days as "the prime suspect in the case."

Bakkerud followed up his confession by leading inspectors to his parents' home where he had hidden his "torture kit" in a storage room. The kit contained foot-long chains, shaving cream, and a 10 inch knife.

Bakkerud, who weighs 135 pounds despite his jockey-sized height, appeared undisturbed by his involvement in a crime which could bring him death in the gas chamber under California's "little Lindbergh" law.

He told newsmen he was a narcotics user "but I wasn't on the stuff that night." He denied he hated women and blamed his act on "these things in my head."

Was In An Accident
"It's been like this ever since the accident," Bakkerud said, pointing to a scar on his head. "I was in a bad auto wreck."

'CAN'T FUNCTION HERE'

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Aug. 3 (UP)—Local newspapers today called U. S. ambassador-designate Maxwell Gluck "I don't know Gluck" and suggested he "find some way to get out" of his appointment as envoy to Ceylon.

"The kind of publicity Gluck has been getting here," the morning Times commented, "makes it very unlikely that he could function effectively or comfortably in Ceylon."

The Ceylonese press has been pouring out copy critical of Gluck since he disclosed he did not know the name of Ceylon's prime minister, Solomon West Ridgway Dias Bandaranaike.

The Chinese Communist Radio Peiping also entered the controversy today. A Peiping broadcast heard in London quoted the Ceylon Daily News as remarking: "Gluck is the first American we know to have actually admitted his ignorance on a subject."

The public discussion, ranging from jests to harsh criticism, was stepped up following Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' London comments of Friday. Dulles said that if the United States were to limit its selection of envoys to Ceylon to those who knew the country's prime minister "we would have a limited choice."

The Times said today that "the case of Maxwell Gluck" was "becoming more and more embarrassing to everybody" with "each explanation" for him.

"It is not necessary for an ambassador to know everything about the country to which he is appointed," the newspaper said. "What disturbs us is that Gluck seemed at the time of questioning to know next to nothing about world events generally and especially the most important political document of the year, the UN report on Hungary."

Report Ike Adamant On New Version

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (AP)—President Eisenhower was reported adamant today against the Senate's revamped civil rights bill, and Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., House GOP leader, pronounced civil rights legislation "dead for this session" of Congress.

Three top administration officials, who cannot be named, said in interview that Eisenhower regards the Senate version of the bill as completely unworkable. He was said to be throwing his weight solidly against House acceptance of it.

Martin told a reporter: "The bill is not acceptable to us, and I don't think it's acceptable to a majority of the House."

He forecast a probable deadlock which would put the issue over to next year.

Prefers No Bill
The three administration leaders agreed that, as the matter stands, Eisenhower would rather have no bill at all than to accept the Senate's insertion of the jury trial amendment in a measure which it already has stripped of authority to enforce civil rights in general.

Some House Democratic leaders voiced the opinion privately that the Republicans "don't want a civil rights bill this year." They contended the Eisenhower administration is stalling and hoping to carry the issue over into the 1958 election year.

Martin called the Senate bill in its present form a Democratic bill and declared, "We won't take it in the form it is likely to come out of the Senate."

In forecasting a possible deadlock over efforts to compromise differences between the Senate version and the more sweeping, administration-sponsored bill passed by the House, Martin said:

'Looks Dead'
"It looks to me as though this bill is dead for this session. That will put the whole civil rights fight (Continued On Page Eleven-A)

Catholic Ties With Vatican Broken By Reds

TOKYO, Aug. 3 (UP)—The Chinese Communists today announced the formation of a national Catholic "patriotic movement" which will break off political and economic ties with the Vatican.

The Communist effort to isolate the Chinese Roman Catholics from their church was announced in a Peiping radio broadcast that also made a bitter attack against the Vatican.

The Red radio accused the Vatican of "provoking Chinese Catholics to stand against their government" and making the Chinese Catholic Church "an instrument of imperialism."

Singled out for attack by the Chinese Communists was Msgr. Anthony Riberi, the former Papal Nuncio in China, who is now in Formosa following his expulsion from the mainland. Riberi was accused of spying on the Reds and sowing discord between Catholic believers and the Peiping regime.

The Peiping broadcast said the break with the Vatican was announced in a resolution adopted Friday at a national conference of Catholics in Peiping.

Education Of Handicapped Will Be Considered Here

Education of the mentally handicapped child will be basis of Monday's conference, scheduled to open at 10 a.m. in the air-conditioned amphitheatre of the Administration Building.

Dr. Herbert Goldstein, of the University of Illinois faculty, will be chief consultant. He will speak at the morning session and again at the afternoon program which will open at 2 o'clock. General discussions in the form of questions and answers will follow his talks.

The meeting is open to parents, teachers, and school administrators who are interested in this particular phase of training.

Northeast is able to offer this conference through provisions of the 1956 State Legislature which set aside money for state colleges to train teachers in special education. The college here is to prepare teachers for children who have serious health problems. The program calls for cer-tification of teachers to accept positions which call for this special training.

Study Background

Dr. Goldstein received his teacher training in regular elementary education and in the education of the exceptional child.

After receiving the doctorate from the University of Illinois, he was appointed to the university's College of Education and the Institute for Research on Exceptional Children. He is a staff member of the internationally-known Kirk Clinic at the university.

Dr. Goldstein recently completed a two-year study on training mentally handicapped children in the public schools. He currently is directing a project in curriculum development for the educable mentally handicapped in Illinois.

Gambling Negro Fleeced Of $400 In 'Pigeon Drop'

RUSTON (Special)—A Gambling Negro woman is $400 poorer after being taken in by a "con game," which Ruston authorities described as being "old as the hills."

Lawmen are searching for a pair of Negro women who wanted to "share the wealth" with Vera Carr of Grambling after one of them "found" a huge wad of bills on the sidewalks of downtown Ruston yesterday.

The pair told the Carr woman they would split the cash with her if she would put up some "security," so they would be sure she would not "squawk" on them.

The unwary victim withdrew $400 from her bank account and handed it over to the two women.

Vera last night was still waiting for her share of the huge wad of bills.

LABOR GIFT—Union craftsmen who volunteered to rebuild homes destroyed by Hurricane Audrey in Cameron parish swarm with Red Cross furnished materials (top) yesterday, and soon had the foundation of the first home finished. Work On Crossett Youth Center Set CROSSETT (Special)—At a meeting of the Youth Center Board this week the group decided to go ahead with plans to start building Crossett's Youth Center.

There had been some question as to the advisability of proceeding with building plans, inasmuch as they now have in hand $17,000 and their estimate of the cost of building is $22,000.

It was agreed that a Drive committee be appointed by R. P. Meredith, chairman of the board, subject to the approval of the Board of Directors, to plan and put on a drive to raise the $5,000 building fund deficit and as much of the first year's operating expenses as possible.

Union Volunteers Flock To Cameron To Rebuild Homes

CAMERON, La., Aug. 3 (UP)—The survivors of Hurricane Audrey worked side by side with construction workers today as the tiny fishing village of Cameron regained life.

A vanguard of 150 union tradesmen of the AFL-CIO arrived here by car and plane to donate their services and to erect over the weekend six new houses. Families will move into them tomorrow night. The Red Cross donated materials for the reconstruction of the town of 4,000 that was wiped out June 27 when Audrey crushed the town with 105-mile-an-hour winds.

The deadly hurricane took 332 lives. Some 185 are still missing. Dozens of survivors, faces still reflecting the tragedy, have been moved into Army tents that dot the sprawling debris-ridden bayou country in southwestern Louisiana.

Power In 2 Weeks

Cameron will have electric power again within two weeks and the Red Cross field kitchens are busy throughout the day feeding long lines of hustling volunteer workers, survivors, and soldiers who still patrol the area. Those who had nothing left were given money, are getting new homes, food, clothes, and most of all the will to live again.

Most of the hardy Cajun fishermen and oil workers who lived here more than a month ago have moved to Texas and other states at least temporarily. They had nothing to return to, they thought.

Ernest Miller came back. He is living with his wife and a son in an Army tent. His father and another son drowned. Miller and his wife and child were separated for three days, each thinking the others were dead.

He wants to rebuild his home and barn. Later he would like to buy some cows. But right now he is helping to clean up his town.

Recalls June 27

Miller, a tall man with coal black hair and a skin bronzed from long hours in the sun, recalled June 27.

"We were all in the house that morning. It was an old house, but strong. It was built of cypress and oak. I figured it would hold. The sun never came up. It was black and raining hard. And I could hear a rumble out in the Gulf. I knew the wave was coming. Already the water was getting high. I took my wife and two boys and my daddy and brought them up in the attic. My daddy's crippled. I carried him up and put him on a featherbed."

"All of a sudden the wave smacked us. It knocked the house right off the foundations. I grabbed one of the boys and my wife held the other one."

"Next thing I knew I was outside in the water. I saw my daddy coming out of the attic, floating on the mattress. Then a wave hit it and turned it over. I dove under to try and get him, but I never saw him again."

Both Floating

"My wife and the little boy were floating on a mattress, too. I tried to get to them with the six-year-old, but he was torn from me by a big wave. I dived after him, but couldn't find him. I tried to get to my wife and son, but a barbed wire fence snagged me under the water. I didn't see them again."

Mrs. Miller and their son floated for 15 miles and were rescued. Miller was picked up two days later. They were taken to different refugee centers. Three days later they found each other.

Now Ernest Miller has plans for the future.

"Right now I'm building tents for people to live in. Afterwards... I'm going to build my house here and work. I'll fish for shrimp in the spring and fall and work in the oil fields the rest of the time. I imagine I can get a loan and get back on my feet. It's O.K. We'll get by. Maybe lots of the others will come back too."

"I hope so," Miller said, "because this is our life. You just can't give up."

113 La. Tech Students Set To Graduate

RUSTON (Special)—Commencement exercises will be held for 113 graduates of Louisiana Tech Thursday at 8 p.m.

The graduation address in Howard Auditorium will be delivered by H. H. Bible of El Dorado, who on August 1 became vice-president and assistant general manager of the Lion Oil Co.

Oklahoma Native Bible is a native of Lawton, Okla., and received a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from the University of Oklahoma.

He joined the Lion Oil Co. in El Dorado in March of 1942 as synthesis supervisor at the Ozark Ordnance Works, which was operated for the Army Ordnance department. For one year he was technical assistant to the vice-president of manufacturing and for nine years was technical assistant to the president. He was assistant manager of manufacturing for three years before being elevated to the position of director of manufacturing in December of 1955.

Prior to his employment by Lion he was affiliated with the Humble Oil and Refining Co. for four years.

Welfare Office To Re-Locate

FERRIDAY (Special)—The Concordia Parish Welfare Department will move into new quarters in Ferriday during August, according to Mrs. Mabel Denham, director.

The new building located on the corner of Third Street and Mississippi Avenue, will provide air conditioning and central heating throughout, as well as fluorescent lighting. A spacious reception room, lounge, and private offices are included in the floor plan.

Mrs. Denham said the additional space and location close to the post office will be a considerable improvement for welfare clients and office personnel.

Morrison Says Grevemberg's Attack 'Error'

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 3 (UP)—Mayor deLesseps Morrison today told former state police superintendent Francis Grevemberg he is misinformed about law enforcement in New Orleans.

Morrison said Grevemberg's attacks on him are "running true to form," and are in error.

Former crime buster Grevemberg said the mayor was making a "goat" out of New Orleans police Supl. Provosty Dayries. The Orleans parish grand jury is investigating Dayries and his role in a current investigation of graft in the police department.

He also charged the mayor has often disregarded advice about corruption within the department and had hampered Dayries' attempts to clean up the department.

"We have contended," said Morrison, "that our law enforcement performance has been superior to that of Grevemberg or anybody else."

Grevemberg testified this week before the grand jury in connection with local police corruption.

RED RULE

Hungary Arrests Several Leaders

VIENNA, Aug. 3 (UP)—Communist Hungary today announced the arrest of "several" anti-Communist political leaders including two former members of parliament in a new attempt to smash all opposition.

A communique issued by the ministry of the interior in the regime of puppet Premier Janos Kadar said the arrests were directed mainly against three "splinter" anti-Communist political parties which were accused of "counter-revolutionary and illegal activity." All those seized will be tried "in the near future."

Maximum penalty for anti-state crimes is death.

"Our police seized several leading members of a few non-Communist political splinter groups," the communique said.

It was the second announcement of arrests in three days in Budapest. On Thursday, the ministry announced the arrest of Father Albert Egon Turcsanyi, the former secretary to Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, and "several" other Roman Catholic priests on charges of "counter-revolutionary activities." The cardinal, now safe in the U.S. legation in Budapest, was accused of ordering them to rattle the government state-church agency offices during the Oct. 23 "bellion."

Today's crackdown occurred in the absence of Kadar whom the Russians installed as premier during their counterattack on Nov. 4. He is in Moscow "on vacation."

State Ban On Cabildo Shelter Has Louisiana Artists 'Up In The Air'

By ELLEN J. HILL
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 3—UP—Disgruntled sidewalk artists in the French Quarter bristled over their brushes today because they have no place to go on a rainy day. The artists, who ply their talents at easels in the open air of Pirates Alley and Jackson Square, once took refuge from the almost daily showers under the arcade of the historic Cabildo, one of New Orleans' oldest buildings, which once housed the Spanish and French governments in the New World. The Cabildo is now a museum. But no more can the artists seek shelter at the Cabildo, the state museum board decreed today.

The state's edict read that "artists, vendors and peddlers" must hereafter seek shelter elsewhere. And furthermore, the board ruled, "no retail business of any kind or nature will be conducted under the Cabildo arcade or on state property as of Aug. 1." The ban works a real hardship on the Alley and Square artists who earn dollars by doing while-you-wait tourist portraits at their easel stands in the Quarter. When the rains came, the painters would grab their paint tubes, canvases, easels, and clients and head for the Cabildo arcade where the portraits would be completed. Dispute Of Praline Makers The board's new ruling was the result of a dispute between two praline salesmen who fought over the Cabildo location where they hawked their wares to portrait sitters. "We are caught in the middle," protested the artists. "I agree with the artists one thousand per cent," said C. A. Koepp, a gift shop owner, who triggered the squabble when he asked the Louisiana State Museum board to banish the noisy praline men. Koepp said the artists had no part in his fight. "They're one of the biggest attractions we've got here in the quarter, and of every dollar they earn, I'll bet 98 per cent says here." Lorenzo Hill, an artist, said "20 to 30" of the opposed painters live and pay rent in the quarter and spend 99 per cent of their incomes there.

Accident Victim Still In Hospital

The victim of a four-car accident Friday night was in St. Francis hospital yesterday for observance of possible internal injuries.

Finley hit one car, the hit a parked car and pushed it into another parked vehicle, with Lawson in between them.

Lawson revealed that his doctor said it was "a miracle" that his injuries were not more serious than they were.

Finley was charged with reckless driving by State Police from Troop F, who investigated. He was placed in the Ouachita Parish jail and released yesterday morning on $500 bond.

Cuban Rebel Flag Hoisted In New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (UP)—The flag of the Cuban revolutionary movement waved from the crown of the Statue of Liberty for 30 minutes today.

A group of members of a New York committee opposed to Cuban President Fulgencio Batista went to the top of the statue with the flag of the "26th of July Movement" and hung it to wave in the shadow of Miss Liberty's torch of freedom.

The "26th of July Movement" is the revolutionary Army headed by Fidel Castro Ruiz. Policemen removed the flag from the statue after 30 minutes and accompanied the demonstrators by boat back to Manhattan.

World Lutheranism To Hold Meeting This Week

By JAMES KLOBUCHAR
MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 3 (UP)—World Lutheranism assembles hundreds of its most distinguished figures here next week for a probing and perhaps nerve-tugging examination of the church's role in Christendom.

For 10 days starting Aug. 13, churchmen of the world's biggest Protestant denomination will raise and try to answer pivotal questions that go to the core of the modern church's mission.

They will debate subtle theological points. But they also intend to come to grips with such hard issues as how should the church deal with communism, colonialism, national policies and what should it do about healing rifts between various Lutheran bodies.

The giant third assembly of the Lutheran World Federation will draw some 275 official delegates from 57 church bodies representing about 50 million of the world's 70 million Lutherans. Joining them will be nearly 500 official visitors, observers from member and non-member church bodies, and thousands of spectators.

Lutheran churches in at least four Iron Curtain countries—East Germany, Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia—have been permitted by their Communist governments to send representatives.

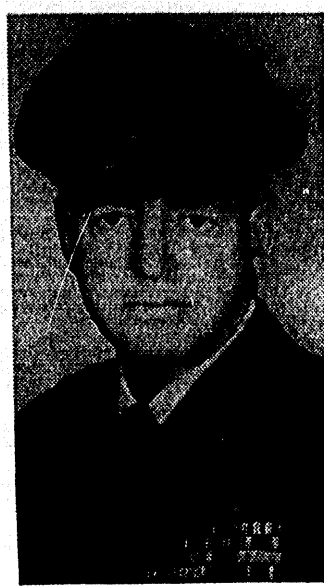

Their presence, opposed by some but emphatically defended by the bulk of the Western Lutheran leadership, could give rise to tensions.

Some Lutheran leaders are represented as feeling it is a mistake to accept delegates from Red-dominated lands, that churches in those countries are not free.

Taking the other view is stocky, plain-speaking Bishop Hanns Lilje of Hannover, Germany, the federation president who 12 years ago was liberated from the Nazi hangman by American troops.

"We will not be fooled," he said. "If there is a man who is just a servant of the other system (communism) and who does not really care for Christianity, we would soon find him out."

The Lutheran Church, he said, takes the view that "the shepherd must stay with his flock" and ministers serving congregations in Eastern Europe must stay there as long as members remain.

Graham Extends New York Crusade For Third Time

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (UP)—Billy Graham extended his New York City "crusade for Christ" for the third time today in response to an "overwhelming expression of the interest and conviction of God's people."

He said the crusade would continue until Labor Day, instead of closing Aug. 10, as previously announced. The new 20-day extension will make this the longest crusade in Graham's seven years as an evangelist.

Graham's headquarters announced the total attendance for the New York crusade reached 1,361,600 through Friday night. That meant the evangelist might reach the two million mark by the time he ends his crusade Sept. 2.

"Decisions For Christ" The total number of "decisions for Christ" stood at 41,657.

When Graham's crusade opened May 15 in Madison Square Garden, his organization had an option on the huge arena until Labor Day, but it scheduled nightly evangelistic meetings until only June 30.

The crusade was extended first until July 20 and then until Aug. 10 before Graham decided to go all the way on his option. The meetings will be held every night except Monday, which has been designated "rest night" for Graham and his thousands of choir singers, ushers and evangelistic helpers.

Roger Hull, chairman of the executive committee of the New York crusade, said the executive committee and members of the Billy Graham team had voted unanimously to continue the crusade until Labor Day.

"Our previous announcement of the Aug. 10 closing was made in good faith," Hull said. "Since that time, the meetings have gained immeasurably in momentum." Hull said letters and telephone calls urging continuance had literally hundreds of letters urging us to go on. There have been scores of long distance phone calls."

"The members of the committee cannot believe it to be God's will to have the doors of the Garden closed to the crusade as long as it is possible to have them remain open," Hull said. Graham issued a statement saying that he had felt "uncomfortable" about the Aug. 10 closing date.

"After much prayer, I feel compelled in my heart that it is God's will that we continue," Graham said. "We have received

Disrespect For President

There have been two recent instances of flagrant, open disrespect for the president which are ill-becoming to American traditions.

Referring to President Eisenhower, Senator Robert Kerr (D-Okla.) recently said, in effect, "The president has no brain when it comes to financial and budgetary matters. You might instruct him for months and he would still know nothing."

Now Rep. Cleveland M. Bailey (D-W. Va.) has come out with the statement that the president was "a lousy liar" when he disclaimed responsibility for defeat of the federal school aid bill.

As long as a president of the United States conducts himself with the dignity that befits his office, he should be accorded respect in return. President Eisenhower has maintained the dignity of his office to a far greater degree than did President Franklin D. Roosevelt and as far as Harry Truman is concerned there is no comparison. Truman often resorted to guttersnipe talk and had little presidential dignity to be respected.

President Eisenhower's true humility and genuine spirit of democracy (when not unduly pressured) are two qualities that give his enemies the courage to make disrespectful statements. A president of the type of the late Franklin D.

Roosevelt or of the late Huey P. Long of Louisiana, with their monumental egotism, wouldn't have allowed such effrontery to go unpunished. It is the president's inherent belief that all men are born with equal rights, which many in high positions do not share, and his reluctance to resort to low politics that cause him to let his enemies make such statements with impunity.

Furthermore, the president has a sense of fair play regarding legislative procedure which is entirely lacking in many of his supporters, as well as among his enemies.

Fundamentally, we think the president believes in the right of trial by jury and in states' rights. In the instances in which he has deviated from these beliefs there were indications that he was unduly influenced by those who told him he must do so for the sake of the party.

The president, therefore, could not be expected to fight for measures aimed at destroying provisions of the constitution with the same savagery showed by fanatic liberals or with the violence that they expected of him.

President Eisenhower, despite some of the positions into which he has been pushed, still, deep down, believes in the tried and true American principles.

Lambs To Slaughter

One of the most degrading of the many degrading incidents that have followed upon the heels of the infamous "Black Monday" decision of the United States Supreme Court of May 17, 1954, is scheduled to take place in Nashville, Tenn., when the public schools open in September, 1957. At that time the first grades in all the public schools of the city are ordered to be integrated.

Thus will be upset a way of life that has existed throughout Nashville's long and honorable existence as a leading educational center in the South. At that time, if history is any guide, integration may take place but desegregation will set in.

The reason that integration of the first grades is so degrading is that these little children, entering upon their first experience in the educational system of the nation that will determine what kind of people they will be throughout their whole lives, will be offered up as sacrifices upon the altar of authoritarianism.

Entirely innocent themselves of the meaning of the experience upon which they are entering and necessarily depending upon the guidance of those who control their lives, the authorities who determine these matters upon the local level will force them into a system and into an association that cannot help but bring about deterioration in their individual lives and into their culture as a whole. First grade children cannot know that choice of association and purity of race are highly desirable in this world, in fact are essential for the preservation of their freedom and the attainment of their highest capabilities as individuals. There is something wrong with one who has no pride of race — and it should be noted this applies to all races alike!

Nevertheless, local officials—leading citizens of the community—charged with the responsibility of operating the public schools are going right along with the plan. If these citizens believe wholeheartedly in integration, why don't they start at the other end of the school, where the pupils have at least by this time gained some measure of judgment for themselves and some realization of what it all means, instead of forcing it on innocent beginners who don't know what it's all about? That's the Hitler-Russian way of doing things—brainwash little children in their formative years and thus make them easily governed in later life.

As a matter of fact, if the citizens of Nashville, who are so complacent about the whole matter, really believe in the principle of integration, then they should apply it to their civic clubs, country clubs, churches and everywhere else—regardless of whether or not these organizations are supported by public funds. Or don't they place principles first?

These officials seem to be giving as a reason for their supineness in the matter the advice of their attorneys, who tell them there is nothing else they can do since the federal judge has said integration must proceed in Nashville on this basis. These attorneys would seem to be docile disciples of an authoritarian philosophy which freely grants the government the unquestioning power to exact obedience and the right to determine what its people should believe or do.

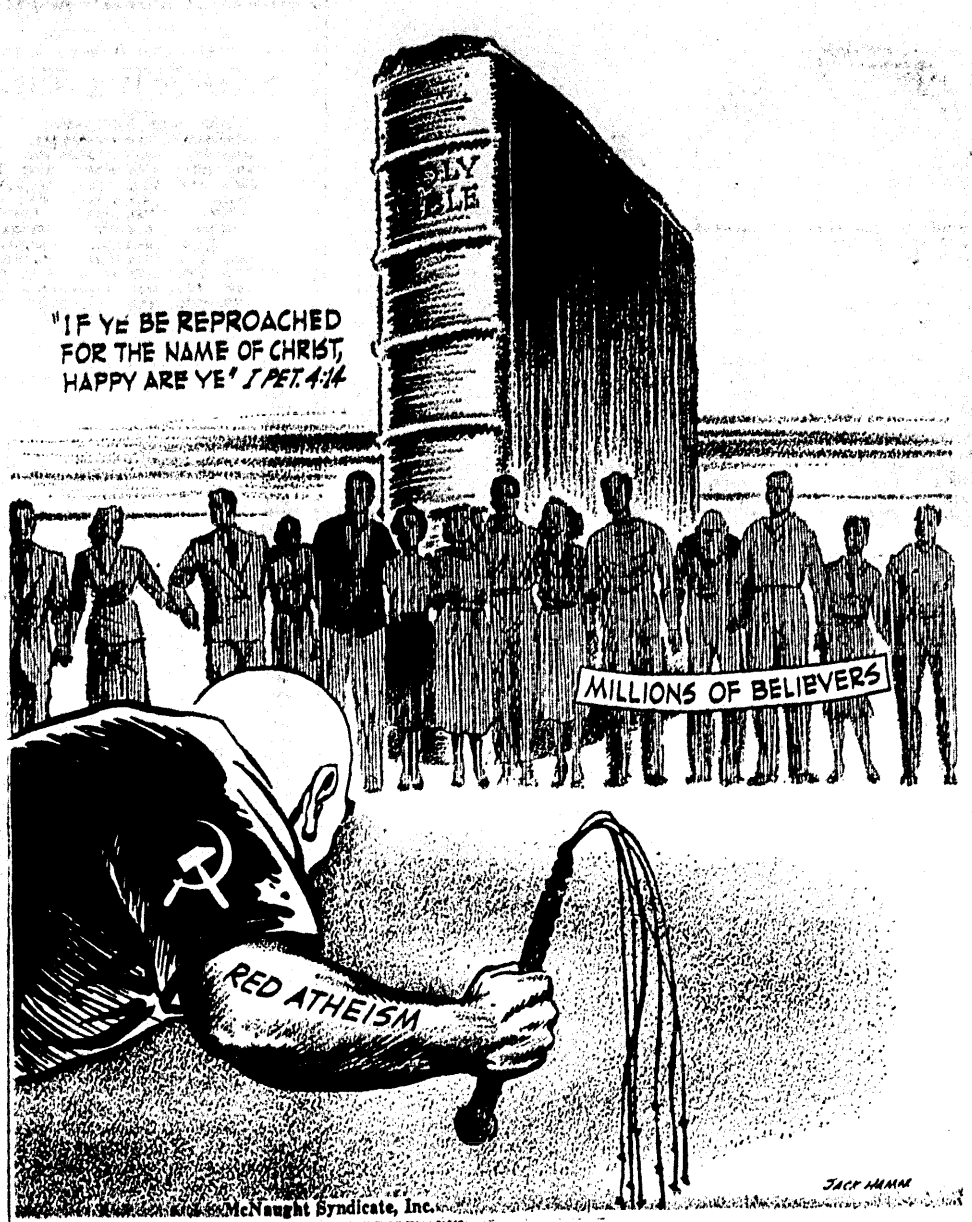

It is a terrible thing for people to say that because the Supreme Court of the United States says something is the law that it must be obeyed and there is nothing we can do about it. This is a reversion to the philosophy of the Divine Right of Kings. This argument was undoubtedly used during the American Revolution by the Tories who said that whatever orders King George III handed down were the law and must be obeyed; that there was nothing that could be done about it. If everybody had felt that way, there would never have been a United States of America.

After all, the court of public opinion is the greatest court in the world, and to say that Government in any of its branches cannot be questioned is the first step to some sort of dictatorial rule.

Neither should the people of Nashville community be thrown off the track by obnoxious outsiders who might come into the community and conduct rabble-rousing efforts to maintain segregation in the public schools. Such individuals do the cause they are supposedly supporting much more harm than good, so much so, in fact, that it can well be imagined they are actually in the employ of the other side.

This is a matter for sensible, patriotic people to handle in a reasoned manner. The real issue at stake in this whole question is that of states' rights. If New York wants integration, that should be their privilege. If Mississippi wants segregation, with equal opportunity for all, that, also, should be their privilege. If we are going to destroy completely the right of the states to govern their internal affairs and place all power in the hands of a centralized Washington bureaucracy, then we no longer have the kind of government under which we have grown and prospered. We have, in fact, betrayed the heritage left us by our forefathers and torn down our greatest safeguard of freedom.

A Humanity Certain Greater Than The Iron Curtain

BASCOM TIMMONS

President Eisenhower May Be In For Unpleasant Three And One-Half Years

WASHINGTON, D.C. — From the way political developments shape up here this summer, President Eisenhower may well be in for an unpleasant three and one-half years, until he leaves the White House on January 20, 1961.

That forecast conceals no dislike for the pleasant and well intentioned occupant of the world's most important elective office, and it is shared by many experienced observers who consider him a victim of circumstance rather than his own misdeeds.

He is harassed by inevitable inflation, stimulated by huge government spending, half of which is chargeable to world defense against Communism. His legislative program is being stymied by a realistic apprehension of a great many voters about its implicit dangers. And the future outlook looks gray when examined in the light of the world economic situation, complicated by over production at home.

These several factors are probably fully appreciated by President Eisenhower, though he seldom indicates as much at his press conference. But they are fully understood by leading Republicans, who realize they will put the GOP under a big handicap in its attempt next year to reverse the Democratic control of Congress.

Looking over the whole picture,

the administration party can't see much to enthuse about in the immediate future, so its keener minds are gambling on the possibility that the Democrats, though likely to retain congressional control next year, will come apart at the party seams when they attempt to take over the executive branch of the government — and retain control of Congress as well — in 1960.

In a national congressional election, which affects only House and Senate, but not the Presidency, divisions within the Democratic party can be helpful rather than harmful. Regardless of the outcome the battle will not seriously imperil either southern or northern incumbent Democrats. Irrespective of what section they come from, Democrats in both houses have stuck pretty close to their constituents' sentiment in major votes.

That accounts in considerable measure for the administration defeats on the school construction bill, on foreign aid, on the attempt to include authority to enforce school desegregation in the civil rights bill, to mention only the major setbacks. That gives the White House a poor batting average, but doesn't appear to have hurt Ike's popularity much.

But the future looks no more encouraging. In the 1958 session of Congress, working toward the fall elections, the Republicans are confronted with a further rise in cost of living, a rugged battle to extend the present reciprocal trade policy, an effort to cut taxes, success of which could unbalance the federal budget, and even tougher fights than this year to put through appropriation bills and foreign aid.

The trade policy conflict will reach the showdown stage in 1958, with tariff protectionists including numerous new recruits from southern states, lashing out at increased imports and the extension of presidential authority to cut duties.

The record of the 1957-58 sessions won't help the administration much in the effort to win Congress. That is the motivating reason for Republican support of the Negro voting provisions of the civil rights bill, and the fight against jury trials. But the civil rights drive looks toward 1960 rather than 1958.

Republican reasoning is like this: We will go out of office with diminished popularity, but we can agree on a nominee to succeed him who will carry the North and West. The Democrats, despite their probably continued control of Congress will have a terrific convention battle between southern conservatives and northern liberals, which will divide their party badly, regardless of whom they name. And by 1960 we will be able to swing enough of the Negro vote in those northern congressional districts, where 10 percent or more of the vote is colored, to carry the Congress.

DR. CRANE SAYS

Good Psychology Beneficial To Patron, Hotel Manager

Jim is a C.P.A. and a mild mannered man. But when his dander was up, he certainly excited the hotel manager in New York City. But his unique plan worked. And the hotel showed good psychology by sending Jim a reward the next day, thereby placating a patron.

Case V-350: Jim D., aged 45, is a Certified Public Accountant. Last winter he attended a convention in New York City. It was cold and wet.

Jim had been low on sleep, so he felt as if he were getting an attack of the flu.

"When I went up to my room, moreover," Jim told me, "it was cold. So I called down to the desk and reported that fact."

"After 15 minutes, there was still no heat. I then called the engineer and he said he'd attend to it at once."

"Another 11 minutes passed and still no heat. So I again called the engineer and asked what was wrong. The man that answered quickly told me I had the wrong party and hung up."

"By this time I was indignant. So I decided to use a little applied psychology."

"In one of the dresser drawers was an Indian blanket. I put on my overcoat and then draped the blanket over my head, Indian style."

"Then I went downstairs and walked across the lobby. But I hardly had time to reach the desk before the hotel manager rushed over to my side."

"He was disturbed, and exclaimed: 'Don't you realize you are making a spectacle of yourself in our lobby with that blanket over your head?'"

"So I told him I was causing no more notoriety than he was by renting rooms in a supposedly first class hotel, yet giving his patrons no heat."

"Then I told him about my cold room and my fruitless phone calls. To his credit, I must say he first checked at the desk and found I was not spoofing him."

"Then he vowed I'd have heat in a few minutes, and I did. My room was soon as warm as toast. And the next day a basket of fresh fruit was delivered at my door, with the compliments of the hotel."

"Dr. Crane, by thus using a little psychology, I got action when my three phone calls hadn't produced any help at all."

Psychology In Action

Jim had always impressed me as being a quiet, almost shy type of introvert, so I was agreeably surprised to hear about his bold action.

"It didn't sound like my Jim," his wife also added, when Jim told his friends at our dinner table about this episode.

Apparently, Jim's dander was up. His chilliness and feeling of flu, must have loaded him into this unusual way of getting action.

Maybe he could have accomplished the same results by phoning the hotel manager directly.

But Jim's three previous calls had been unavailing, so he apparently was in no mood to palaver via the telephone.

Being a meek, religious type of man (who is a member of my Bible Class at the Chicago Temple), he didn't engage in angry argument or indulge in profanity. No, he simply dramatized his problem by parading across the lobby in his Indian blanket. Since it was in one of the leading New York City hotels, he certainly got attention.

I mention his case today to show that simple psychological strategy can often prevent word battles and often shortcut an impasse.

To the credit of the hotel, moreover, it made amends by sending Jim the surprise basket of fresh fruit, so he came away without any ill will.

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.

PAUL HARVEY

Necessity For Draft In U. S. Apparently Is Ended

Whenever a man, for whatever motivation, stands up and argues for something he does not believe in, he winds up in a snare of his own contradictions.

Our judicial system is predicated on the fact that skillful cross-questioning will expose deceit, and it usually does.

Our White House and our Pentagon are seeking desperately to perpetuate the military draft. The draft is costly, unnecessary, and contradicts our important civilian tradition.

Therefore the defense of the draft is contradictory and the result is a "policy" that undulates and vacillates and by now appears downright ridiculous.

One month the Selective Service Director writes in a national magazine, "there is a uniform in the future of every American boy."

The next month the Army asks Congress' permission to reject the lowbrows.

The Army wants just the smart one, wants to classify the others 4-F.

The violent fluctuations of monthly draft calls are indicative of the utter inconsistency of our draft "policy."

By September we will be maintaining a clumsy, cumbersome, costly machinery of four thousand draft boards for the purpose of calling up only eight thousand men!

Two men per board per month! In many cities, this quota is met by volunteers, so the draft board personnel can go fishing!

Trade unions in Britain have demanded that Britain end the draft altogether.

They charge the draft is "wasteful of men and money."

Former Prime Minister Attlee says, "The conception of armies of millions of men fighting land battles is out of date. The need for large reserves of trained men is no more."

But he says, "It will require a government with a strong will to abolish the draft, for inevitably most of the experts will be thinking of the last war."

Most important, the waste in money is the uncertainty in which we fetter and frustrate a whole generation of young men.

Former Legion Commander Seaborn Collins says the Selective Service Law "is a contributing factor of delinquency."

"The uncertainty of a young man's military status prevents his finding suitable employment."

If those who want to regiment for the sake of regimentation continue to call the signals, we will continue to work at cross-purposes with our national principles.

Much - decorated Congressional Medal of Honor warrior, Audie Murphy, says, "We have fought two wars for democracy and we now have less democracy than ever."

It's past time to abolish the draft and give young Americans some of the "security" we talk so much about for the rest of the world.

The money thus saved we would all gladly divert to increasing the pay of specialists in our armed forces.

Pay the soldier with atomic-age brains an income commensurate with his knowledge and responsibility. Then the faded uniform of our youths now find unattractive might be a badge of prestige and honor again.

Worth wearing.

Burglars Break Into Graham's Crusade Post

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (UP)—Burglars broke into Billy Graham's Times Square crusade headquarters today and stole checks and petty cash. He said it was the first time one of his offices had been burglarized in his seven years as an evangelist.

Graham did not disclose the amount of money that was taken from his office. He said "only negligible amounts" were taken by thieves who also broke into other offices in the building.

A crusade official said the nightly offerings collected at Madison Square Garden are deposited immediately in a local bank.

A man was arrested July 20 during Graham's Yankee Stadium rally for trying to steal about $500 in collection money. Graham forgave the man and has offered him a job.

CITY BATTLEFIELD

Sporadic Gunfire, Bomb Blast Rip Santiago Area

By FRANCIS L. MCCARTHY
United Press Staff Correspondent

HAVANA, Aug. 3 (UP)—Sporadic bursts of gunfire and a bomb explosion turned the tense city of Santiago into a battlefield in the Cuban rebellion last night.

The rebels were reported to have "eliminated" a jeep patrol of policemen. Considerable gunfire was heard in the swank Vista Alegre suburb. A bomb explosion in Troca street killed a woman.

The flareup in Santiago followed a government announcement that 13 rebels and two government soldiers had been killed in a new outbreak of fighting in Oriente province, where Santiago is located.

This morning Santiago turned continued in the city, which is a hotbed of sympathy for rebel leader Fidel Castro and his band in the Sierra Maestra mountains.

Involves U. S.
The issue continued to develop on the international level and involved U. S. Ambassador Earl E. T. Smith as well as three U. S. citizens in Santiago.

The government newspaper "Tiempo" in Havana attacked the state department for "seeking to joke" about Smith, who raised Cuban government ire when he visited Santiago and described police action against a crowd of women there as "repugnant to me."

Smith himself, in an interview with the Miami Herald at the U. S. Navy Base at Guantanamo, said he did not take seriously efforts by Cuban legislators to have him ousted. He termed the situation "just a little rumpus." In Washington, diplomatic sources said they understood President Fulgencio Batista does not intend to demand Smith's recall, although a bill has been introduced in the Cuban Legislature to have him declared "persona non grata."

Auto Dealer Now In New Location

Coleman Pontiac, dealers for Pontiac in Monroe, moved to a new location over the weekend. The new home of Coleman Pontiac is 1909 Louisville, just up the avenue from the old location where Pontiacs have been sold and serviced for 10 years.

The new plant, officially opened for business Monday, includes 15,000 square feet of floor space on which to conduct the complete sales and service operations.

T. R. and Joe Coleman, co-owners of the Pontiac agency, announced that six factory trained mechanics are on duty with up-to-date equipment to "give the best in service to Pontiac owners." Buster Hinson is foreman of the Coleman shop.

"Not only do we have a thoroughly capable shop crew," Joe Coleman said, "We have a top-notch sales staff that will serve our customers."

Members of the sales staff were identified as: J. M. Harrell, Randy Pressley, John Frantom, Duke Burlingham, Terrell Kincaid.

"We are going into our new building equipped and manned to perform one of the top automobile operations in Monroe," T. R. Coleman said. "Our brick and steel constructed building will domicile our operation amply to provide our growth many years into the future."

George Rallies Slightly; Brain May Be Damaged

VIENNA, Ga., Aug. 3 (UP)—Former Sen. Walter F. George's heart ailment was somewhat improved today, but physicians feared his long seige of critical illness may have caused damage to his brain.

The doctors also revealed today that a lung infection developed early in his latest seizure, but that this complication has cleared considerably. The infection caused a blood clot in one lung, they said.

"We are now concerned that there may be complications in the brain but more time is needed to be certain," the physicians said in a written statement released today.

Last night Dr. Martin L. Malloy, the family doctor, said the former congressman's heart was growing weaker and that there could be little hope he will rally.

The former dean of the U. S. Senate was first stricken in Washington on June 12 and was sent to Emory University Hospital in Atlanta for 12 days of treatment. He was improving at his home when complications of arteriosclerosis, a constriction of blood vessels near the heart, caused a relapse last week.

SAWDUST IGNITED
Sawdust caught on fire at the Dixie Bedding and Furniture Co.'s tower on Texas avenue at 3:20 p.m. yesterday. Engine companies 101 and 102 were dispatched to the blaze, and no damage was done to the building.

Soap Firm Head Considered For High U.S. Post

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (UP)—Neil H. McElroy, Cincinnati soap manufacturer and advertising expert, "definitely is under consideration" for a major government post, a high administration official said today.

However, the source did not confirm reports that the 285,000-year president of Procter and Gamble is in line to succeed Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson.

Ohio congressional sources said a security check is being run on McElroy prior to offering him a high position.

In Cincinnati, the 52-year-old businessman said he is going to Washington Monday for an early afternoon appointment. He would not say with whom. The "White House and Pentagon, official spokesmen said no appointment for him was scheduled Monday.

Administration sources said flatly that McElroy is not being considered as a replacement for fellow Cincinnati John B. Hollister, who has resigned as director of the International Cooperation (foreign aid) Administration.

Not Commerce
A spokesman for Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks said there is no basis to rumors the Ohio businessman will take over that department. Weeks said only 10 days ago that he was remaining in the cabinet at President Eisenhower's request. "He has not changed his mind," the spokesman said.

Treasury sources discounted speculation that McElroy will replace W. Randolph Burgess, undersecretary of the Treasury, who has resigned to become U.S. representative to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. They said McElroy's background of advertising, promotion and sales does not qualify him for Burgess' highly technical "banker's job."

Defense Department sources did not exclude the possibility that McElroy will replace Wilson, who has said he hopes to end his frequently stormy government career this fall. Wilson plans to go on vacation the latter part of August and will not turn over the top defense post until his successor has been thoroughly briefed, an informant said.

Disrespect For President

There have been two recent instances of flagrant, open disrespect for the president which are ill-becoming to American traditions.

Referring to President Eisenhower, Senator Robert Kerr (D-Okla.) recently said in effect, "The president has no brain when it comes to financial and budgetary matters. You might instruct him for months and he would still know nothing."

Now Rep. Cleveland M. Bailey (D-W. Va.) has come out with the statement that the president was "a lousy liar" when he disclaimed responsibility for defeat of the federal school aid bill.

As long as a president of the United States conducts himself with the dignity that befits his office, he should be accorded respect in return. President Eisenhower has maintained the dignity of his office to a far greater degree than did President Franklin D. Roosevelt and as far as Harry Truman is concerned there is no comparison. Truman often resorted to guttersnipe talk and had little presidential dignity to be respected.

President Eisenhower's true humility and genuine spirit of democracy (when not unduly pressured) are two qualities that give his enemies the courage to make disrespectful statements. A president of the type of the late Franklin D.

Roosevelt or of the late Huey P. Long of Louisiana, with their monumental egotism, wouldn't have allowed such effrontery to go unpunished. It is the president's inherent belief that all men are born with equal rights, which many in high positions do not share, and his reluctance to resort to low politics that cause him to let his enemies make such statements with impunity.

Furthermore, the president has a sense of fair play regarding legislative procedure which is entirely lacking in many of his supporters, as well as among his enemies.

Fundamentally, we think the president believes in the right of trial by jury and in states' rights. In the instances in which he has deviated from these beliefs there were indications that he was unduly influenced by those who told him he must do so for the sake of the party.

The president, therefore, could not be expected to fight for measures aimed at destroying provisions of the constitution with the same savagery showed by fanatic liberals or with the violence that they expected of him.

President Eisenhower, despite some of the positions into which he has been pushed, still, deep down, believes in the tried and true American principles.

Lambs To Slaughter

One of the most degrading of the many degrading incidents that have followed upon the heels of the infamous "Black Monday" decision of the United States Supreme Court of May 17, 1954, is scheduled to take place in Nashville, Tenn., when the public schools open in September, 1957. At that time the first grades in all the public schools of the city are ordered to be integrated.

Thus will be upset a way of life that has existed throughout Nashville's long and honorable existence as a leading educational center in the South. At that time, if history is any guide, integration may take place but disintegration will set in.

The reason that integration of the first grades is so degrading is that these little children, entering upon their first experience in the educational system of the nation that will determine what kind of people they will be throughout their whole lives, will be offered up as sacrifices upon the altar of authoritarianism.

Entirely innocent themselves of the meaning of the experience upon which they are entering and necessarily depending upon the guidance of those who control their lives, the authorities who determine these matters upon the local level will force them into a system and into an association that cannot help but bring about deterioration in their individual lives and into their culture as a whole. First grade children cannot know that choice of association and purity of race are highly desirable in this world, in fact are essential for the preservation of their freedom and the attainment of their highest capabilities as individuals. There is something wrong with one who has no pride of race — and it should be noted this applies to all races alike!

Nevertheless, local officials—leading citizens of the community—charged with the responsibility of operating the public schools are going right along with the plan. If these citizens believe wholeheartedly in integration, why don't they start at the other end of the school, where the pupils have at least by this time gained some measure of judgment for themselves and some realization of what it all means, instead of forcing it on innocent beginners who don't know what it's all about? That's the Hitler-Russian way of doing things—brainwash little children in their formative years and thus make them easily governed in later life.

As a matter of fact, if the citizens of Nashville, who are so complacent about the whole matter, really believe in the principle of integration, then they should apply it to their civic clubs, country clubs, churches and everywhere else—regardless of whether or not these organizations are supported by public funds. Or don't they place principles first?

These officials seem to be giving as a reason for their supineness in the matter the advice of their attorneys, who tell them there is nothing else they can do since the federal judge has said integration must proceed in Nashville on this basis. These attorneys would seem to be docile disciples of an authoritarian philosophy which freely grants the government the unquestioning power to exact obedience and the right to determine what its people should believe or do.

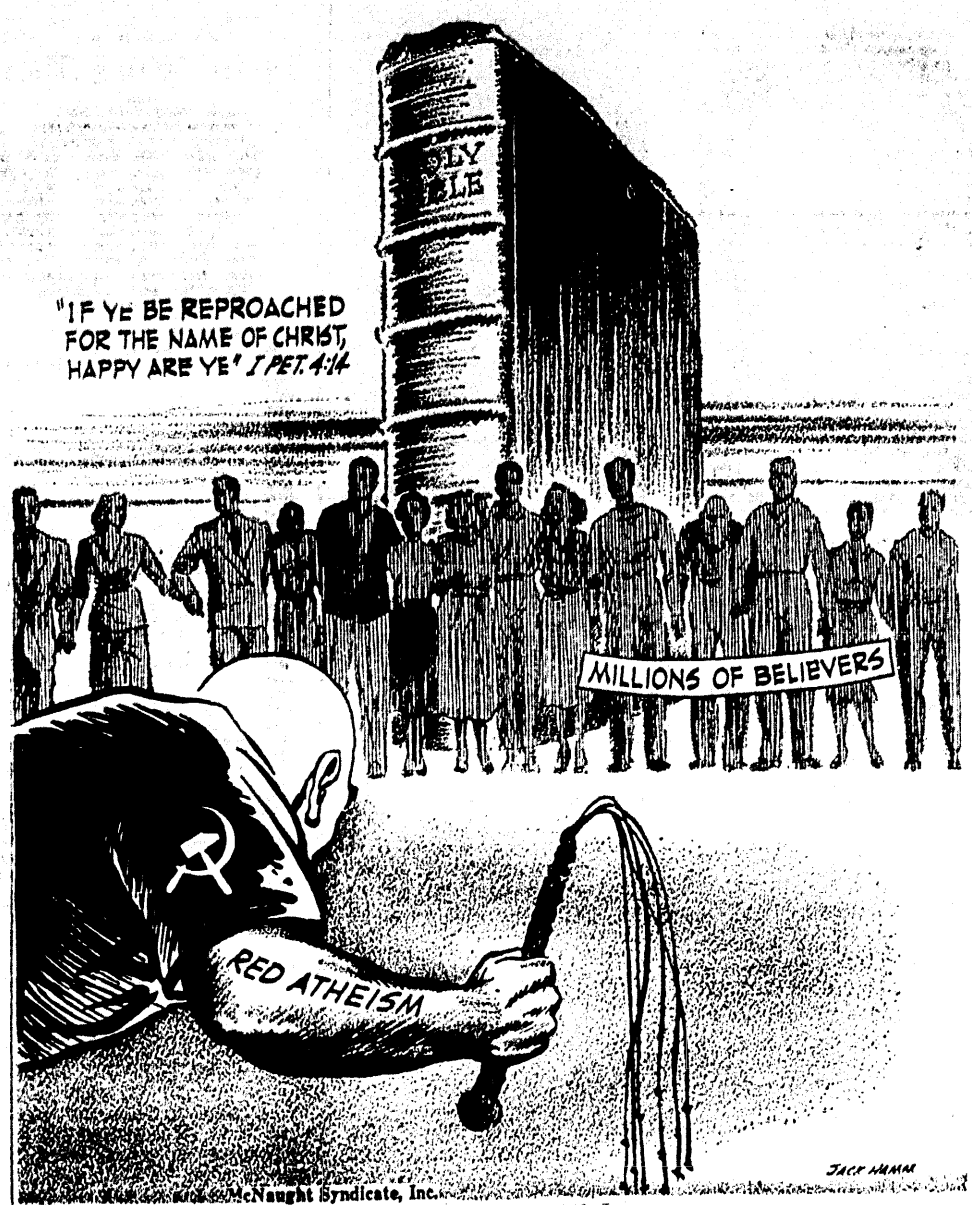

It is a terrible thing for people to say that because the Supreme Court of the United States says something is the law that it must be obeyed and there is nothing we can do about it. This is a reversion to the philosophy of the Divine Right of Kings. This argument was undoubtedly used during the American Revolution by the Tories who said that whatever orders King George III handed down were the law and must be obeyed; that there was nothing that could be done about it. If everybody had felt that way, there would never have been a United States of America.

After all, the court of public opinion is the greatest court in the world, and to say that Government in any of its branches cannot be questioned is the first step to some sort of dictatorial rule.

Neither should the people of Nashville community be thrown off the track by obnoxious outsiders who might come into the community and conduct rabble-rousing efforts to maintain segregation in the public schools. Such individuals do the cause they are supposedly supporting much more harm than good, so much so, in fact, that it can well be imagined they are actually in the employ of the other side.

This is a matter for sensible, patriotic people to handle in a reasoned manner. The real issue at stake in this whole question is that of states' rights. If New York wants integration, that should be their privilege. If Mississippi wants segregation, with equal opportunity for all, that, also, should be their privilege. If we are going to destroy completely the right of the states to govern their internal affairs and place all power in the hands of a centralized Washington bureaucracy, then we no longer have the kind of government under which we have grown and prospered. We have, in fact, betrayed the heritage left us by our forefathers and torn down our greatest safeguard of freedom.

A Humanity Curtain Greater Than The Iron Curtain

President Eisenhower May Be In For Unpleasant Three And One-Half Years

WASHINGTON, D.C. — From the way political developments shape up here this summer, President Eisenhower may well be in for an unpleasant three and one-half years, until he leaves the White House on January 20, 1961.

That forecast conceals no dislike for the pleasant and well intentioned occupant of the world's most important elective office, and it is shared by many experienced observers who consider him a victim of circumstance rather than his own misdeeds.

He is harassed by inevitable inflation, stimulated by huge government spending, half of which is chargeable to world defense against Communism. His legislative program is being stymied by a realistic apprehension of a great many voters about its implicit dangers. And the future outlook looks gray when examined in the light of the world economic situation, complicated by over production at home.

Looking over the whole picture,

the administration party can't see much to enthuse about in the immediate future, so its keener minds are gambling on the possibility that the Democrats, though likely to retain congressional control next year, will come apart at the party seams when they attempt to take over the executive branch of the government — and retain control of Congress as well — in 1960.

In a national congressional election, which affects only House and Senate, but not the Presidency, divisions within the Democratic party can be helpful rather than harmful. Regardless of the outcome the battle will not seriously imperil either southern or northern incumbent Democrats. Irrespective of what section they come from, Democrats in both houses have stuck pretty close to their constituents' sentiment in major votes.

That accounts in considerable measure for the administration defeat on the school construction bill, on foreign aid, on the attempt to include authority to enforce school desegregation in the civil rights bill, to mention only the major setbacks. That gives the White House a poor batting average, but doesn't appear to have hurt like its popularity much.

But the future looks no more encouraging. In the 1958 session of Congress, working toward the fall elections, the Republicans are confronted with a further rise in cost of living, a rugged battle to extend the present reciprocal trade policy, an effort to cut taxes, success of which could unbalance the federal budget, and even tougher fights than this year to put through appropriation bills and foreign aid.

The trade policy conflict will reach the showdown stage in 1958, with tariff protectionists including numerous new recruits from southern states, lashing out at increased imports and the extension of presidential authority to cut duties.

The record of the 1957-58 sessions won't help the administration much in the effort to win Congress. That is the motivating reason for Republican support of the Negro voting provisions of the civil rights bill, and the fight against jury trials. But the civil rights drive looks toward 1960 rather than 1958.

Republican reasoning is like this: Ike will go out of office with diminished popularity, but we can agree on a nominee to succeed him who will carry the North and West. The Democrats, despite their probably continued control of Congress will have a terrific convention battle between southern conservatives and northern liberals, which will divide their party badly, regardless of whom they name. And by 1960 we will be able to swing enough of the Negro vote in those northern congressional districts, where 10 percent or more of the vote is colored, to carry the Congress.

Congress Spends Millions For Additional Office Space

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (CQ) — Congress plans to spend over $150 million for more elbow room.

The result is a face-lifting of Capitol Hill an excavation go-guidebooks out of date.

Tourists now streaming into the city puzzle over a new marble building going up on one side of Capitol Hill and an excavation going down in the other.

The white marble structure is the $23.4 million sister to the existing Senate Office Building while the huge hole is the site of a $100 million third House Office Building.

The given reason for this expansion project is that Congress needs increased working space to fulfill its increased responsibilities. As House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Texas) puts it: "We need this additional room in order for the Congress of the U. S. to perform its functions to serve itself and to serve the American people."

The new buildings and alterations of existing ones will give committees more space, each Senator will get a five-room suite instead of a four-room suite and each Representative a three-room suite instead of two rooms.

Dissenting remarks about the expansion plans range from a comment by Rep. Edward P. Bowland (D-Mass.) that Congressmen need another room "as much as they need another hole in their heads" to a suggestion by Rep. Clare E. Hoffman (R-Mich.) that the House building excavation be filled up with foreign aid money because "at least we will know where it is."

When Rep. Roy W. Wier (D-Minn.) learned that the hotel where he lives was going to be taken over by the government so Representatives would have a place to work while their two existing office buildings were being altered, he said, "May I suggest that if you are going to give all of us three rooms, would the committee provide me with a sleeping room in that third room where your receptionist is supposed to sit in her loneliness?"

Such remarks had little effect and the building goes on as planned. The Senate Office Building is expected to be finished next spring and the House one early in 1961. Details of the House plans are not completed but the Senate ones are.

anything from a bear rug to an $800 vibrating chair. Furnishings are not being bought through competitive bidding, each Senator selecting his own.

Vibrators

Until recently, sample furniture was on display in the existing Senate Office Building. A chair equipped with three separate switches, each hooked up to a vibrator in a different part of the chair, was among the items on display.

The special chair set off some vibrations in the House chamber when the bill to authorize furnishings for the Senate building came up for a vote. Said Rep. J. Harry McGregor (R-Ohio): "I am sure that the Members of the other body are expendable the same as are the members of this body. Maybe when a new member of the other body comes in he might not like the vibrating chair his predecessor had and, such being the case, we might again have to pay another $800 in order that the new member of the other body may have the right vibration in the right spot." The bill passed intact.

The subway system which hooks up the Senate Office Building with the Capitol so Senators can ride to vote easily will be extended to the new Office Building. The same type of rapid transit will be built on the House side.

Other face-lifting authorized by Congress includes a $40 million alteration and extension of the east front of the Capitol Building itself. This is a source of intense debate among the art-conscious. In addition, there is a bill pending to buy $5 million worth of more land on Capitol Hill for future expansion and overall beauty.

GOING, GOING, REAL GONE

PARIS, Ky. (AP)—James W. Thompson, a tobacco auctioneer for 35 years, has a new chant.

He's just recorded two ballads for a Cincinnati record firm. Thompson, who has a range of one-half an octave, first records his songs on a tape recorder at home, then sends the tape to Skeets Brannon in Lexington. Brannon writes the notes for the sheet music and returns it to Thompson, who again records the song on tape. His accompanist on the piano usually is Police Judge Thomas Johnston.

The songs recorded by Thompson are "Poppy House" and "Headin' Home."

JONES NOMINATED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (AP)—President Eisenhower has sent to the Senate this postmaster nomination for Mississippi: Henry W. Jones, Brando.

DR. CRANE SAYS

Good Psychology Beneficial To Patron, Hotel Manager

Jim is a C.P.A. and a mild-mannered man. But when his dander was up, he certainly excited the hotel manager in New York City. But his unique plan worked. And the hotel showed good psychology by sending Jim a reward the next day, thereby placating a patron.

Case V-350: Jim D., aged 45, is a Certified Public Accountant.

Last winter he attended a convention in New York City. It was cold and wet.

Jim had been low on sleep, so he felt as if he were getting an attack of the flu.

"When I went up to my room, moreover," Jim told me, "it was cold. So I called down to the desk and reported that fact."

"After 15 minutes, there was still no heat. I then called the engineer and he said he'd attend to it at once."

"Another 11 minutes passed and still no heat. So I again called the engineer and asked what was wrong. The man that answered quickly told me I had the wrong party and hung up."

"By this time I was indignant. So I decided to use a little applied psychology."

"In one of the dresser drawers was an Indian blanket. I put on my overcoat and then draped the blanket over my head, Indian style."

"Then I went downstairs and walked across the lobby. But I hardly had time to reach the desk before the hotel manager rushed over to my side."

"He was disturbed, and exclaimed: 'Don't you realize you are making a spectacle of yourself in our lobby with that blanket over your head?'"

"So I told him I was causing no more noise than he was by renting rooms in a supposedly first class hotel, yet giving his patrons no heat."

"Then I told him about my cold room and my fruitless phone calls. To his credit, I must say he first checked at the desk and found I was not spoofing him."

"Then he vowed I'd have heat in a few minutes, and I did! My room was soon as warm as toast."

"And the next day a basket of fresh fruit was delivered at my door, with the compliments of the hotel."

"Dr. Crane, by thus using a little psychology, I got action when my three phone calls hadn't produced any help at all."

Psychology in Action

Jim had always impressed me as being a quiet, almost shy type of introvert, so I was agreeably surprised to hear about his bold action.

"It didn't sound like my Jim," his wife added, when Jim told his friends at our dinner table about this episode.

Apparently, Jim's dander was up. His chilliness and feeling of flu, must have goaded him into this unusual way of getting action.

Maybe he could have accomplished the same results by phoning the hotel manager directly.

But Jim's three previous calls had been unavailing, so he apparently was in no mood to paralyze via the telephone.

Being a meek, religious type of man (who is a member of my Bible Class at the Chicago Temple), he didn't engage in angry argument or indulge in profanity.

No, he simply dramatized his problem by parading across the lobby in his Indian blanket. Since it was in one of the leading New York City hotels, he certainly got attention.

I mention his case today to show that simple psychological strategy can often prevent word battles and often shortcut an impasse.

To the credit of the hotel, moreover, it made amends by sending Jim the surprise basket of fresh fruit, so he came away without any ill will.

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.

PAUL HARVEY

Necessity For Draft In U. S. Apparently Is Ended

Whenever a man, for whatever motivation, stands up and argues for something he does not believe in, he winds up in a snare of his own contradictions.

Our judicial system is predicated on the fact that skillful cross-questioning will expose deceit, and it usually does.

Our White House and our Pentagon are seeking desperately to perpetuate the military draft. The draft is costly, unnecessary, and contradicts our important civilian tradition.

Therefore the defense of the draft is contradictory and the result is a "policy" that undulates and vacillates and by now appears downright ridiculous.

One month the Selective Service Director writes in a national magazine, "there is a uniform in the future of every American boy."

The next month the Army asks Congress permission to reject the lowbrows.

The Army wants just the smart one, wants to classify the others 4-F.

The violent fluctuations of monthly draft calls are indicative of the utter inconsistency of our draft "policy."

By September we will be maintaining a clumsy, cumbersome, costly machinery of four thousand draft boards for the purpose of calling up only eight thousand men!

Two men per board per month in many cities, this quota is met by volunteers, so the draft board personnel can go fishing! Trade unions in Britain have demanded that Britain end the draft altogether.

They charge the draft is "wasteful of men and money." Former Prime Minister Attlee says, "The conception of armies of millions of men fighting land battles is out of date. The need for large reserves of trained men is no more."

But he says, "It will require a government with a strong will to abolish the draft, for inevitably most of the experts will be thinking of the last war."

More important than the waste in money is the uncertainty with which we fetter and frustrate a whole generation of young men. Former Legion Commander Seaborn Collins says the Selective Service Law "is a contributing factor of delinquency."

"The uncertainty of a young man's military status prevents his finding suitable employment."

If those who want to regiment for the sake of regimentation continue to call the signals, we will continue to work at cross-purposes with our national principles.

Much decorated Congressional Medal of Honor warrior, Audie Murphy, says, "We have fought two wars for democracy and we now have less democracy than ever."

It's past time to abolish the draft and give young Americans some of the "security" we talk so much about for the rest of the world.

The money thus saved we would all gladly divert to increasing the pay of specialists in our armed forces.

Pay the soldier with atomic-age brains an income commensurate with his knowledge and responsibility. Then the faded uniform our youths now find unattractive might be a badge of prestige and honor again.

Worth wearing.

Burglars Break Into Graham's Crusade Post

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (UP)—Burglars broke into Billy Graham's Times Square crusade headquarters today and stole checks and petty cash. He said it was the first time one of his offices had been burglarized in his seven years as an evangelist.

Graham did not disclose the amount of money that was taken from his office. He said "only negligible amounts" were taken by thieves who also broke into other offices in the building.

A crusade official said the nightly offerings collected at Madison Square Garden are deposited immediately in a local bank.

A man was arrested July 20 during Graham's Yankee Stadium rally for trying to steal about $300 in collection money. Graham forgave the man and has offered him a job.

DEATH NOTICE

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP)—A one-time bustling community on the Yellowstone River, Junction City, is officially dead. Once it was a busy place when riverboats plied the Yellowstone. Cattle and sheep now graze over the townsite so county commissioners signed an order making the demise official.

God's Love For Us

GOD'S love for us is infinite . . . Far more than we deserve . . . He loves us all, however well . . . Or poorly we may serve . . . He loves us when we keep His word . . . With heart and spirit true . . . Or if, to meet the public's gaze . . . We just pretend we do . . . Yes, even when we turn away . . . And we deny His name . . . However sinful we may be . . . His love remains the same . . . As long as there is any chance . . . That we will be contrite . . . And any hope that we will change . . . To do what is right . . . But sometime, somehow we must show . . . That we appreciate . . . God's love for us so infinite . . . Before it is too late.

CITY BATTLEFIELD

Sporadic Gunfire, Bomb Blast Rip Santiago Area

By FRANCIS L. MCCARTHY
United Press Staff Correspondent

HAVANA, Aug. 3 (UP)—Sporadic bursts of gunfire and a bomb explosion turned the tense city of Santiago into a battlefield in the Cuban rebellion last night.

The rebels were reported to have "eliminated" a jeep patrol of policemen. Considerable gunfire was heard in the swank Vista Alegre suburb. A bomb explosion in Troca street killed a woman.

The flareup in Santiago followed a government announcement that 13 rebels and two government soldiers had been killed in a new outbreak of fighting in Oriente province, where Santiago is located.

This morning Santiago turned continued in the city, which is a hotbed of sympathy for rebel leader Fidel Castro and his band in the Sierra Maestra mountains.

Involves U. S.
The issue continued to develop on the international level and involved U. S. Ambassador Earl E. T. Smith as well as three U. S. citizens in Santiago.

The government newspaper, "Tiempo" in Havana attacked the state department for "seeking to joke" about Smith, who raised Cuban government ire when he visited Santiago and described police action against a crowd of women there as "repugnant to me."

Smith himself, in an interview with the Miami Herald at the U. S. Navy Base at Guantanamo,

Miller Fired After Senate Hearing Ends

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 3 (UP)—Marshall M. Miller, cited yesterday in testimony before the Senate Rackets Committee, today was fired as consultant to New York's Republican-controlled Joint Legislative Committee on Industrial and Labor Conditions.

John McNiff, executive secretary of the Assn. of Catholic Trade Unionists, told senators in Washington that Miller had made collusive deals with employers in New York City in 1949 while an organizer for the Upholsterers International Union. McNiff said Miller was later fired by the union.

The state Democratic chairman, Michael H. Prendergast, immediately demanded Miller's resignation.

Completely Severed
Today, the committee chairman, GOP Assemblyman John L. Ostrander, said Miller's connections with the committee had been "completely severed." He said the action was "based on testimony" before the Senate Committee.

McNiff said Miller, who lives in New York City, operated the Textile Trades Assn., which he described as a "union-dominated employer association."

McNiff testified that Miller represented the Keystone Garter Co., employing 60 Puerto Rican workers whose union dues the last four years have been paid, McNiff said, to Local 138 of the Distillery Workers Union.

McNiff said the average wage among these workers was $40 a week. He said they received no other benefits and no one even knew the union existed.

Miller could not be reached for comment.

2 'Nightmare' Accidents Leave Man In Hospital

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3 (UP)—Two "nightmare" traffic accidents in which cars were trapped before oncoming trains when traffic jammed on railroad tracks today left one man critically injured and a housewife and her two children badly shaken.

The widely separated southern California accidents occurred in Alhambra and in San Diego. "I'm still weak in the knees," said Mrs. Gaye Vandergrift who managed to grab her two daughters, ages 2 and 5, from her car Friday seconds before a freight train slammed into it at an Alhambra crossing.

Harold Locate, driving in bumper-to-bumper traffic in San Diego, wasn't so lucky. Caught in the same predicament, he was unable to jump completely clear before a Santa Fe passenger train ploughed into his auto. He was taken to San Diego County hospital in "very critical" condition.

Mrs. Vandergrift learned of Locate's accident today after undergoing her terrifying experience.

"Thank God, I was able to get us out in time," she said. "I had a hard time going to sleep last night. I'm never going to drive over that crossing again."

POLICE EXAMINATIONS
Civil Service examinations for the position of patrolman and Assistant Chief of Police on the Monroe police force will be given at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday. According to Chief of Police James C. Kelly, Jr., the examinations for Assistant Chief are given yearly and results are kept on file in case of an emergency which would leave the position open. Seniority, qualifications and merit are also taken into consideration in addition to the results of the examinations.

said he did not take seriously efforts by Cuban legislators to have him ousted. He termed the situation "just a little rumpus."

In Washington, diplomatic sources said they understood President Fulgencio Batista does not intend to demand Smith's recall, although a bill has been introduced in the Cuban Legislature to have him declared "persona non grata."

Auto Dealer Now In New Location

Coleman Pontiac, dealers for Pontiac in Monroe, moved to a new location over the weekend. The new home of Coleman Pontiac is 1909 Louisville, just up the avenue from the old location where Pontiacs have been sold and serviced for 10 years.

The new plant, officially opened for business Monday, includes 15,000 square feet of floor space on which to conduct the complete sales and service operations.

T. R. and Joe Coleman, co-owners of the Pontiac agency, announced that six factory trained mechanics are on duty with up-to-date equipment to "give the best in service to Pontiac owners." Buster Hinson is foreman of the Coleman shop.

"Not only do we have a thoroughly capable shop crew," Joe Coleman said, "We have a top-notch sales staff that will serve our customers."

Members of the sales staff were identified as: J. M. Harrell, Randy Pressley, John Frantom, Duke Burlingame, Terrell Kincaid.

"We are going into our new building equipped and manned to perform one of the top automobile operations in Monroe," T. R. Coleman said. "Our brick and steel constructed building will domicile our operation amply to provide our growth many years into the future."

George Rallies Slightly; Brain May Be Damaged

VIENNA, Ga., Aug. 3 (UP)—Former Sen. Walter F. George's heart ailment was somewhat improved today, but physicians feared his long seige of critical illness may have caused damage to his brain.

The doctors also revealed today that a lung infection developed early in his latest seizure, but that this complication has cleared considerably. The infection caused a blood clot in one lung, they said.

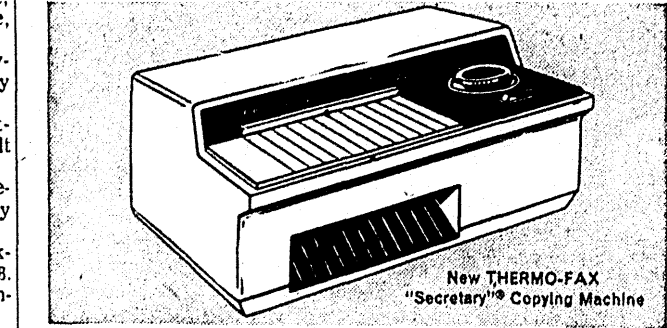

"We are now concerned that there may be complications in the brain but more time is needed to be certain," the physicians said in a written statement released today.

Last night Dr. Martin L. Malloy, the family doctor, said the former congressman's heart was growing weaker and that there could be little hope he will rally.

The former dean of the U. S. Senate was first stricken in Washington on June 12 and was sent to Emory University Hospital in Atlanta for 12 days of treatment. He was improving at his home here when complications of arteriosclerosis, a constriction of blood vessels near the heart, caused a relapse last week.

SAWDUST IGNITED
Sawdust caught on fire at the Dixie Bedding and Furniture Co.'s tower on Texas avenue at 3:20 p.m. yesterday. Engine companies 101 and 102 were dispatched to the blaze, and no damage was done to the building.

FACE OF AN ESCAPEE

Michigan Convict Describes For The World His 22 Years As A Lone Fugitive

By THOMAS DYCARD

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — About dusk on a December day in 1934 Roy Hunkins boarded a bus in downtown Jackson and rode to Chicago.

He changed buses at Chicago and rode to Kansas City.

There, in a strange city, he got a room under the name Harry E. Bennett. He got a job as a farm laborer. Later he worked as a wrapper in a shipping department, as a carpenter, as a ditch foreman over 15 men, as a maintenance man in an office building, and as a door-to-door campaigner in a gubernatorial campaign.

He married and after 11 years was divorced. Then he married again. That marriage ended in a separation. He fathered a child by his second wife.

Harry E. Bennett, laborer, husband, father, was that Roy Hunkins, an escaped convict.

For 22 years and five months he was a successful fugitive.

Told No One

During that time he told no one that he was Roy Hunkins, who had walked away from Southern Michigan State Prison while a trustee, serving 10 to 20 years for armed robbery.

He had served five years and had 2½ years to go for parole. He told no one that before his escape he had served time — a total of about 17 of his 32 years — for car theft, larceny, desertion from the army, parole violation, and other offenses.

Then, because of his tangled family life, he started to travel. His journey led to his home town of Kalamazoo, Mich., where he wanted to visit a cousin. Somebody recognized him.

Now he is No. A-95371, finishing a term for armed robbery.

Prison officials are checking his record on the outside the last 22½ years. If it is clean, he probably will get out in a few months. He now is 61.

"It never bothered me much that I was an escapee," he said, "until my little boy was born two years ago."

Hunkins was intent on getting custody of his son when his second wife left him, but he discovered he would have to go to court to do it. After 22 years, "I finally found something I wanted to do and couldn't do it because I was a con."

He claims he returned to Kalamazoo to give himself up, and squag his record.

Edgy Moments

Life on the outside had its edgy moments for Hunkins-Bennett.

Twice he almost ran into men he had known in prison. "I saw them on the street and ducked," he said. "They didn't see me."

Prison brushes with the law — traffic tickets mostly — rolled off.

Three White Men Jailed For Attacking Negro

GREENVILLE, S.C., Aug. 3 (AP)

Three white men were charged with conspiracy here today in connection with the mob beating last month of a white farmer who was caring for a white neighbor's children during an emergency.

Held in Greenville County jail were A. Marshall Rochester, Wade H. Howard Jr., and Robert E. Waldrop.

Victim of the July 21 night beating was 58-year-old Claude Cruell of Travelers Rest. He and his wife Fannie were taking care of the seven small children of Sherwood Turner, a white neighbor who had to rush his wife to a hospital because of a kidney ailment.

Mrs. Cruell said then that the mob of white men beat her husband and accused them of "trying to mix with the white people and keeping the white children around us."

One Got Wrong Man

One of the three men charged today is accused, not of beating Cruell, but of attacking another man he thought was Cruell.

Rochester and Howard were charged with conspiracy to commit assault and battery with intent to kill against Cruell, and with conspiracy to commit burglary at Cruell's home. The two are charged in the warrants with going to Cruell's home and hitting him with "some instrument."

Waldrop is charged with conspiracy to commit assault and battery with intent to kill. Officers say that Waldrop attacked 38-year-old Willie Lewis Brown of Rt. 1, Travelers Rest, on the night of July 20. The officers asserted that Waldrop mistook Brown for Cruell.

Children Hide In Hay; Bodies Found In Ashes

MASON, Wis., Aug. 3 (AP)

Three children playing in a hideout in the tons of hay in a barn on the family farm were killed today when fire of undetermined origin destroyed the structure.

The victims were Maynard Baldwin, 5, Judy, 7, and Raymond, 9, children of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baldwin Sr. The farm is located in Bayfield County in the extreme northern part of Wisconsin.

The parents did not know the children were in the barn. Their bodies were discovered by a member of the Mason fire department only after the fire had burned itself out.

ROY HUNKINS

his back. Nobody asked for a birth certificate. His social security card, in the name of Harry E. Bennett, was one of the first issued. When he was asked about military service, he replied that he never had been in the service.

"One thing that bothered me," he said, "was guys . . . a neighbor or somebody I worked with . . . talking about some crime they had read in the paper. They would always say, 'What do you think about that?' or 'Do you think they'll catch him?'"

"I always wanted to ask them, 'What makes you think I'd know?' 'Those kind of questions were rapping right at my front door.'"

On the outside Hunkins built three houses. The first he sold to get a bigger one. The second went to his wife when she divorced him. The third was sold because his wife didn't like it.

The future, which 30 years ago looked like alternate periods of violence and drabness of prison for Roy Hunkins, is doubtful. He wants to return to Kalamazoo, get a job barbering, and build himself another house.

"Coming home at night and eating a good meal and sitting down in front of the television, maybe with a beer or two — that's hard to beat."

Coolidge Home Is Donated As Vermont Shrine

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 3 (AP) — The Coolidge homestead, where Calvin Coolidge became the 30th president of the United States 34 years ago, was given to the state of Vermont today as a shrine.

It was in the lamplight parlor of the white-painted house that Coolidge's father, Col. John C. Coolidge — a village notary — administered the oath of office as President of the United States to his son.

A deed to the property in this hamlet of 348 residents was presented to Gov. Joseph B. Johnson today by John Coolidge, only surviving son of the late president.

In making the gift he carried out the wishes of his mother, Mrs. Grace G. Coolidge, who agreed last year to give the property over to the state of Vermont. The state appropriated $12,000 to restore the house to its 1923 condition, but Mrs. Coolidge did not live to see the presentation. She died July 8.

'U Nu,' Chuckles Burma Minister

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (AP) — "U Nu," Walter P. McConaughy, the new U.S. ambassador to Burma, said today laughingly. He was replying to a reporter who asked if he could name the Burmese prime minister.

McConaughy left by boat with his wife and two daughters for Burma, where he will assume his first ambassadorial post.

The questioning recalled the experience of Maxwell H. Gluck, nominated as ambassador to Ceylon, who was unable to name that country's prime minister during a Senate inquiry.

Gluck said yesterday that when he told a Senate committee he could not name the prime minister — Solomon West Ridgeway Diaz Bandaranaike — it was not because he did not know the name but because he could not pronounce it correctly.

McConaughy is a career diplomat.

Since 1952 he has been director of the Office of Chinese Affairs in the State Department.

ESCAPED IN STOLEN PLANE

Convicted Airman-Rapist Captured By Ohio Patrol

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Aug. 3 (AP)

The Ohio Highway Patrol arrested an escaped Air Force prisoner at Municipal Airport today when he stepped out of an airplane stolen in Austin, Tex., after a cross-country flight.

The patrol identified the man as Sgt. Milton J. Martin, 27, of Detroit, a convicted rapist who escaped Thursday from the Bergstrom Air Force Base, Tex., stockade.

Martin, looking fatigued after his flight, was interrogated by the patrol. He admitted he was a rapist, offered no resistance on his arrest, the patrol said.

He was taken to the patrol station at Xenia, 19 miles from here, where he was questioned by the FBI and held in Greene County jail.

The patrol said the Civil Aeronautics Administration at Cincinnati had alerted airports in the Dayton area to watch for the blue-and-white plane stolen in Texas.

The plane was seen at Farmersville, Mo., about noon today and was expected to land in Dayton.

Armed, Dangerous

Martin was described as armed and dangerous. The plane landed here about 5 p.m. (EST).

Air Force authorities at Bergstrom said Martin had stolen a plane at Austin Municipal Airport Thursday.

The next report of him came from Enid where the assistant manager of the municipal airport said he was believed headed for Little Rock, Ark., in the light plane.

Fred Roberts, assistant manager of the Enid airport, identified a picture of the escaped Air Force prisoner as the man to whom he sold gasoline about 11:30 a.m. yesterday.

Roberts told officers the man to whom he sold the gasoline took off just a few minutes before Enid police arrived to begin an aerial search for Martin.

Sheriff Mason Hart of Enid said Martin apparently came here to get revenge on his former wife, Mary Lee Fest. Martin was sentenced to 25 years imprisonment following his Army court-martial conviction on a rape charge. He was accused of holding his wife while another man assaulted her.

Ex-Wife In Hiding

Sheriff Hart said Martin's ex-wife was placed in hiding by officers here after they were notified of the former airman's escape.

The sheriff gave the following version of Martin's visit to Enid last Thursday night:

Mr. and Mrs. Erle B. Fest, parents of Martin's former wife, and their 13-year-old son, Gary, returning home from a California trip, found Martin hiding in a closet. Enraged at not finding her there, Martin tied up the Fests and fled in his car.

Yesterday morning, Mrs. Barbara Janssen, 18, Garber, Okla., was stopped on a highway east of Enid by a man brandishing a knife. She fled and the man, identified later as Martin, took her car. The car later was found abandoned at Woodring Airport.

A bond issue for that amount was voted and will mature in October, 1974. The tax rate was four mills at first, but was reduced to three mills when total assessment rose in Winnfield.

Approximate Cost

Cost of the pool and bath house will be approximately $54,800. The election was called by Winnfield city officials after the Progressive Citizens' Club, a Negro organization, had repeatedly requested swimming pool facilities.

Nearest Negro swimming pool to Winnfield is at Ruston.

The pool will be 35 feet wide and 86½ feet in length. A 10 foot by 20 foot wading pool also is included in the plans.

The present municipal swimming pool for white citizens was constructed in 1949 at a cost of $110,000. This included a large bath house.

A bond issue for that amount was voted and will mature in October, 1974. The tax rate was four mills at first, but was reduced to three mills when total assessment rose in Winnfield.

Bond Issue Passed For Negro Pool

WINNFIELD (Special) — A $60,000 bond issue to provide for a swimming pool and bath house for Negroes was passed by a popular vote of 135-42 here yesterday in a light turnout of tax-paying property owners.

The property edge for the project was $155,640 to $97,030. Only 463 property owners were eligible to vote in the election, because others failed to register to vote.

The bond issue will be for a 10 year period and will require between a two and three mill tax on property annually. Negroes within the city limits pay only seven per cent of Winnfield taxes.

Park, Shop Plan Believed Assured

The Chamber of Commerce's park and shop project appeared assured today after a tally of reports from volunteer workers engaged in soliciting merchant participants.

Jim Williams, manager of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce, said that the first day of contact Friday produced an enrollment amounting to more than 30 per cent of the 50-member goal. In addition to this there have been numerous telephone contacts from merchants, and from all indications, the program appears to be highly popular.

Under the plans, merchants will cooperate in providing free parking for downtown shoppers. All but one parking operator has joined in the plan, and this one is expected to complete a contract within the next few days.

The system calls for downtown merchants to validate parking lot and parking garage tickets. These in turn will be redeemed from a fund established by the participating business men.

Williams said that contracts already have been negotiated in the following categories in downtown Monroe: loan companies, savings associations, banks, department stores, ladies specialty shops, men's shops, furniture stores, jewelry stores, and music shops.

The park and shop plan is an effort on the part of downtown businesses to provide the same convenience and economy as is found in less congested areas of the community.

Dog Leads Posse To Woman's Body In Mississippi

CHARLESTON, Miss., Aug. 3 (AP)

A 150-man posse searching for an elderly woman followed her barking dog to her body in a briar patch today.

Deputy Sheriff N. Z. Trout said Miss Betsy Arbuckle, 74, apparently stumbled over an embankment several days ago and broke her leg. She had lived alone on a 40-acre farm after her sister died last December.

Trout said bent bushes and weeds indicated Miss Arbuckle had tried to drag herself along the ground to summon aid.

An unidentified cousin reported the woman missing today. He said he found an untouched meal, apparently several days old, still on a table in the house.

One member of the civilian and National Guard search party said Miss Arbuckle's barking dog approached him, then ran into the briar patch where the woman apparently became entangled.

Neighbors said they last saw her Monday.

'NOW IS NOT THE TIME'

Top Official Cites Need For Gold Standard In U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (UP).—W. Randolph Burgess, undersecretary of the Treasury, said today the United States "ought to be heading toward a gold standard." But he said, "We can't do it now with the world so unstable."

Burgess' views on the gold standard question appeared to go somewhat beyond those expressed by former Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey earlier in the Senate Finance Committee's investigation of the nation's financial condition.

The undersecretary, who soon will leave the Treasury for a post on the NATO Council, was asked about his views on the gold standard by Sen. Malone (R-Nev.), who had quizzed Humphrey along similar lines.

Worked As Team
Humphrey and Burgess worked as a team for more than four years, fashioning Eisenhower administration monetary policies. Those policies, especially higher interest rates, have come under heavy fire from Democrats who contend they have hurt farmers, small businessmen, home buyers and others.

Before Malone took over questioning Burgess, Sen. Kerr (D-Okla.) wound up three days of interrogation which at times resembled a debate with the Treasury official over administration policies.

As Humphrey did before him, Burgess insisted the administration's fiscal policies have kept inflation in check. Testifying on July 9, Humphrey was asked by Malone whether the nation should return to the gold standard it left 24 years ago.

"I would not go back to a metal basis for money today, no sir," Humphrey replied. He said that perhaps at some future time there might be "sufficient stability in the world" for this to happen.

Favors Manipulation
Malone said at the time this meant to him that Humphrey favored what Malone called "the managed, manipulated currency we started on 24 years ago."

Humphrey then said he did believe the nation must continue with a managed currency for the time being.

Reminded today of Humphrey's July testimony, Burgess repeated, "I think we ought to go toward gold currency."

Questioned by Malone as to who should decide about going on the gold standard, Burgess replied, "Congress should decide that."

"You do believe we should go back on gold the first time we can?" asked Malone.

"When we can do it safely," Burgess said.

At one point during the lengthy questioning, Burgess said, "Every big boom that keeps on long enough ends in a bust."

"You think that's where we're heading?" Malone asked.

Burgess indicated he felt a bust would come if inflation were not checked and economic stability maintained.

'PITIFUL MAN'

Sen. Olin Johnston Raps Eisenhower's Pliability

LUMBERTON, N. C., Aug. 3 (UP).—Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC) tonight described President Eisenhower as "a pitiful man subject to the bidding of the command of his cabinet and staff."

Eisenhower has become "the device of the millionaire clan that elected him," Johnston said in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Young Democrats of North Carolina.

In a wide-ranging attack on the Republican Party and the present administration, Johnston asserted that "just as the South has nothing in common with the Republican Party and its leaders and policies, so the working people of this entire nation have nothing in common with the Republicans."

On the other hand, he continued, "the Democratic Party has always been the long-standing ally of the South regardless of the temporary breaches that may arise from time to time within our midst."

Critical of GOP

Johnston bitterly criticized the Republicans for their stand on civil rights legislation, monetary policies, foreign trade, taxes and farm problems, among other things.

In the civil rights fight in the Senate, Johnston said, "it was not the Republican Party that helped to water the bill down into a simple right to vote bill. It was the Democratic Party leadership from the West, some from the North and some from the eastern states that joined the southern rascals. Quite frankly, the South alone would have been beaten to death on this issue without help."

Harking back to the 1952 presidential campaign, Johnston said the Republicans "supported in many instances by well-meaning but misled citizens, came into our southern towns and rural areas to promise all kinds of heavenly things."

"Then, after they were elected they stole away in the night and set out on the worst crusade since the Confederate war."

Attacks Warren
Johnston also attacked Chief Justice Earl Warren, an Eisenhower appointee.

"Since Earl Warren took the bench," Johnston said, "the Supreme Court has ruled almost constantly on the side of the radicals. Approximately 23 rulings out of 29 rulings dealing with the Communists since 1953... have been pro-Communist rulings, in my opinion."

"Speaking of the poor taxpayers of America," Johnston continued, "what has happened to the googly-eyed promises of yesterday by Ike and his running mates for a tax cut for the people? There has been nothing but more promises."

Yet, he said, the Republicans have stood up for tax cuts for the rich.

And when it comes to inflation, he added, Eisenhower and the Republican Party have done more to create inflation and destroy our basic economy than any other administration with the possible exception of the Republican administrations of Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

Arkansas Wells End Pollution Of Corney Area

BATON ROUGE (Special).—The Arkansas oil wells near the North Louisiana border have ceased contributing to the pollution of the interstate waters of the Corney drainage system, according to Kenneth E. Biglane, chief of the division of water pollution control of the Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries commission.

According to Biglane, Murray Stein, chief of the interstate enforcement section, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D.C. has advised that all 18 Arkansas wells covered by the hearing held at Homer, Louisiana, last January, are no longer contributing to this pollution. Fifteen of the wells have been shut down.

The pollution once caused by these oil wells interfered with the use of the Corney drainage system in Louisiana for sport and commercial fishing, recreation, stock watering, irrigation, and other agricultural uses, municipal and industrial uses and uses by valuable species of animals inhabiting the area, Biglane said.

Tech Held First Graduation 60 Years Ago-'97

RUSTON (Special).—This year marks the 60th anniversary of the awarding of the first diploma at Louisiana Tech.

Harry Howard, the first graduate, finished in a class by himself in 1897.

Diplomas were not available for the first class, however, and young Harry received a rolled-up piece of ornate wall paper, tied with red and blue ribbons, the college's colors.

The presentation of the wall paper was made informally by Col. Arthur T. Prescott, president of the college, which then was known as the Louisiana Industrial Institute.

A year later, Harry was presented a genuine sheepskin along with the class of 1898 at a formal commencement program. There were 10 graduates at that time.

Howard later served Louisiana Tech for more than 40 years as treasurer and manager of the bookstore. He died in 1939. The main auditorium at Tech bears his name.

The auditorium was one of seven buildings erected on the Tech campus with state and federal funds after fire destroyed the old main building in January, 1936. The loss of one building and the gain of seven new ones prompted Mr. Howard, in a speech at the college, to refer to the fire as "a very fortunate calamity."

U.S. Prodding Drug Firms On Flu Vaccines

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (UP).—The government was pushing a vigorous preventative campaign today to head off an expected Asiatic flu epidemic in the nation this fall.

The half dozen drug concerns have been asked to rush production of new flu vaccine on an around-the-clock basis. The Public Health Service is urging the public to make maximum use of the vaccine as soon as it is available.

About eight million shots are expected to be ready by Sept. 15 with half of them earmarked for the armed forces.

The agency also has urged the drug makers to step up production of other antibiotics to combat such deadly diseases as pneumonia which often follow the flu.

Watch Cold Weather

Surgeon General Leroy Burney said the advent of cold weather could touch off a nationwide epidemic. The Asiatic flu virus, an extremely contagious disease, already has been "seeded" throughout the country.

But, if it comes, Burney said he expects the flu epidemic to be a mild variety—with a far lower death rate than in Asia.

Burney said the drug manufacturers hope to market an additional 12 million flu vaccine shots by the end of October and hit the 60 million mark by Feb. 1.

He said that outside of getting inoculated there is little the individual can do to keep from getting the disease. He said the government does not recommend closing schools, theaters and churches because "there is no evidence this slows the spread of the disease."

HONEST TOURIST

MERIDIAN, Miss., Aug. 3 (UP).—City Hall is displaying this letter from an honest tourist, unsigned, but mailed in Atlanta, Ga.: "Dear Sir:

"We were in your beautiful state some time ago and stopped in Meridian for a short while. When we got back to our car we 'discovered' we had parked a little overtime and I didn't think to put the extra money in the meter. Of course, this is little, but I am trying to do the Christian thing. Enjoyed being in your state."

A dime was enclosed.

QUEEN PERSONALLY RAPED

Apology Demanded After Lord Denounces Elizabeth

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON, Aug. 3 (AP)—Lord Altrincham, who describes Queen Elizabeth's speaking style as a "pain in the neck," said today the British monarchy will collapse if people cannot talk about it.

The 33-year-old peer's audacious criticism of Queen Elizabeth II and other members of the royal family came in a magazine article, but he backed it up with a flood of frank comments from his home. London newspapers wheeled up big guns and hit back at him.

Writing in the conservative National and English Review—which he edits—Lord Altrincham pounced on the Queen's speech making.

"The personality conveyed by the utterances which are put into her mouth is that of a priggish schoolgirl, captain of the hockey team, a prefect, and a recent candidate for confirmation," he wrote.

Not Classless
"The relatively classless society of King George V unfortunately is not to be seen in his granddaughters. The Queen and Princess Margaret still bear the debilitate's stamp."

Commenting on the Queen's speeches, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said: "Important speeches by the Queen are usually drafted by the minister concerned. Other speeches are prepared by one of her private secretaries."

Hitting out at the people around the Queen, Lord Altrincham said: "The Queen's entourage—those who serve her from day to day, who accompany her when she travels and sit with her when she eats—are almost without exception people of the 'twenty sort.'"

Not With Times
He added that the court had "failed lamentably to move with the times." There was no mention in the article of Prince Philip.

The young peer said the Queen should be surrounded by advisors and companions with as many different backgrounds as possible.

Lord Altrincham even declared the Queen's training was "woefully inadequate." She received her education from private tutors.

Lord Altrincham's magazine had hardly hit the streets when London newspapers began hitting back at him.

"Lord Altrincham's attack being personal, is vulgar," said Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express. "Being muddle-headed, it is destructive."

In the conservative Daily Telegraph columnist Peterborough wrote: "I have never heard criticism put with greater exaggeration or more offense."

The League of Empire Loyalists demanded that Lord Altrincham apologize.

Commission will consider in deciding to whom to grant the certificate.

Mississippi Power's argument includes a statement it has a modern high-pressure steam generating plant near the base site and can produce whatever power the base needs.

The co-op produces no power. Another argument, though not mentioned openly yet, is that co-ops buy power on a contract basis and Mississippi Power does not have to provide the co-op with any more power than the contract specifies.

The current East Mississippi-Mississippi Power contract, signed long before the Navy decided to build a Lauderdale County base, would not provide for the amount of power the base would require.

This fact has not stopped East Mississippi from pressing its claim for a certificate. John C. Langman of Meridian, East Mississippi manager, said the co-op was aware of the possibility that Mississippi Power might not want to provide sufficient additional power.

But, he said without elaborating, "We'll get our power. We've been working on it and it's all worked out."

Whatever the outcome of the petitions, the three public service commissioners know their decision will make some people unhappy and the case will be used as precedent for later cases.

Both applications aim "grandfather rights," a term the Commission gave to areas utilities served when the 1956 public utility law became effective.

A source close to the Commission said base officials have expressed preference for service by the co-op, one of the factors the

OAK RIDGE COMMUNITY
Grandpa Bowden, 93, Gives His Formula For Success

OAK RIDGE (Special)—city. "Grandpa" Bowden, 93-year-old resident of the Oak Ridge community, has his own personal formula for success, whether it is farming his small garden plot, or raising a family.

Richard G. Bowden has been raising a corn crop each year for the last 15 years moving to Oak Ridge, working the land with a homemade plow, which he pulls himself.

This year, Grandpa has the "best corn crop I have ever grown." When asked why he pulls the plow instead of pushing it, he says, "did you ever see a mule push a plow?"

The home is about five blocks from the business part of town, but Grandpa Bowden walks to town and back anywhere from two to six times daily. He will ride when someone stops to pick him up, but prefers to walk. He says he needs to "get my daily exercise."

Until recently, when a car killed it, a black collie was the faithful companion of Bowden and made the same trips to town and back.

Bowden and his wife, Maggie, have 10 children, all successful and outstanding citizens of their respective communities. One son, W. G. Bowden, is the ex-mayor of Alexandria, and his grand son is now the present mayor of that city.

Richard P. Bowden is head of the Bowden Realty Company in Atlanta, Ga.; T. N. Bowden is a superintendent for an insulation company in Memphis, Tenn.; Dr. J. E. Bowden is pastor of the Carolan Avenue Methodist Church in New Orleans; Roy G. Bowden is part owner of the Home Insulation Company in Birmingham, Ala.

Mrs. Lucille McClain of Ruston is the widow of C. E. McClain, a Methodist minister; Mrs. Lillie Ruth Weber is a housemother at Northwestern College in Natchitoches; Mrs. C. E. Barthel is the wife of a research physicist in Northbrook, Ill.; Mrs. W. H. Files, the daughter with whom the Bowdens live, is assistant postmistress in Oak Ridge, and her husband is employed by the state in the driver's license bureau; Mrs. M. J. Cavanaugh of Ruston is the wife of Major M. J. Cavanaugh of the State Police Department.

Grandpa Bowden says he attributes a long and useful life to regular habits, "early to bed, early to rise, three good well-balanced meals daily, and especially a good breakfast, live a good Christian life, and most of all, a wonderful devoted wife to love and care for me through all these years."

Eisenhower Clan Meets For John's 35th Birthday

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (UP)—The Eisenhower clan gathered for a rare Washington weekend tonight to celebrate the 35th birthday of Maj. John Eisenhower.

Scissors Death Accident, Says Coroner's Jury

CHICAGO, Aug. 3 (AP)—A coroner's jury has returned a verdict of "accidental" in the death of Joseph Olson, 59, in whose body a doctor found a pair of surgical scissors.

The jury ruled yesterday that Olson died July 24 from arteriosclerotic heart disease "and a foreign body in the abdomen."

The jury failed to determine "how, when, where or under what circumstances" the foreign body got there and said any evidence concerning the forceps was "hearsay."

Olson died in Woodlawn Hospital on the South Side where he had gone complaining of gas pains. He was operated on June 28 at the same hospital for relief of adhesions resulting from an earlier operation.

The forceps were found in Olson's small intestine during an autopsy by Dr. Francis A. Archer, a pathologist.

Dr. Edward Goldberg, who performed the admission operation, said the forceps could not have been left in the body. He testified that "the site of the operation was so limited that it was impossible for them to have been left."

Olson's wife, Doris, 60, said her husband complained of gas pains after the June 28 operation.

CHECK PRESENTATION—The City of Monroe yesterday received a check for $1,545 from the federal Civil Defense Administration representing half the cost of six two-way mobile short wave radio units in operation in city police cars. The government check was presented yesterday morning by A. B. Clarkson, Civil Defense director for this district, to Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard. In the picture, left to right are, Chief of Police J. C. Kelly, Jr., Clarkson and Mayor Howard. Four more of the radios are to be purchased in the near future. Those already installed are used in regular operating procedure by the city police department and would be auxiliary equipment in the event of a disaster.

TWO MANY 'YES' VOTES MISSING

Natural Gas Measure Seems To Be Sidetracked For Rest Of Session

By EDWARD JAMIESON
WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (Special) — The Harris - O'Hara Natural Gas Bill, which has run through a series of ups and downs, now appears shelved in both the house of representatives and the senate until next session.

Failure of house majority leader John McCormack to schedule the bill on the house legislative calendar for the coming week makes it very unlikely that the measure will reach a house vote during this session. Meanwhile, there has been no plan to bring the bill up in the senate interstate commerce committee until next year.

In an exchange on the floor of the house late Friday, McCormack refused to tell Republi an floor leader Joseph Martin why no provision had been made to consider the bill during the coming week.

"Not Programmed" — "It is not programmed," McCormack told Martin when questioned. "What does that mean?" asked the Republican leader. "It is not on the program," replied the Democratic leader. General opinion is that a nose-count of members of the house does not show enough votes to pass the bill at this time, even though it has been approved by the "ouse interstate commerce committee and only this past week by the powerful rules committee. Supporters of the measure, designed to eliminate some of the drastic federal regulation of natural gas producers in effect since the supreme court decision in the Phillips Petroleum Company case, frankly do not want a house vote unless they feel confident that it will pass.

Most Favor It — It is generally understood that recent counts of the membership showed that if all members were present, the bill would be approved. But already a number of members have left Washington and many others are planning to leave at the end of the coming week. In fact, there is a possibility that the house will conclude its regular daily sessions next Saturday, with a bare quorum remaining to act upon odds and ends of legislation still unfinished by the senate.

Top High School Grads Offered Flight Training

Flight training as a Naval Cadet has been added to the Navy's High School Graduate Training Program. Chief W. R. Chappell of the Monroe Navy Recruiting Station announced today the opening of the new program to High School Graduates who are interested in becoming Naval Aviators and who want to fly the modern, high performance aircraft of the Navy.

In addition to the other opportunities offered High School Graduates, the Navy now offers young men who can meet the standards, an opportunity to obtain flight training in the Naval Cadet Program reports Chappell. At some time during Navy recruit training every High School Graduate is given an opportunity to apply for Naval Cadet training, and if found qualified, applicants will be selected and ordered to the U. S. Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Florida, where they will undergo 18 months flight training. For additional information concerning this program contact Chief W. R. Chappell of the Monroe Navy Recruiting Station.

Kenner Youth Killed By Train

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 3 (UP) — A Shreveport to New Orleans passenger train today hit and killed a Kenner, La., teenage boy. State police said Quentin Joseph Porche Jr., 18, died when the Kansas City Southern train struck him in Jefferson parish in the 4400 block alongside Airline highway. Engineer William Gimber said he spotted Porche but at first thought he was looking at a piece of paper. The brakes were applied, but too late. Porche's body was found in a clump of weeds near the tracks, apparently thrown there by the force of impact. A short time after the fatal accident, John A. Danna, 25, ran his car into a freight train switch engine after his car sideswiped another car on airline highway. He received a broken wrist.

'CONFERENCE'

Harvard Student Debates 100 Reds On Disarmament

MOSCOW, Aug. 3 (UP) — A familiar with the official Soviet line which demands immediate cessation of nuclear weapons tests. Red Youth Blows Up — The Russians were surprised to hear Medalie expound the Western argument that "the problem isn't suspension itself but how to successfully control it."

One tall Muscovite blew up at this. "Have you ever fought a war?" he asked. "How old are you?" "What do you know about all this?" he demanded. Medalie calmly replied that he had never fought in a war but shared the same hope for peace that his questioner did. Neither side gave an inch. Paper Comments Americans — Finally, Medalie tore himself away and went to his quarters—promising to return again to continue the argument. At a more formal session between Russian and American youths, Jake Rosen, 19, of New York, presented his hosts with copies of the Declaration of Independence and the United States Constitution, describing them as documents very dear to the hearts of Americans here and everywhere.

Blowout Kills Woman Motorist

FORT STOCKTON, Tex., Aug. 3 (UP)—Mrs. Myra L. Stiles, 23, of Lovington, N. M., was killed today when a tire on the automobile her husband was driving blew out and the vehicle overturned. The husband, Melvin Stiles, 25, and their two daughters, Linda, 5, and Deborah, 4, were injured and hospitalized at Fort Stockton. Stiles suffered lacerations of the back and the children had cuts and bruises. None was in critical condition. The accident occurred about 15 miles south of Fort Stockton on U. S. Highway 285.

Although the activities of some of the Americans may have caused some raised eyebrows in Moscow, the Soviet labor publication "Trud" described them as keen minded and likeable — even if they "understand little of present-day life."

Ark. Oil Wells Not Polluting Corney System

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 3 (UP)—The Wild Life and Fisheries Commission said today the Arkansas oil wells near the north Louisiana border no longer were polluting the interstate waters of the Corney draining system. The U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare advised the commission that all 18 Arkansas wells covered by a hearing last January at Homer, La., had ceased contributing to the pollution. Fifteen of the wells installed injection systems, the federal department reported, and three were shut down. Kenneth E. Biglane, chief of the commission's division of water pollution, said the wells once interfered with the use of the Corney drainage system in Louisiana for sport and commercial fishing, recreation, stock watering, municipal supply and other water uses.

Jordan Sends Ultimatum To Syrian Gov't

DAMASCUS, Syria, Aug. 3 (UP)—The Syrian government announced today that Jordan has delivered an ultimatum threatening to sever diplomatic ties and resort to armed action, if necessary, unless Syria stops an anti-Jordanian press campaign by Sunday.

A government statement said Syria has rejected the ultimatum. A Syrian spokesman said the ultimatum was delivered verbally in Amman last Wednesday by Jordanian Premier Samir Rifai, in a meeting with Syrian Charge D'Affaires Ahmed Rahby.

According to the Syrian spokesman, the Jordanian warning said that "if the Syrian press campaign against the Jordan cabinet and its members did not stop, the Jordan cabinet reserved its right to take any measures, even if it would lead to an armed clash between Syria and Jordan."

Syria charged the Jordanian premier was using the press campaign as a pretext, and was "preparing an atmosphere to wreck Arab unanimity against Israel in order to force the Arab world into a 'war' with Israel."

The government statement was broadcast later by Damascus Radio. It said Jordan has set a deadline for Sunday for compliance with the reported ultimatum.

Navy Challenges Philippines On Trying Officer

MANILA, Aug. 3 (UP)—The U. S. Navy today challenged the right of a Philippines court to try Chief Warrant Officer Gordon O. Carnes on a charge of vehicular homicide.

Carnes, of Conrad, Iowa, was accused of running over and killing a Filipino on June 28 while driving a military truck in San Marcelino, Zambales province. The Zambales provincial court claimed jurisdiction.

Capt. Charles Cole, staff legal officer of the U. S. Navy command in the Philippines, submitted a memorandum to the Philippine Justice Department challenging the authority of the court in the case.

Jury Fails To Find Agreement On Tax Verdict

AUSTIN, Aug. 3 (UP)—A federal jury trying A. J. Adams on charges of income tax evasion failed to reach an agreement late today and was dismissed for the week end.

The jury reported shortly after 4 p. m. that it had not agreed on a verdict and Federal Judge Ben H. Rice Jr. dismissed the panel and told members to report back at 9 a. m. Monday to resume deliberations.

Adams, 71-year old former "senior partner" in the Maceo and Co. gambling empire at Galveston, is accused of failing to pay $87,000 in federal income taxes for the years 1948-50.

The government, by means of detailed charts and testimony of some 30 witnesses, sought to prove during the two weeks of trial that Adams knowingly evaded paying the taxes.

In final arguments yesterday, former Gov. Dan Moody, the chief defense attorney, told the jury the prosecution case was circumstantial and failed to prove the charge.

"The government has made liberal reference to the fact that he was a partner in an organization engaged in gambling. But they have not said a word that evidence presented here shows A.J. Adams evaded income taxes," Moody said.

However, assistant District Attorney Harmon J. Parrott re-

SPECIAL DAYS

IGY Scientists Take Cues From Own World Calendar

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Reporter

We are living under a special new world calendar.

It runs into January of 1959 and is studded with special days which could bring prizes of great new discoveries.

The calendar is that of the International Geophysical Year, the mammoth cooperative effort by 10,000 scientists of 61 nations to solve mysteries of the world we live in. IGY extends from July 1, 1956, to Dec. 31, 1958.

It finds scientists fanned out over oceans, mountains, plains, islands, the snows of the South Pole, and frozen reaches of the Arctic.

With old and new instruments, they are making intensive studies of weather, the sun, cosmic rays, the ionosphere or electrified layer of air above us, magnetism, earthquakes, gravity, glaciers and oceans.

Key Is Cooperation

The key to IGY is cooperation. Scientists in one country can gain only a partial understanding of weather, or worldwide effects of cosmic rays, or changes in magnetism or other forces.

But by making nearly simultaneous observations around the world, and then sharing all they learn, they can in effect take world-wide "pictures" of the earth and the forces affecting our globe and our lives.

That is where the IGY calendar comes in.

It provides special dates for special, intensified studies. There are three ways of doing this.

One is through "regular world days," three to four each month, selected in advance. Some come at the new moon — a favorable time for observing the aurora or Northern or Southern Lights, the mysterious faint airglow around the earth, and meteors. Others fall at times of unusual annual showers of meteors.

On world days, scientists will usually fire rockets which reach very high into the air to probe weather, temperature, ionosphere, and other phenomena.

Two Eclipses

Two world days come at times of eclipses of the sun — Oct. 23, 1957, and Oct. 12, 1958. Scientists of several nations will join in special observations in the eclipse paths.

Selected in advance, also, are 10-day World Meteorological Intervals. There are six coinciding with the seasons — fall, winter, spring and summer — during IGY. These will be times of special efforts to study weather and the upper atmosphere.

Thirdly are unpredictable Special World Intervals, called when the sun bursts forth with tremendous flares or activity. These solar explosions have vast effects on the ionosphere, cosmic ray showers, magnetism, the aurora. Scientists keeping steady watch on the sun will issue alerts when the sun undergoes unusual pyrotechnics. A world-wide warning system will flash word to scientists around the world for intensified studies until the sun goes back to more normal activity.

American Girl Tells Reds U.S. Should Ban Tests

MOSCOW, Aug. 3 (AP)—An American girl identified by Russian newsmen as Francine Kamen of New York told Youth Festival delegates today Americans should put pressure on their government to ban nuclear tests.

She refused to give her name to an American reporter.

Five Americans who appeared to be in their teens attended a four-nation session of 23 delegates in a hall built to seat 200. The 18 others present were from the Soviet Union, Britain and Japan.

The six Japanese delegates were described as survivors of the Hiroshima A-bomb.

The American's declined to give their home towns or street addresses. But a Russian reporter identified three other Americans as Andy McEwen, Dorothy Miller and Ethel Goldenstein and said he believed they are from New York.

The girl identified as Kamen told the "most important thing today is for the United States and the Soviet Union to compromise on banning nuclear tests."

"Do Not Want War"

"Americans do not want war, but the U. S. government has decided we must keep up with the tests as a safeguard against Soviet tests," she said.

"We will never be an aggressor, but the Soviet Union is still testing bombs and many Americans feel it necessary to keep up our tests... who believe in the necessity of halting nuclear tests to put pressure on the American government to stop the tests."

"That is the only way we can reach some kind of compromise with the Soviet Union."

It is apparent that at least a third of the 100 Americans here for the festival came for the curate travel and sightseeing.

Most of these are skipping the scheduled events in the 15-day festival—it was billed as non-political—which began last Sunday. They are spending their time sightseeing and talking with Russians in the streets.

Martin Sees Deadlock Over Civil Rights Bill

over until next January when Congress convenes.

The chief executive's legal advisers are said to have told Eisenhower the measure the Senate may pass by midweek represents not only an "empty shell" for protection of voting rights but will hamstring government enforcement in other fields.

Southern senators held a strategy session on the bill today and Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) told reporters afterward that he expects a Senate vote "within a reasonable time," perhaps Wednesday or even sooner.

"Up to now there has been no filibuster on this bill," Russell said. "None was planned at our session."

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.), who breakfasted with Eisenhower, told reporters he hopes the House will send the measure to a Senate-House conference committee in an effort to compromise its terms.

Hopea For Compromise
Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, did not rule out some compromise on the controversial jury trial amendment which he previously had said made the measure "ineffective." But he said he has yet to see any compromise he finds acceptable.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, made it clear he hopes the House accepts the Senate version without a conference and lays the bill on Eisenhower's desk.

In a move that stunned administration leaders, the Senate wrote into the bill by a 51-42 vote early Friday a provision requiring jury trials in all federal court criminal contempt cases.

Criminal contempt is generally defined as an action in which a judge desires to punish a defendant for willful disobedience of court orders. There would be no jury trials where a judge sought only to induce obedience by means of civil contempt citations and where the defendant could go free as soon as he complied.

"Ineffective"
Eisenhower said the jury trial provision would "make largely ineffective the basic purpose of the bill—that of protecting promptly and effectively every American in his right to vote."

On this ground he was represented as likely to urge House Republicans to stand fast against acceptance of the Senate version. He was said to feel that if this results in tying the measure up in a Senate-House conference committee for the rest of this session, proponents of a strong measure will be in a good position to resume the fight next January.

Knowland said, however, he personally is prepared to stay in Washington as long as necessary to get Senate action on a compromise bill if the House sends it to conference. He noted that any Southern filibuster against acceptance of a compromise bill would be somewhat limited in scope because senators would be confined to two speeches each and could not offer amendments in an effort to gain two additional speeches as they can do when a bill originally is under consideration.

Can Bargain
The House either can accept the Senate bill or said it to a Senate-House conference committee. But in any event, the House Rules Committee headed by Rep. Howard Smith (D-Va.) probably will have to clear it first.

Smith is an opponent of civil rights legislation and might delay rules committee action.

If the bill is sent to a conference committee, Senate controversy may develop over the personnel of its seven members.

Usually each chamber's group of seven members provides a majority of supporters for its version of the legislation. Under usual procedure, Sen. Eastland (D-Miss.), who opposes enactment of any civil rights legislation, would be chairman of the Senate group because he heads the Judiciary Committee.

Eastland and two other prospective conferees, Sens. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) and Olin D. Johnson (D-SC), voted for the jury trial amendment. The amendment was opposed by four other prospective conferees, Sens. Hennings (D-Mo.), Wiley (R-Wis.), Langer (R-Ind.) and Jenner (R-Ind.).

May Vote On Conferees
In this situation, Knowland said it was possible two sets of conferees would be suggested and the Senate would have to vote on its choice of representatives. Ordinarily, the Senate authorizes the vice president to appoint conferees, which he does from a list agreed upon by the majority and minority leaders.

But Knowland said the vice president has no authority to act independently, that the Senate itself retains that power.

Five of the seven prospective House conferees already are on record against a jury trial amendment. Each House's group votes as a unit in the conference.

Any compromise that came out without a jury trial amendment would be met in the Senate by a Southern filibuster. There is little chance that supporters of the compromise could muster 64 Senate votes to shut off debate. Since that number necessarily would include more than a score of senators who voted for the jury trial amendment.

May Depend On Rayburn
Whether the civil rights bill becomes frozen in the conference committee or runs into a Senate filibuster may depend on what (ack House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) takes.

If Rayburn is convinced it would benefit the Democrats to get the issue out of the way before the 1958 congressional election year, he might be able to crack enough whips to get House acceptance of the Senate's measure.

Some House Republicans have to get Senate action on a compromise bill if the House sends it to conference. He noted that any Southern filibuster against acceptance of a compromise bill would be somewhat limited in scope because senators would be confined to two speeches each and could not offer amendments in an effort to gain two additional speeches as they can do when a bill originally is under consideration.

While Southern Democrats publicly are opposed to any civil rights measure, there is a strong suspicion some of them would be glad to settle for the relatively weaker Senate bill rather than to risk a change in temper in the next session which could bring enactment of stronger legislation.

Rules Help South
House working rules are on the side of those opposed to the bill in either House or Senate form.

A single objection from the floor can block action to send the bill to conference. The only other way is to obtain a special rule from the House Rules Committee.

Some Democratic leaders were taking the position that if Republicans want civil rights legislation at this session the only way they can get it is to obtain clearance from the Rules Committee with a "rule" concurring in the Senate jury trial amendment.

There was no assurance that a majority of the 12-member Rules Committee would agree to procedure clearing a bill containing the Senate amendment.

Among the eight Democrats on the committee, four non-Southerners are counted in favor of voting to send the Senate bill to the floor.

Three From GOP
That would require three of the Republicans to go along with them. Committee Republicans are Reps. Allen (Ill.), Brown (Ohio), Latham (N.Y.) and Hugh Scott (Pa.). Democrats are Reps. Smith (Tex.), Bolling (Mo.), Madden (Ind.), Delaney (N.Y.), Trimble (Ark.) and O'Neill (Mass.).

If the House should accept the Senate's bill and send it along to Eisenhower, he will face the choice of vetoing it or letting it become law a measure he has labeled "largely ineffective."

Administration officials insist that there has been no decision on a veto. They are divided in their position on this. Some believe that since the bill is unacceptable to the minority groups they hope to reach, a veto would be in order.

At Least A Start
Others argue that the Senate measure at least makes a start on the over-all civil rights question by setting up an investigatory commission. They think the President would be well advised to take the third of a loaf Congress would be giving him and to press for stronger measures in the next session.

Sen. Neuberger (D-Ore.) said in a statement Eisenhower's criticism of the jury trial amendment would have been more helpful if he had made it before the Senate voted.

"Furthermore," Neuberger said, "the comparatively weak utterances made by the President in behalf of the bill at his press conferences are strangely different from the strong statements released in the President's behalf by press secretary Hagerty. With which voice does the President himself really speak?"

WHY DO YOU READ THE NEWSPAPER? Copyright 1957, Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, Inc.

"I sit down with the paper every day to read it and look for ads on things I need..."

Morning, noon or night, any day of the week, in the house or out, the newspaper remains to be read — and shopped — at the reader's convenience.

This is one of the great pluses for an advertiser — as so many advertisers well know. An ad is read by newspaper readers when the readers feel like it. There is no intrusion upon the readers' time; thus no resentment by customers.

The convenience appeal of the daily newspaper is one reason why people pay over $3,000,000 a day for the privilege of reading and shopping from more than 57,000,000 newspapers daily.

Whatever you sell, wherever you sell it — nationally, regionally or locally — you'll get more help selling it through the daily newspaper... where people find time to listen to your story.

Dulles Reports To Eisenhower On Disarmament

can count on surprise, the danger of general war will be lessened.

It will then be "more possible to reduce safely the burden of armaments," he said.

He noted that Soviet disarmament delegate Valerian A. Zorin said Russia would give the Western proposals careful consideration.

As for himself, Dulles said he remains convinced that the job of controlling disarmaments is so vital "it must be pursued with unwavering resolution."

The Secretary of State was greeted by Undersecretary Christian A. Herter, Deputy Undersecretary C. Douglas Dillon, Assistant Secretary William M. Rountree and others.

Man Charged In Fight Here

A fight in the Dixie Lunchroom ended up in one of the participants being stabbed by the other man's brother, police reported last night.

Cut on the left side of the chest was C. W. Owen, Negro, of Route 2, Monroe. Roosevelt Franklin, 48, of 1509 Beards street was charged in the case.

Owen was fighting with Franklin's brother when the stabbing occurred, police said they were told. The wound was minor, and Owen did not require medical aid.

PARIS, Aug. 3 (UP) — Three robbers, who made the mistake of sampling some of their loot on the spot, sobered up in jail here today.

Police, alerted by the sexton of St. Ambrose church, rushed to a vacationing parish priest's office and found the three men quaffing a bottle of rare old calvados (applejack), which they had taken along with 50 pairs of black socks, 12 packs of cigarets and $42.

Southern Education Reporting Group Recording History As It Happens

By GAVIN SCOTT
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The unfolding drama of the emotion-packed school desegregation story is being quietly compiled here in a tree-shaded house built in an era when integration was just a word.

From this voluminous file, a finding agency called the Education Reporting Service is trying to tell the desegregation story straight as objectively as we can.

Started Early
SERS was formed by a group of leading Southern newspaper editors and educators on July 15, 1954, just two months after the Supreme Court's decision striking down segregated public schools.

Its stated purpose was "to tell the story, factually and objectively, to the public primarily through 'Southern School News,' a 16-page monthly tabloid."

At first the non-profit organization was viewed with suspicion from both sides of the explosive issue. Now $2-a-year subscriptions to the News have been purchased by over 11,000 individuals or organizations — from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to the pro-segregation White Citizens Councils.

The service has become accepted as the most complete source on the school segregation — integration issue in the nation.

Articles from some 60 newspapers are clipped daily and filed away along with over 1,000 magazine stories, copies of legislative acts, speeches and court decisions relating to the subject.

CARDINALS STRETCH NATIONAL MARGIN IN DEFEAT OF PHILS; BUCS BOUNCE BOBBY FRAGAN; LSU GOLFER WINS PUBLINX TITLE

Billy Muffett Looks Sharp In Relief Job

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 3 (AP)—Billy Muffett, making his first major league appearance, twirled four scoreless innings of relief as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated Philadelphia today 3-1. The victory went to $50,000 bonus baby Von McDaniel.

The victory meant the Cards grabbed a one game lead over Milwaukee in the torrid National League race. The triumph was the streaking Red Birds eighth in a row.

The win was McDaniel's although he was lifted for a pinch hitter in the fifth inning when the Cards scored twice, after trailing 1-0.

McDaniel has now won six of eight decisions, Robin Roberts, who won his last two starts, got tagged with the defeat. He is now 8-14.

In the fifth Don Blasingame doubled down the left field line with one out and scored the tying run as Alvin Dark singled for his third straight hit.

Ed Bouchee fielded Stan Musial's high hopper, stepped on first for the out, but then threw wide trying to get Dark at second. Dark made it to third on the misce.

Then Joe Cunningham, one of the hottest clutch hitters in the majors at present, drove in Dark with a single to left.

The Cardinals added an important run in the eighth inning. Wally Moon walked against reliever Dick Farrell and darted home as Ken Boyer banged a double to center.

Muffett just called up from Houston allowed only one hit in four innings of relief.

The Phils scored their run in the first inning. Leadoff man Richie Ashburn walked and went second on a wild pitch. Grady Hatton singled Ashburn to third and he scored as Bouchee bounced into a double play.

Wally Moon of the Cardinals extended his hitting streak to 20 consecutive games with a single in the second inning.

McDaniel, just 18 years old, was wild as the rain-delayed contest started 32 minutes late.

The victory shoved the fading Philadelphia team six games off the pace. The Phils are in fifth place.

Muffett, a righthander, was looked over by the Cardinals this spring but sent back to Houston. There he compiled a 15-8 record and led the Texas League in strikeouts.

In the sixth, Muffett gave up a double to Bouchee with one out but bared down to retire Lopata on a long fly to center and Harry Box score:

Bums Break 1-1 Tie, Top Braves

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 3 (UP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers routed the Milwaukee Braves, 7-1, after breaking up a 1-1 tie with four runs in the eighth inning.

The Dodgers sent nine men to the plate in the eighth inning to end what had been a tight duel between Milwaukee's Lew Burdette and two Dodger pitchers, starter Danny McDevitt and Ed Roebuck.

Burdette, who had given up only four hits through the first seven frames, didn't survive the inning. He walked Junior Gilliam to open the eighth and Gilliam moved around the bases on a sacrifice and single by Sandy Amoros and Gil Hodges for Brooklyn's first run of the inning.

Another single by Carl Furillo finished Burdette who was replaced by Don McMahon. Ray Campanella met McMahon with a single to score Bob Kennedy, who was running for Amoros, and Hodges. Furillo advanced to third on the hit and scored on an infield out by Randy Jackson.

Roebuck, who was credited with two Dodger victories in a double-header against Chicago Wednesday, shut out the Braves with no hits in the last three innings for his fourth victory against a loss.

The Braves got their five hits off McDevitt. Milwaukee's only run scored in the fourth when Eddie Mathews walked, took third on a single by Hank Aaron then scored on another single by Del Crandall.

Orioles Spike Rally By A's To Win, 7 To 6

BALTIMORE, Aug. 3 (UP)—Reliever Ken Lehman retired dangerous Gus Zernial and Irv Noren to end a ninth-inning three-run rally and give the Baltimore Orioles a 7-6 victory over Kansas City for the Athletics' sixth straight loss.

Righthander Hal Brown took a 7-5 lead into the ninth inning, but singles by Lou Skizas and a pinch-hit double by Bob Cerv with one out brought in George Zverink from the bullpen. Zverink gave up run-scoring singles to Hector Lopez and Billy Martin before he was replaced by Lehman with the tying run on second base. Lehman got Zernial to roll out to the mound as the runners advanced and then slipped a third strike by Noren to end the game.

KILLS RALLY IN 9TH

Grim Saves Another Yank Win, 5-3 Over Cleveland

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (UP)—Relief ace Bob Grim, whom Casey Stengel calls the most valuable cog in the New York Yankees' pennant machine, nailed down their sixth straight triumph today when he snuffed out a ninth-inning threat by the Cleveland Indians to preserve a 5-3 victory.

Grim, making his 31st appearance of the season, and his second in as many days, throttled the Indians in the ninth when they put the potential tying runs on base with none out.

Starter Art Ditmar, who was credited with his eighth victory against one defeat, was rolling along with a 4-1 lead when the Indians knocked him out in the eighth inning. Ditmar departed after Cleveland filled the bases on singles by pinch-hitter Hal Naragon and Joe Caffie and a walk to Al Smith.

Johnny Kucks took over and was greeted by Gene Woodling's two-run single which narrowed New York's margin to 4-3. After Hank Bauer hit his 10th homer off Cal McLish in the bottom of the eighth, Kucks got into the trouble in the ninth when Bob Avila led off with a single and moved to second on Russ Nixon's single.

At this point Grim took over. First, he got Rocky Colavito to foul out, then induced pinch-hitter Bob Lemon to fly to center field. Grim got the final out when Dick Williams, another pinch-hitter, flied weakly to Harry Simpson in left field.

The Twins City teams will take their batting practice from 5:00 to 6:00 on the night they play. The Bi-Parish team has batting practice at 6 o'clock on any day they play.

Infield practice will start at 6:35 with the Bi-Parish squad having their ten minutes first. Monroe or West Monroe will take the field at 7:05 and the field must be cleared by 7:15 each night.

The winner of the tourney here will complete the state tournament, slated to start next week in Alexandria.

This is the first year for the Dixie League in the Twin Cities. The league is for boys 13 and 14 years old.

Yank's Shantz Sidelined With Sore Shoulder

He had to miss his regular pitching turn against the Cleveland Indians last night, begging off at the last moment. He said he had the pain for the last eight days and after pitching for 15 minutes in the bullpen last night it went away.

"But I never threw hard," he said. Manager Casey Stengel still has hopes of using him in one of tomorrow's games if his shoulder loses the soreness.

Shantz had a long record of injuries while with the Philadelphia and Kansas City Athletics, and never repeated his 1952 season's record of 24-7, when he was also named the league's Most Valuable player. This year he has a 9-3 record. He was traded to the Yankees during the past off-season.

Plastic Helmet Saves Life Of Brooks Robinson

BALTIMORE, Aug. 3 (UP)—A Plastic Helmet was credited today with saving the life of Brooks Robinson, rookie third baseman of the Baltimore Orioles who was beamed in a game last night.

The 20-year-old player from Little Rock, Ark., was on the road to recovery today, although he was expected to be kept in Union Memorial Hospital 48 hours for observation.

But Dr. Erwin Mayer, club physician, said Robinson "Probably would not be alive if he hadn't been wearing a hard-top headgear. As it was, the ball struck Robbie in the temple. A delicate place, but the blow was cushioned enough that no serious damage was done."

Dr. Mayer said an examination of wet X-rays showed no fracture or concussion. Ten stitches were required to close the gash in the left side of his head. The doctor said Robinson should be able to play within a week.

Monday Bouts Here Delayed With Kallio Ill

The doors to Gus Kallio's Arena will be closed to wrestling tomorrow night.

With ailing Promoter Kallio in a hospital here, wrestler George Curtis of Vicksburg, Miss., had agreed to act as matchmaker and arrange a program. Curtis revealed the card yesterday morning, but yesterday evening the show was put off when it was realized that certain chores, always handled by Kallio himself, could not be taken care of.

One item is the ring which is taken down during the week to permit skating and then is erected each Monday before the matches.

Kallio, yesterday described as a "pretty sick man," is a patient at St. Francis Hospital. Friends have notified his brother, Isaac Kallio, of his illness and the brother is en route here from his home in Canada.

Juniors, Boys Nearing Title Round Of Play

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Aug. 3 (UP)—Fourth seeded Dennis Ralston dealt the second major upset of a tournament filled with surprises when he today eliminated boys' favorite Bobby Siska in the semifinals of the National Juniors and Boys Tennis tournament.

And underdog Alan Roberts of Brooklyn, who has dubbed himself "Mr. Lucky 13," battled into the final round of the junior division with a tough, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3 triumph over third seeded Eddie Sledge of Dallas.

Chris Crawford, No. 1 seeded in the junior bracket, was set down in the fourth round in the other major upset of the week-long tourney at Kalamazoo college.

Bobby Delgado, Los Angeles, is the other junior finalist and Bill Bond, La Jolla, Calif., will meet Ralston in the boys final Sunday.

Delgado downed Bob Bowditch, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

The rugged 5 foot, 9 inch Ralston, from Bakersfield, Calif., took Siska in straight sets, 7-5, 6-4. It was the first major defeat of the year for the 14-year-old San Francisco who is National Hard Court, Western and California State champion. And he had an early season win over Ralston.

Roberts, seeded No. 13, waded through the favorites from the fourth round on and is given a good chance to beat Delgado in the finals. The 18-year-old 'Nesleyan, Conn., college sophomore helped beat himself with numerous mistakes.

Roberts and Sledge battled on even terms in the two sets but the Texan fell apart in the third. He double-faulted, hit too long and couldn't seem to do anything right.

Chicago teams won the pennants in the first year of play in both the National and American Leagues.

BOSTON WINS, 8-7

Red Sox Knock Pale Hose Six Games Off Yank Pace

BOSTON, Aug. 3 (UP)—The Boston Red Sox came up with a five-run eighth inning off four Chicago hurlers to break a 3-all tie for an 8-7 victory which dropped the second place White Sox six full games back of the pace-setting Yankees today.

The Chicagoans went down fighting as they scored four runs in the ninth and left the tying run on third.

CHICAGO GIVEN PAN-AM GAMES

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Aug. 3 (UP)—The third Pan-American games, in 1959, were awarded to Chicago tonight. The Pan-American Games committee cast 13 votes for Chicago and 6 for Sao Paulo, Brazil. The games originally were scheduled for Cleveland.

Cleveland was forced to give the games back to the Pan-American committee when it was unable to obtain financial assistance from the federal government.

Several cities were thought to be in running after Cleveland withdrew but they too were sidelined by financial problems and the field finally was narrowed to Chicago and Sao Paulo.

The first games were held in Buenos Aires in 1951 and were renewed in Mexico City in 1955.

Iron Liege Tages Sheridan In Rain With Bill Hartack

CHICAGO, Aug. 3 (AP)—The nation's leading jockey, Bill Hartack, today scored his first Chicago stakes victory of the season as he skillfully guided Kentucky Derby winner Iron Liege over a sloppy track to a two-length victory in the $2,000 Sheridan Handicap at Washington Park.

Four horses were scratched, including highly regarded Round Table, as the track was deluged by nearly 2 inches of rain earlier in the day. Hartack cleverly brought Calumet Farm's Bull Lea star from fourth place in the nine-horse field at the far turn into the top spot at the beginning of the long stretch.

Second was Joe Price, while the Arlington Classic winner, Clem, was third.

Iron Liege, carrying top weight of 126 pounds, paid his backers in a crowd of 17,058—$5.00, $2.80 and $2.20. Joe Price returned $6.00 and $3.60 while Clem's show price was $2.80.

The time on the goosy strip was 1:37.

The victory was worth $24,625 to the Calumet Stable.

Fourth was Better Bee followed across in order by Ezgo, Greek Game, Rajputana, Jet Colonel and Springhead.

In the day's seventh race, Kentucky Pride, a 2-year-old colt by Bull Lea, who may be Calumet's big horse in next year's Kentucky Derby, scored his second straight impressive victory. Hartack took him to the front at once in the 5 1/2 furlong event, and he won by six lengths.

Meet The Biggest Sports Promoter In Monroe—The Recreation Dept.

By BOB ANDERSON

Around the middle of this month, Jack Hesketh will be able to sit back and take a brief and well deserved sigh of relief. For the director of Monroe's Recreation Department will have finished another summer supervising 1,500 softball and baseball players participating on almost 100 teams in 16 leagues, playing an average of over 50 games a week on 7 diamonds.

Hesketh and the recreation department form the leagues, check the roster, scheduled the games, purchase and maintain the equipment, hire the umpires and try to keep the diamonds in playable condition.

Sounds like a pretty big job, doesn't it? Man, you haven't heard the half of it. While all this is going on, the recreation department continues its regular activities which include running 12 playgrounds, (summer only), the recreation center, teen-age clubs, a dramatic club, a rifle club, handicraft and art classes, checkers tournaments, conducting square dances and Saturday night teen-age dances.

Also, don't think that with the end of summer comes the end of the department's athletic program. Soon after school starts, touch football will get under way to be followed by basketball in November. Needless to say, all this keeps Mr. Hesketh and his three full time assistants, Mrs. J. W. Myers, James McKay and the colored director, Sarah Coleman, pretty busy.

Mrs. Myers is the social director and handles a large part of the activities not connected with athletics. McKay handles the softball leagues during the summer while Hesketh works with the kid baseball loops. A horde of part time workers help out with the various projects and act as playground leaders.

McKay's softball system consists of the four church leagues, the Civic loop and the City League. The kid baseball leagues are the Dixie League, the two Little Leagues and the three Minor Leagues. There are four colored leagues, the Major, Minor, Pioneer and Midget Leagues.

The City League is one of the two oldest loops in the system. It and the Junior Church League were the only two loops operating when Hesketh took over the recreation department back in 1946. It also provides the highest caliber of play in the city. "They play as fast a brand of ball in the City League as you'll see anywhere," says McKay.

The Civic League was intended to be made up solely of civic clubs but not enough of them entered this year so the loop was filled out with business firms. All members of civic club teams must be over 25 years old but the business teams are permitted to use players under 25.

The church leagues, surprisingly enough, are the ones that give McKay the headaches with ineligible players. The season never comes around that he doesn't have to chop several games off the win column of a covey of teams for using "ringers."

Several years back, one league had a champion that finished in fifth place over the regular season! The top four teams had gone into the playoffs and the championship apparently settled. However, the runner-up club challenged a couple of the top team's players to set off a chain reaction. All four teams began yelling "foul" and when the smoke had cleared every first division team had been caught with at least one ineligible player. The fifth place club was hurriedly handed the winner's trophy and the matter closed before the second division began throwing accusations around.

All church leagues must be members of the church they play for or one of its organizations. In addition to these qualifications all players in the Junior League must be 15 years or under. Dr. W. L. Bendel, Sr. is softball commissioner and rules on all protest involving rules infractions. McKay handles all the rubebs over ineligible players himself.

As would be expected, umpiring is McKay and Hesketh's biggest problem. Although the guys in the recreation leagues aren't playing for any pot of gold, you'd think it by the way they scrap for every break. There are plenty of protests, official and otherwise, over umpires' rulings.

One manager accosted McKay after a game one night and said he was protesting the game. "What's your reason?"

The manager's answer was simply, "These umpires don't know what they're doing."

Though most protest are more specific, they seldom get much further than this one did. The recreation department has a pretty tough time hiring and keeping umpires, especially for the City League games. Would be arbiters just don't care to expose themselves to the many small time Stankys and Durochers who're ready to jump down their throats at the slightest excuse. Everyone's still looking for the ump that never calls one wrong just as they're still searching for the shortstop that never makes an error.

The recreation softball leagues in Monroe, as everywhere, are about the last refuge of that vanishing breed, the pure amateur. The softballers don't play for money, there are no baseball scouts watching and most of the players are a little too old or just not good enough to even hope for fame and fortune as an athlete anyway. There's nobody around giving college scholarships to softball players either. They can't be playing to make the headlines since they rarely rate even the small print. They play for the old fashioned reason that they like to play.

Fortunately the little fellows in Hesketh's ballwick don't ride the ump's too much. "The only ones who have anything to say to the umpires are the parents," Hesketh says, "but they say plenty." It's pretty hard for momma and poppa to be objective when their son and heir just got called out on a strike "a mile outside if it was an inch." However some parents manage to keep their perspective. During the inter-league play in the Little League last month, the mother of one of the winning pitchers commented to Jack that she thought the umpire called a lot of bad pitches on the losing side. Such objectivity is rare but refreshing says Hesketh.

In contrast to the softball leagues, where the sponsoring club, business firm or church buys the equipment for its team or the players get their own the kid league team's sponsor turns over a certain amount of money to the Recreation Dept. and they buy the uniforms and equipment for the boys and take care of it during the season. This keeps all the teams on the same level equipmentwise. In other words, there's no such thing as "keeping up with the Joneses."

Though the Little League program has come under fire for several reasons in recent years, it has one excellent feature, that of giving any kid, no matter how awkward or poorly equipped physically, a chance to make a team and play ball.

At the beginning of this season, 299 boys turned up at the Little League tryouts. One hundred of them were put on one of the Little League teams and the rest played in the Minor Leagues. Nobody got left out because he wasn't good enough. If a kid attends practice, follows orders and shows up for the games, he'll get to play.

Although the city didn't build Legion Stadium or the Little League park, the recreation department takes care of them along with five other diamonds. The task of keeping these fields in shape is a job in itself, especially with all the rain this summer. When the fields aren't being used for softball or baseball, the neighborhood kids are using them for bicycle races, marble shooting, cowboy and Indian battlegrounds and the like. "They're used from 7 in the morning 'til ten at night," Hesketh declares.

The recreation department has come a long way since ex-Rhode Islander Hesketh took over as Director back in 1946 when there were two softball leagues going with one lighted field and Hesketh makes no secret of the fact that it should go a lot further. "We get our money from the city's general fund and it's nowhere near enough to take care of a good recreation program."

Cuban Begins Swim Record Try On Miss.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 3 (AP)—Cuban Jose Cortinas, trying for a new distance record, began his long swim down the Mississippi River today toward Vicksburg 300 miles away.

Jose, 40, of Los Angeles, ignored blinding rain squalls that swept the mile-wide river soon after he swung over the side of an excursion boat off the waterfront.

But towboat skippers in the area kept the river radio channel crackling with inquiries as to the Cuban's exact whereabouts, fearful that he might be run down by one of the long, unwieldy barge trains.

Jose, formerly of Havana and Cuba's "Athlete of the Year" in 1949, was on to top the record of 222 miles set in 1940 by St. Louis butcher, John Sigmund, who swam from St. Louis to Caruthersville, Mo., in 89 hours 52 minutes.

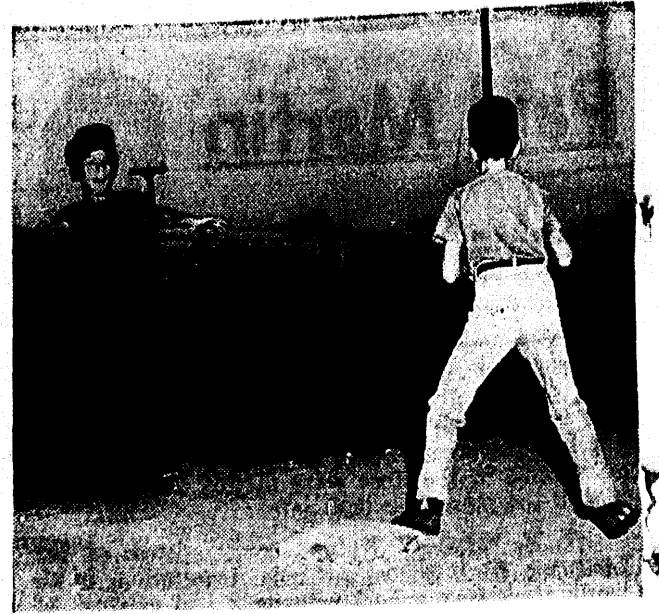

"I think I make it ok this time," said Cortinas, who had to give up a previous attempt when his guide boat became fogged in. "That is, if I don't become sick or something."

It will take nearly four days of swimming, day and night, never leaving the muddy, lukewarm water or clinging to support. He will rest by floating.

The 5-11, 225-pound Cuban will be guided along the river's main channel by a 16-foot motorboat that acts as his navigator. The boatmen will slip him frequent paper cups of orange juice, clam chowder, coffee laced with honey, and walnuts.

Swim "headquarters" is a 32-foot cabin cruiser that idles along behind. Radio reports said Jose, coated with grease and wearing goggles, was plowing along at a steady four or five miles an hour.

Cuban heavyweight Nino Valdes hoped to be a baseball player but turned to boxing. He played first base in Cuba.

Seixas, McKay Make U.S. Sweep Over Brazil Rivals

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass., Aug. 3 (UP)—Vic Seixas and Barry Mac Kay of the United States combined power and height today as they downed a diminutive Brazilian doubles team in the Davis Cup American zone final at Longwood cricket club.

The score was 7-5, 9-7, 11-13, 7-5.

The victory, combined with a U. S. sweep in yesterday's two singles matches, won the United States Davis Cuppers the right to meet the winner of the European zone final between Italy and Belgium.

The veteran Seixas, third-ranked nationally and the hard-hitting Dayton, Ohio, youngster seemed on their way to a straight set victory over Brazilian team captain Armando Vieira and Carlos Fernandes until the savagely fought third set.

There, the two teams traded games until the 5' 6" Vieira and the 5' 8" Fernandes were able to break the 21-year-old Mac Kay's service and gain an advantage. The Brazilians forced both veteran campaigners Seixas and the 28th-ranked Mac Kay to net balls.

However, Vieira lost his fourth service of the match in the deciding game of the next set and the United States duo picked up an easy set win to oust the Brazilians.

The two teams meet again tomorrow in singles play. Seixas will meet Vieira while Sammy Giammalva will go against Fernandes. The outcome will have no bearing on the zonal championship since the United States clinched it with three points out of a possible five today.

The United States scored a double victory in open singles play yesterday as Giammalva dumped Vieira in five sets while Seixas coasted to a three straight set victory over Fernandes.

The speedy Vieira forced Giammalva to exert all his skill as the little Brazilian took the first set, lost the next two, but broke through his opponent's service to tie the match in the fourth set.

Giammalva, a University of Texas senior, jumped to a 5-1

Household Pets Prime Targets

By JOHN OLDENBURG

Several must have read this column last week as we had many calls concerning cute animal pictures, but most of them came in a little late so I had to follow up on the above situation — kittens sharing a double bunk bed made from old cigar boxes.

Mrs. Ralph Murphy, 1309 North Sixth Street, West Monroe, called early last week and told me about the unique bed made for the family kittens by the neighborhood children and her young son, Tim.

Actually when the kittens were real small they claimed this as their bed and have used it since although they are getting a trifle large for it now.

There was always a little trouble, however, as to which one would get the top bunk, as is evi-

Pictures like these are not too hard to get, it just takes a little patience and waiting for that instant. However, you must shoot a number of shots to have something to choose from for your final selection. (These took one roll of 120 film).

Incidentally, the pictures were shot with a Rollei on Tri-X film with f22 aperture and 100-sec speed. The attention of the kittens was attracted by shaking a bunch of car keys.

WOMAN FROM SICILY

Tale Of Suspense Mixed With Sorrow, Laughter

By VERA MORGAN

The Woman From Sicily by Frank Swinnerton (Doubleday & Company, Inc. - $3.75)

Mary Grace was a happy person. The people of Ebrother, quiet little town in England, loved her for her gentleness and good nature. It was hard for them to understand why she chose to marry Jerome Grace, the son of Oswald and "The Contessa." The Contessa, as old Mrs. Grace was nicknamed, was an evil old woman, whose malice and hatredfulness had caused her husband to die a broken shell of a man. Jerome, raised under her evil influence, seemed doomed to die the same as his father. Then he met and married Mary. Old Mrs. Grace met her maker in Mary. Mary's sunny disposition was the antidote Jerome needed to escape his Mother's influence.

had seen coming from the offices the afternoon of Jerome's collapse and Barroway's disappearance? Where was Mr. Barroway? What did Mudge, the little law clerk, know that he constantly hinted about but would never fully tell?

To add to Mary's troubles, the Contessa unexpectedly returned from Sicily, where she had lived since Jerome's marriage. Mary found herself in a position of having to combat old Mrs. Grace's strong and evil influence on her three children and nursing her broken husband back to health. There were times when she thought her own sanity endangered.

Tom Tamplin's appearance in town gave Mary the strength she needed to carry on. Tom was an old friend of Mary's, who was vacationing from his London newspaper job. He immediately offered Mary his time and help.

Suddenly, tragedy struck in the serene lives of Mary and Jerome. Jerome's partner, Barroway, disappeared. After a series of strange events, which led the town to suspect him of murdering his partner, Jerome collapsed, mentally and physically.

Mary's mind was filled with unanswered questions. What had happened in the law offices of Barroway & Grace? Who was the strange, heavily veiled woman she

Several years passed before the mystery of Mr. Barroway's disappearance was solved by Tom and the local law, and not until then was Jerome's collapse explained. Mr. Swinnerton is an expert in telling a tale of suspense. He gives his readers laughter, sorrow, anxiety and curiosity. The Woman From Sicily is a book to read from cover to cover without interruption, heavily veiled woman she

FROZEN NORTH

White Invasion Fleet Moves Into Ship Lane

BOSTON, Aug. 3 (AP)—A grimly beautiful, white invasion fleet, stealing down from the frozen North, has forced one of the world's busiest shipping lanes to make its annual bend south in obedience to nature.

This invasion of the icebergs has virtually taken over a 300-square-mile area south and east of Newfoundland, where the only ships that wisely brave the clogged waters are those of the International Ice Patrol.

It is this fleet of ice cutters with help from a detachment of planes that blows the whistle on man's only defense against the wandering islands of ice—adequate warning for the freighters and passenger liners.

Ice is the particular business of Capt. Kenneth S. Davis, commander of the International Ice Patrol, who has just returned after logging more than 800 bergs thus far this year.

Capt. Davis believes this year's ice broken from the Greenland ice cap is the heaviest in more than half a century. In addition, it arrived earlier and is remaining longer than usual.

The ice patrol was begun by the Coast Guard after a berg claimed the luxury liner Titanic and 1,517 lives on her maiden voyage in April 1912.

Such tragedy has not been repeated. Cost of the patrol is shared by the world's principal maritime nations, on a tonnage basis, with Britain picking up the heaviest chit.

This year's ice crop is unusual in some respects. It made its appearance much earlier than average, for one thing, and it consists of solid chunks of ice.

Usually the bergs are filled with "faults"—air pockets and the like, which cause them to melt rapidly after reaching the Gulf Stream. Not so this year—the bergs are slow in melting.

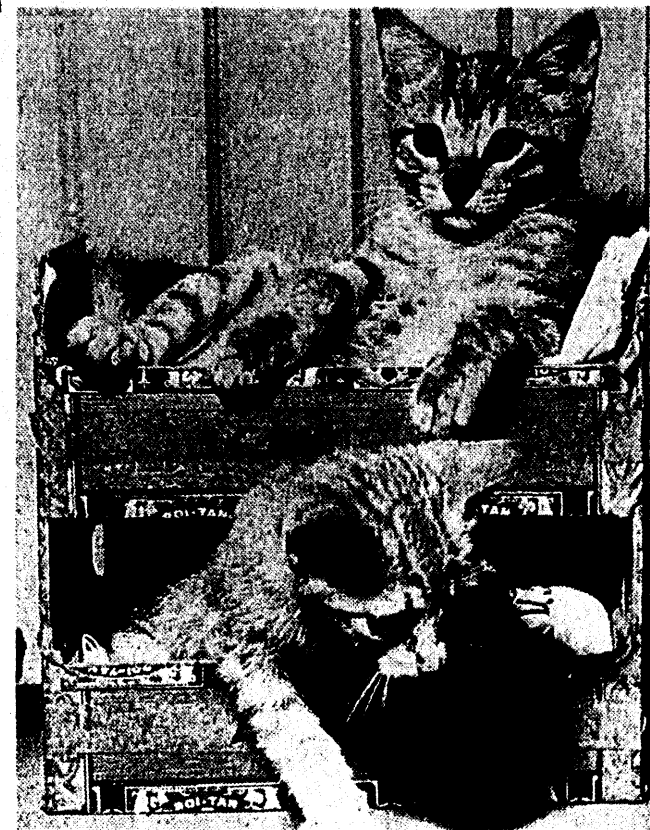

After breaking off the Greenland ice cap, bergs meander about 2½ years, traveling some 2,000 miles and often getting trapped in bays along the Labrador coast before reaching the tail of the Grand Banks as a threat to shipping.

Capt. Davis estimates that only an infinitesimal percentage of the bergs complete the course.

Two cutters, the Evergreen and Acushnet, and three and sometimes four planes—B-17s—are guarding the steamer lanes this year. Usually the patrol ends in mid-July, but Capt. Davis does not see termination before mid-August.

Icebergs are, of course, fresh and not salt, and when afloat in the ocean, approximately nine tenths of their bulk is submerged. One recently reported was 600 feet long and 250 feet above the water. Underwater measurement could only be estimated.

PACKED WITH HUMOR

An Excellent Book About Everyday Married Living

RALLY ROUND THE FLAG, BOYS, by Max Shulman (Doubleday, $3.50).

This should be must reading for every married couple in the land. Shulman hits closer to home in this book than most of us would like to believe.

Although the novel is funny and packed with a bunch of wholesome laughs, it is an excellent expose on married life in these United States today.

Just as Shulman points out, too many married couples take everything too much for granted. But the way the subject is treated, it is a tonic, breezy and a joy for readers of all tastes, persuasions, estates and sexes. The people are real; the lumps they get could be your own.

Setting for the novel takes place in a Connecticut commuting village where discontented country husbands live with their discontented country wives; where old Yankee settlers wish the communists would vanish in a puff of smoke, but must them mercilessly until they do; where teen-aged disciples of the late James Dean prove you don't have to be underprivileged to be delinquent; where frenzy lies fitfully beneath a rustic patina.

Into this type setting a new and highly volatile ingredient is tossed; the U. S. Army installs a Nike guided missile base, with results that are explosively funny.

Shulman pokes away with rare humor at a whole range of subjects from guided missiles to misguided marriages, from television surveys to garbage disposal plants, from country music to Little League, from barracks rooms to rumpus rooms.

It also pictures a housewife who can become so wrapped up in community projects that she ignores her husband, driving him into the arms of another scheming housewife, whose husband spends too much time at his job.

This is probably Shulman's best book to date. It is full of warmth and wisdom and humor—a trade mark of the author since he first appeared on the American scene 13 years ago with Barefoot Boy With Check.

Civil War In Photographs Gives Good New Insight Into National Conflict

By ROBERT D. PRICE

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (AP)—In 1911, the American Review of Reviews published the monumental 10-volume "Photographic History of the Civil War." It was issued in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the war.

Now, with the war's centennial in the offing, the "Photographic History" has been republished, by Thomas Yoseloff, to give the present generation new insight into the character of our national conflict.

The "Photographic History" was a sensation when it was first published, with its 3,500 pages and nearly 4,000 photographs. With the equally famous "Battles and Leaders," also republished recently, it became the keystone of Civil War research.

At the time of original publication, Editor Francis Trevelyan Miller commented upon a lack of popular interest "in this remarkable war." He recognized the multiple and unique attractions of "this strange crisis in civilization," and could ascribe the public apathy to it only to the fact that "this is not a military nation. . . . The great heart of American citizenship knows little of military maneuver."

Miller would have no reason to complain today. The current enthusiasm for Civil War matters challenges understanding. In an

ABOUT RECORDS

Post-War Religious Revival Has Belated Effect On Record Sales

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

AP Newsfeatures Writer

The post-war religious revival is having a belated but pronounced effect on album record sales. Hymns, carols, cantatas and other religious music always do a bustling business in the Christmas season, but seldom before have done much during the rest of the year.

Now, perhaps for the first time, religious albums have moved high in the best seller lists during the summer months and bid fair to remain there.

Tennessee Ernie's "Hymns" (Capitol), a dignified baritone rendering of old favorites of all faiths, has jumped from 15th to ninth place in album sales and is climbing steadily.

"The House of the Lord," featuring hymns by the Roger Wagner Chorale, also a Capitol album, has made a surprise invasion of the top 20 list, despite its rather somber and at times overly dramatic mood.

Pope singer Joni James leaves the every day work of rock 'n' roll far behind in MGM's "Give Us This Day—Songs of Inspiration." At times, she cannot soar with her material, as in "Psalms Angelicus" and "The Lord's Prayer," but in less demanding numbers more in the pop vein, like "Bless This House" and "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You," her voice is warm and vibrant.

Tenor Roland Hayes, on a Vanguard label, superbly sings "My Songs," a collection of Negro spirituals that are approaching semi-classical status in American music. Included are such old favorites as "Deep River," "Go Down Moses" and "Dry Bones," and the lesser known "I'm Troubled Heav'n," "Two Wings" and "You Must Come In, By and Through the Lamb."

London Records offer 15-year-old evangelist Renee Martz singing "Revivalist Songs." Although famous throughout the south as an evangelistic preacher, this pretty teen-ager adopts a pop singing style for religious ballads like "Peace in the Valley," "Why Not Try Prayer" and "Tenderly, He Watches."

Folk singer Stuart Hamblen, son of a Texas traveling preacher, evokes boyhood memories of camp meetings in RCA Victor's "Grand Hymns." Ably assisted by Paul Mickelson's choir and orchestra, Hamblen sings such favorite anthems as "The Old Rugged Cross," "His Eye Is On The Sparrow," and "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder." The album is also distinguished by an excellent non-Dixieland rendering of "When the Saints Go Marching In."

Even spokenword records have gotten in step with the public demand for religious themes on records. Decca's excellent Parnassus series features a long playing album entitled "Words to Live By—Prayers and Inspirations." Readers Arnold Moss, R. E. Johnson and Jay Jostyn offer a varied repertoire that ranges from Browning's "Recessional" and King's "The Year at the Spring" to St. Paul's discourse on charity and the Sermon on the Mount.

Two Chicks, Song Writers Theme Of New Gay Novel

LOVE AMONG THE CANNIBALS. By Wright Morris. Harcourt, Brace.

A team of song writers and two chicks, out on the beach in a whimsical Hollywood-land, and then on the beach in the topsy-turvy world of Acapulco, are put through their naughtily but illuminating paces in Morris's gayest and most entertaining novel.

The men waived off while in the Army. Irwin Macgregor had a magic way with a piano. Earl Horter did the lyrics; he had a trick, as he, who tells the story, acknowledges, of forgetting all he knew. He could doctor up a cliché till it looked fresh and original to the millions who get their music in night clubs.

Earl had the brains, but it was a knack of doing things with the irate and superficial that makes them a handsome living. One of the chicks, Billie, from Memphis, just can't believe the pair she picks up are Macgregor and Horter. She's Mac's babe. The other is Eva, and Earl's.

With a movie to do, the writers pack up to go to Mexico "on location," as they pretend, and the girls go, too. Billie has no voice, but a talent—a talent for latching onto Mac.

Eva thinks life is a gift, and why hoard it?

There is the constant tingling threat of bouts of hair pulling and scratching; the wise author's spoofing; the laughable inadequacies of Billie, the Mexican land-lord and the vacation resort. Here in the double guise of fine comedy and touching sentiment is a splendid sorting out of the true and genuine from the false and shoddy. You will smile, and sigh, and smile and sigh again in this masterly novel which will surely add a host of new readers to Morris's discriminating audience.

RESENTFUL CAESAR

Series Of Essays Has A Singular Fascination

TIBERIUS: THE RESENTFUL CAESAR. By Gregorio Maranon. Duell, Sloan and Pearce.

Roman emperor on the death of Augustus in 14 A.D. Born 42 B. C., died 37 A. D., Tiberius became that gave him almost a quarter century of absolute rule.

Augustus had heirs he much preferred to the taciturn Tiberius, who had the luck to outlast them. As aspirant he had a couple of friends at court—his mother, Livia, had divorced his father to become Augustus' second wife; his own second wife was Augustus' dissolute daughter, Julia. When he became emperor he disposed of rivals, suspected rivals, enemies, indeed some friends by the devices common to the cold-blooded age: knife, axe, strangling, rope, poison, and starvation.

It has been supposed by some historians that Tiberius was as dissipated in his relations with women, men, boys and girls. Maranon says no. He credits him with considerable sexual timidity, if "credits" is the word, but as a corollary blames him for what he calls a ruthless, puritanical, merciless, ungenerous concept of justice. Developing resentment into a passion, he lived to come into the limitless power that enabled him, as we say, to get even.

This book seems rather a series of essays than a connected unit of work, but it has a singular fascination. Tall, muscular, disfigured by sores, an able general and administrator, a scholar, irreligious, brimming with resentment, master of his world and yet a grim, savage and bloodthirsty barbarian—that was Tiberius, great and repugnant emperor.

The justly famed Mathew Brady was, of course, the greatest. His work set the pace. But there were many others who made substantial contributions to this vast picture record—Alexander Gardner, Capt. A. J. Russell, official photographer for the War Dept., Sam Cooley, George Barnard, and a surprising output from the Confederate side, including a series taken by A. D. Lytle for the Confederate secret service. In effect, Lytle was a pioneer in espionage by camera.

Mist of Battle

Photography was an infant profession in the 1860s. Skilled though the cameramen were, ingenious as they might be in getting maximum results with their primitive equipment, their art was not yet capable of photographing motion. Thus, we do not get closer to actual battle than the vagrant mist of an exploding shell.

Perhaps it was just as well. The inability to photograph front line action led Brady and his contemporaries to concentrate on what Commager calls "the house-keeping details"—how the armies moved and lived, their weapons, fortifications, prisons and hospitals—an enduring record which brings us closer to an understanding of the character of the war and the men who fought it than could possibly have been otherwise achieved.

In effect, the "Photographic History," viewed as an entity is neither a history nor wholly photographic. Less than two of the current volumes are devoted to the story of the battles and the campaigns.

Composers Now Work For Phonographs

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UP)—The increasing interest in records, helped along by the development of long plays and hi-fi, has encouraged writers and composers to work directly for the phonograph.

Two outstanding new examples of this specialized composition are "Frankie and Johnny" (M-G-M) and "Pinocchio" (Decca).

"Frankie and Johnny" is a new treatment of a traditional ballad. The plot is essentially the same with the no-gooder getting his come-uppance from the woman he done wrong.

But Robert Coert has taken an entirely new approach to the musical side, discarding the old familiar strain in favor of a fresh score. With excellent collaboration from lyricist Dion McGregor, Coert has created a most enjoyable phonograph musical that may start a trend.

The "Pinocchio" LP also presents a fresh approach to an old story about a bad little marionette that couldn't keep out of trouble. Milton De Lugg's music furnishes an excellent vehicle for "Jerry Mahoney" to essay the title role behind the narration of Paul Winchell.

Platter chatter—Popularity of calypso during the first six months of 1957 may have set the scene for another foreign type of music—Hawaiian strings—to become dominant in the latter part of this summer. Decca's "The Magic Islands," with Alfred Newman and his orchestra and the Ken Darby Singers, is a musical compendium of traditional Hawaiian music and "Hawaiian Guitar" (Mercury) offers the Stars of Hawaii in another fine collection of musical cool summer breezes. . . . Best of the new Hawaiian singles are "No Huhu" by Johnnie Eager (RCA-Victor) and Rusty Draper (Mercury).

Stirs Memories

Reminiscent—For those who remember way back when and long for those days, "Hits of the '20s" (RCA-Camden) will offer some comfort. A variety of stars, such as Vaughn Monroe ("Avalon"), Dinah Shore ("Star Dust") and Sammy Kaye ("Always") are featured.

Record of the Week—Julie London's Liberty recording of "Dark." This is a fine effort by an outstanding singer and it is backed by an equally emotional "I Had To Be You."

Foursome to Watch—If the Kirby Stone Four's rendition of "S-S-S Wonderful" and "Raven" (Cadence) is a promise of things to come, this group may emerge as the outstanding quartet of the year.

One Failure Just Leads To Another; A Sad Life

CAMERON HILL. By Martin Flavin. Harper.

Police arrest a man for accosting two women, who however don't press charges. Penned up with the drunks, he's about to be freed when the murder of a worn prostitute is discovered. He is accused of it, and confesses—he picked her up, took her to the hotel from which she prowled the neighborhood, and strangled her with a dog's leash he carried in his pocket.

He is Cameron Bradley. He looks like a bum but a shave and wash disclose traces of gentility. The police inspector worms out of him the story of his oddly thwarted life.

His father couldn't stand living with his mother, and she couldn't stand living without someone under her thumb. Did Cameron like a girl? His mother promptly remarked on her faults, her family, her religion, her hair.

But he must learn for himself. He wanted to be a doctor but the Bradley money, after his father's you don't stop reading.

death, petered out. Besides, he wanted to spend his share on the married life to which his mother objected. He tried it, and tried again. He had other friendships. But he had the habit of starting off on the wrong foot and staying on it, or lacked the stick-to-it-iveness of the good husband and lover. He had been conditioned to failure, and everything contrived to hold him down.

It's sort of sad, but you never care much. Why couldn't he snap out of it? You keep thinking that if Pulitzer prize winner Flavin was smart enough to tie him up in all these knots, Flavin could untie him, too, if it pleased him. But Bradley money, after his father's you don't stop reading.

SUCCEEDS HEBERT

Harrison Named As Head Of School Of Law At LSU

BATON ROUGE, Aug. 3 (AP)—The Louisiana State University today named Milton M. Harrison dean of the LSU law school succeeding Paul M. Hebert.

The LSU board of supervisors appointed Harrison, who has been assistant to LSU President Troy Middleton the past seven years, effective Aug. 12.

Hebert resigned last July 1 to enter private law practice. Prof. Henry G. McMahon has been acting dean.

The board also approved a $19,638,403 budget for the 1957-58 school year, based on total revenues of $19,679,042.

The 41-year-old Harrison was born in Gibsland, La. He graduated from Louisiana Tech and received his law degree from LSU.

During World War II, Harrison served as a personnel officer in the Army in the Pacific theater and later was in the legal division at Tokyo assigned to war crimes.

In 1946, he joined the LSU law school faculty and also became assistant to the dean, serving there until he became Middleton's assistant in 1950.

Married Man

Harrison is married and has three children.

In establishing the 1957-58 operating budget, Middleton said $353,000 went for civil service pay raises and $629,988 for increases to the academic staff.

"This gave academic employees about 50 per cent of what was requested from the state," Middleton said, explaining civil service employees got the full scale and half the permissive step increases.

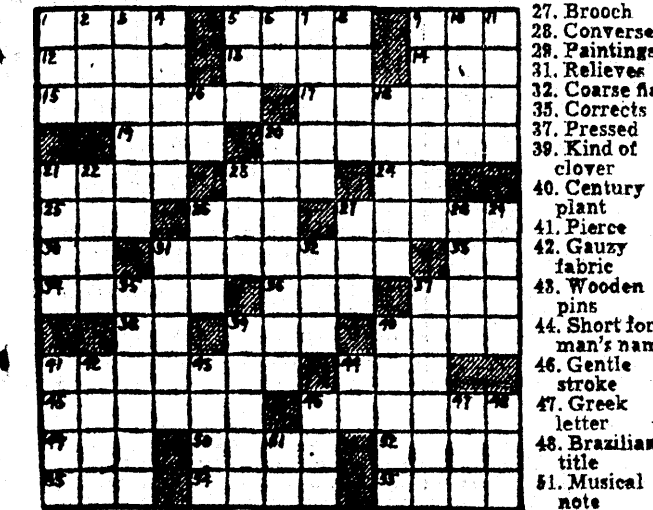

Middleton added, "for the first time the university gave general rather than specific consideration to the competitive factors by fields by comparison with salary levels by areas of study at other ranking institutions."

"Thus, the college of engineering was given salary funds for an increase of 18 per cent in its payroll; whereas, the school of music was given but 10 per cent, for example," he said. "Some areas in the college of arts and sciences, such as zoology, botany, mathematics received greater percentages than the humanities, for example."

ABOUT ANIMALS

Lollypop Farm Plays Grandma To Thousands Of City Children

By DICK WHALEN

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—It's the nearest thing to having a grandmother on a farm.

That's Lollypop Farm, the local

Humane Society's way of teaching city-raised children how to make friends with animals.

Besides being the home of such barnyard regulars as Billy the Goat, Mary Ann the Lamb and Gussie the Goose, the farm has a flock of animals that grandmother certainly never saw in her barnyard.

Long-necked llamas look down their noses on two dozen ducks. African pygmy donkeys frisk with a herd of goats. Tiny, English fallow deer pick their way daintily among the sheep and lambs.

And more city children than grandmother ever saw mingle with the animals in the outdoor corral. On weekends, up to 2,000 visit Lollypop Farm.

C. Raymond Naramore, director of the Humane Society of Rochester and Monroe County, sums up the idea behind the farm in two words: "Humane Education."

"You can't teach children kindness and love for animals by showing slides and telling stories," he says. "You have to show them how to feed and pet the animals."

Lollypop Farm does just that. A youngster finds out that he can't get close to a flock of ducks by chasing them. But with a handful of grain spilled on the ground and he has more ducks scuttling and quacking at his feet than he knows what to do with.

"You'd be surprised," says Naramore, "how many children are terrified by a soft, woolly lamb. We teach them that there's nothing to be afraid of, if they treat the animals gently."

The animals, in turn, have been brought up to treat the children gently. Most of them, including the deer, goats, donkeys and llamas have been bottle-raised from birth on farms or in homes.

The farm population also includes raccoons, skunks, crows, pigeons, guinea pigs, rabbits, squirrels, and even two monkeys that someone got tired of having around the house.

The smaller animals live in cages and low pens, but the larger ones and the ducks roam the fenced enclosure with the visitors.

ALL FOR SCIENCE

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Four doctors at the Medical College of Virginia took a lot of ribbing from associates when they departed for Florida and a week of "scientific fishing."

"I hate fishing," said Dr. E. Lovell Becker, head of the MCV renal electrolyte (kidney) laboratory. "I can't understand anybody who has nothing better to do than to sit all day and fish."

Object of the trip, which has been four years in the making and was prefaced by a stack of correspondence four inches thick, is to discover as much as possible about many types of fish as the group can obtain. They hope to discover something of the evolutionary development of kidneys—how they overcome changes in environment.

SHEPPARD MURDER

Many Confessions Since Doctor's Wife Was Slain

By ROBERT L. SHAFFER

CLEVELAND, Aug. 3 (AP)—Just one week after Marilyn Sheppard was savagely bludgeoned to death in her home along Lake Erie, police had a confession in the widely publicized July 4, 1954, murder.

The confessor was a woman. She telephoned from a tavern and in hushed tones told police she slew in vengeance for receiving poor medical treatment from Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, Marilyn's husband.

It was just the first in a series of confessions and phony tips authorities received before and after the sensational trial in which Dr. Sheppard was convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to life in the Ohio Penitentiary.

None of the previous confessions, however, received the amount of attention that has been focused recently on Donald J. Wedler, a fugitive from a Florida road camp who would have been 20 when Marilyn Sheppard was struck with 35 blows from a weapon that police never found.

Sheppard's chief defense counsel, William Corrigan, questioned Wedler at length in Deland, Fla., last week. His verdict: "I think this guy did it." He prepared a 1,200-word statement and Wedler signed it.

But Corrigan was close-mouthed on what he might do with the statement in view of the flat rejection of Wedler's confession by authorities here who questioned him earlier.

Cuyahoga County Coroner Samuel R. Gerber, one of three men close to the original investigation who went to Florida to question Wedler, called the youth with the blond sideburns "a liar."

Dr. Corbett called it the 26th confession to the murder of 31-year-old Marilyn Sheppard, who was four months pregnant at the time.

A few Sheppard confessions and tips have been publicized. One such confession came from another Florida fugitive, Billy O. Williams, 27, of Tampa, who ran away from a criminal proceeding and wound up in a Trenton, N.J., jail in September 1954.

A Cleveland detective, dispatched to Trenton, decided that if Williams ever had been in Cleveland it was "a long time ago."

Then there was Henry Fuehrer, 51, an ex-convict who turned up in Cincinnati in November 1954 with the tale that he was with a burglar who murdered Mrs. Sheppard. It was not until Fuehrer had been brought to Bay Village (where he admitted picking up a "late newspaper" to refresh his store of information) that a detective learned that Fuehrer was in the workhouse at Knoxville, Tenn., the Sunday of the murder.

Police also checked out a number of tips like the telephone call that told them the "bushy-haired killer" was at a Cleveland hotel. When they reached the designated hotel room they found a Louisville, Ky., businessman with "very short hair."

The bushy-haired description had entered the case in the statement of Sheppard, who told of being struck by a man with bushy hair when he answered his wife's scream and said he later struggled with the invader outside on the beach.

Sheppard, who was 30 at the time of the slaying, recently looked at a picture of Wedler and said he had a vague feeling this might be the man who knocked him out on the stairs at the Bay Village home.

While Corrigan would not say what his next step would be, Prosecutor John T. Corrigan (no relation) said if the Wedler confession is submitted to him he will consider whether to take it before a grand jury.

An indictment by the grand jury would be necessary before the State of Ohio could ask Florida to extradite its prisoner to face charges here. Wedler is awaiting trial on escape charges. He was serving a 10-year sentence for robbery when he escaped, Florida officials said.

But official sources were doubtful whether a confession alone would be sufficient to take the matter before a grand jury. They said a confession probably would have to be backed up by some tangible evidence such as a murder weapon.

Angola Convict Rejected For LSU Courses

BATON ROUGE, Aug. 3 (AP)—Louisiana State University today decided it didn't want any jailbirds taking LSU courses.

At least not while they are in jail. The action by the LSU board of supervisors was touched off by a request from a state penitentiary convict to take extension courses by mail.

"I don't think it can hurt LSU," commented member Mrs. Margaret Dixon of Baton Rouge. "He's just trying to use his time while he's cooling his heels at Angola."

"Besides," she added, "he's already a graduate of our law school."

Dean of the university Charles Smith replied, "I don't think our curriculum should be used for rehabilitation. I don't think it proper to let him enter LSU—and all courses are given for credit—while he has forfeited his other rights of citizenship."

By a voice vote, the board adopted a resolution which said no ex-convict, or convict, could be considered for application until he has been pardoned, discharged by a parole board or served his full sentence.

This same provision would apply to anyone committed to a correctional institution. In both cases, any application must be approved by a special review committee.

WRITERS RAPPED

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Communist leaders in Borsod County, Northeastern Hungary, say they have been forced to conclude that many writers in the region are "quite unreliable, from an ideological standpoint."

It seems Janos Haldi wrote a short story in which a steel worker called for the denationalization of industry and a return to private enterprise. Poet Ferenc Hudy compared the lot of the Hungarian people to "the fate of the Earth" on which people are forever trampling. And Laszlo Sandor produced a "literary abomination" in which the Soviet Union appears as a monster moving on caterpillar treads.

None of the offending works was published, but the Miskolc newspaper Eszaki Magyarorszag (Northern Hungary) printed a letter of complaint about the writers, signed by its own editor and a local party official.

WHY GROW OLD

Don't Let Details, Duty To Others Make You Forget Concern For Self

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It can happen to you! Unless you take steps to avoid it you are almost certain to become trapped by the myriad details of daily living, by your responsibilities and what others expect of you.

You'll wonder what happened to your plans for self improvement and self expression. What happened to the courses you wanted to study, the things you meant to do? What happened to the books you planned to read, the exercises you meant to take, the skin care you were going to give yourself?

What happened to those pounds you were determined to lose? It is admirable to take our responsibilities seriously and to be helpful to others but we also owe ourselves something. We have an obligation to ourselves to take care of our health, to develop our personalities, to improve our looks, to have some time alone, to delay all of the processes of deterioration for as long as possible.

You'll Have More For Others

Nothing so graces the world or a home as a healthy, charming, lovely looking woman. So in saving a little time for yourself you actually have more to give others. You have more in beauty and graciousness, in humor and self-confidence. Even the most sparkling personality can be dulled by fatigue and physical disability.

while a vibrant outlook builds health.

All women want to remain attractive and even to improve on what nature gave them. It is just that they get into a rut of hurry and responsibility and hecticness. They keep planning to begin tomorrow what they probably will never begin unless they start today!

Marathon

I think the fact that self-improvement may seem very vague is another reason for procrastination. It is discouraging to start out unless you know what you can reasonably expect to accomplish in a given length of time, and unless you understand how to go about it.

As most of you know I run my 8-Week Self-Improvement Marathon each January for this very reason, to give you an incentive and all the help you need. At this time each year I publish some of the letters from Marathon winners in order to encourage those of you who may have procrastinated.

If you planned to join Marathon last January for a loss of 20 pounds in eight weeks, or to ban other defects in beauty, but failed to do so or missed the series, you may want my Marathon booklet. If so, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address

Tree Trimmer Has Close Call

John M. Byrd gave credit to his name yesterday in escaping injuries in a tree-trimming accident.

Byrd was trimming the top of a tree in Hasley Cemetery, West Monroe for a local construction company when the cut portion of the tree fell and spun back upon his leg. His safety belt prevented his falling to the ground and possible further injury.

He was helped down from the tree by other workmen and taken to St. Francis hospital where it was learned that no bones were broken.

Mme. Fath Finds High Style Fight Strenuous

By BARBARA MILLER
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS (UP) — "The terrible responsibility of this haute couture business has made me ill," says Genevieve Fath, who recently announced the closing of her fashion house.

"This decision to close has nothing to do with money problems," said the widow of dressmaker Jacques Fath in an interview. "I just can't take the work any longer. Jacques illness started like that and I don't want to sacrifice myself in the same. My son is only 14, and he needs me."

Since the couturier's death from leukemia three years ago, his wife has struggled to keep customers rolling in. She took over the business because of Fath's devoted workers, she said, "but they have left me one by one."

Prices Cut

Originally the second largest fashion house in Paris with some 600 employees, the Fath establishment dwindled to about 200 workers. Many were dismissed last fall when Mme. Fath slashed prices to save the business.

The Fath label then sold for as low as $150, compared with a $600 minimum in Jacques' day.

His widow searched for another couturier to take over, but had no luck.

"Nobody has the talent of my wonderful husband," she explained. "I can't let Jacques' name be associated with bad designing."

It has been said that Fath knew what women wanted to wear before they themselves knew.

Genevieve Fath also refuses to continue the boutique business, contrary to earlier plans. But she cannot bear to give up the building, so she will keep the perfume and stocking business.

Since 1944, the House of Fath has been quartered in a nobleman's former country manor.

Jacques Fath also left his wife with an elegant Paris mansion, a large Riviera villa and a moated, 300-year-old chateau near Paris. The chateau once was the scene of fancy-dress balls where 3,000 guests ate a formal dinner on the lawn.

The fashion salon will close with its largest single order. The British ambassador's wife, Lady Gladwyn Jebb, bought her entire wardrobe of seven gowns there when Queen Elizabeth visited Paris recently.

Mme. Fath seems to hope for a miracle to save the salon, but she admits she cannot cope with it. "People just don't realize how tired I am," she said. "Underneath all the rouge and powder, I look just terrible."

MR. AND MRS. JAMES RUSSELL HENRY

Henry-Moffett Vows Pledged By Candlelight In Church Rites

The Jonesboro Methodist Church was the scene of the marriage of Miss Linda Lou Moffett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Moffett and James Russell Henry, son of

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Henry of Winnsboro. The double ring ceremony was performed by Reverend W. D. Milton of Monroe. The altar was attractively decorated with arrangements of white gladiolus, greenery and white candles.

Mrs. Joe Key, at the organ, presented a program of pre-nuptial music. The candle lighters were Misses Doris Lockhart and Alice Gains, who were dressed in pastel yellow nylon organza waltz length dresses featuring a long torso and bouffant skirts. They each wore a headpiece of yellow flowers. To complete the ensemble they wore white aster wrist corsages.

Immediately following the lighting of the candles, Mrs. Sam Ledbetter sang "Story of Golden Promise."

As the traditional wedding march was being played, the bride entered on the arm of her father. The bride's dress was fashioned of white tulle and chantilly lace over taffeta. The molded bodice and long sleeves, tapered to a point at the wrists, were of lace. Seed pearls accented the lace flower appliques which were placed around the low rounded neckline. Her fingertip veil of illusion outlined in lace, was caught to a halo of dainty seed pearls and fell gracefully over the bouffant skirt. She carried a white Bible topped with a purple-throated white orchid; streamers tied with lovers knots and holding lilies of the valley, fell in cascades from the bouquet.

Miss Glenda Moffett, sister of the bride, was chosen as her maid of honor. Her dress was of pink crystallette, fashioned in the identical design as the candlelighters. With this she wore pink shoes, gloves and half hat. She carried an arrangement of white asters. The bridesmaids, Miss Jo Ann Henry, sister of the groom, and Miss Kay DeCou wore pastel blue nylon organza dresses fashioned by the same design as the candle lighters. To complete their costumes they wore white shoes and gloves, head pieces of blue flowers and carried an arrangement of pink asters.

Little Miss Jocille Meredith was the flower girl. Her beauty was enhanced with her dainty pink eyelet embroidery dress featuring a square neckline, fitted bodice and full gathered skirt. She wore a pink flower head piece and pink shoes. She carried a most attractive pink and gold basket filled with rose petals which she scattered in the path of the bride.

glass punch bowl. Assisting with the courtesies were Misses Loyce Kilpatrick, Donna Shively and Elsie Smart and Mrs. E. L. Meredith, Jr. Miss Becky Barr registered the guests. Mrs. Joe Key rendered the selections on the piano during the reception.

The bride chose a gray silk shantung ensemble for traveling with which she wore white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride and groom are attending Louisiana Tech.

Miss Ann M. Boyd Is Married To Dr. James Leroy Padgett, Friday, At Collinston Methodist Chapel

The Reiley Memorial Methodist Church at Collinston, was the lovely setting on Friday evening, August 2, for the wedding of Miss Ann Maurice Boyd and Dr. James Leroy Padgett. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy M. Boyd, and Dr. Padgett is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merl L. Padgett, of Swan Lake Plantation, Collinston.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Donald MacArthur was costumed in a dress of ballet blue silk organza over a full taffeta skirt, fashioned with a shirred bodice, sweetheart neckline and cap sleeves. A matching blue oandean was worn with a veil over the eyes.

The bridesmaids Miss Louise McFarland, Mrs. William Leftoy Mattison, Mrs. Ernest Michael Schofield, wore dresses and head-dresses matching that worn by the matron. All of the bouquets were southern nosegays of white chrysanthemums.

The groom stood with the Rev. George Pomeroy, and the best man, Dr. John D. Mese, as he awaited his fiancée.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who presented her to the groom. Her lovely gown of blush silk-cloud peau de soie was made with a sabrina neckline, scalloped and appliqued in Pointe de Lyon lace on the snug bodice, touched deftly with lace appliques on the gored skirt which swirled at ballerina length above her satin

slippers. Her crown was of miniature blush pink pearls from which fell her shoulder length veil of illusion.

At the conclusion of the double ring ceremony a reception was held in Andale Place, the home of the bride's parents.

The reception rooms were decorated with tall baskets of gladioli, stock and fern and summer flowers in pastel shades of pink. The bride's table bore an arrangement of white gladioli and smilax interspersed with glowing tapers.

In the receiving line the bride's mother as noted in a chantilly lace model, fashioned as a sheath, with a v-neckline, and panels of silk marquisette. Her hat was of white satin, trimmed in pearls and sequins, and she wore a white corsage. The mother of the groom was attired in a sheath of dusty-rose lace, fashioned with a chiffon draped neckline. The panels of chiffon followed the plunging back and extended in floating panels to the hem line. Her hat was also of white satin with pearl trim, and she wore a white corsage.

Mrs. Roland Berry assisted at the cake service and Mrs. Victor Henderson presided at the guest register. Alternating in serving from the punch bowls were the Mesdames W. H. Griffin, G. W. Daigarn, James DeMoss, Alton Norsworthy and Jack Waldrop.

Tea girls were Miss Joyce Tarkenton, Miss Nar Dalton Pipes, Mrs. Carl Noble and Mrs. Victor Per-ballerina length frock, who was at ballerina length above her satin slippers. Her crown was of miniature blush pink pearls from which fell her shoulder length veil of illusion.

WORK TO MUSIC

One small pocket book portable radio may be clipped to the belt, worn with small earphone that brings the music to you even with roar of the lawn mower. They may be worn on the street too without attracting too much attention.

Double strands of basting thread won't tangle as readily. If each strand is knotted separately.

Household Hints

If greens or salad vegetables show any sign of dryness, wash or sprinkle them before storing in the refrigerator.

Hang socks or trousers by the legs after laundering. The wet weight will remove most of the wrinkles so that less pressing is necessary.

Soot - streaked painted walls, woodwork and window sills are best washed before the grime sets. Use clean soft cloths wrung from warm soap or detergent suds.

American Family Moves Outdoors

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Future historians probably will refer to the present period of Americana as the era of backyard living.

Never before have so many housewives been freed from hot kitchens, never have so many husbands and fathers taken on the role of back-yard chef, never have so many families discovered that meals are more fun when cooked and served outdoors, in the good old summertime.

There's something about a charcoal fire, a chef's cap and a juicy slab of steak that expands a man's ego. He discovers it's fun to cook, when you have the proper equipment plus an admiring audience — and don't think the little woman doesn't encourage this attitude.

Wives all over the country are busy these days shopping for new and glamorous additions to Pop's barbecue equipment. Grills, asbestos gloves, barbecue aprons, long-handled forks, gleaming skewers, colorful outdoor table settings all add to the general festivity.

The craze for outdoor living has ushered in practically a whole new category of industries, supplying the accessories for backyard cooking, serving and entertaining. Barbecue units range from the small portable grill that can be tucked into the luggage compartment of an automobile to elaborate jobs designed to cook an entire meal in style. Some even have electric rotisseries.

Skewers are dressed up with fancy handles and come neatly packaged in their own hanging racks. Serving pieces bear the names of some of America's best-known industrial designers, and accessories are conversation pieces.

Designer Marion V. Dorn has a number of suggestions for setting an outdoor table, all of which boil down to:

"Keep it pretty but practical." In a current group of table settings planned for summer entertaining, Miss Dorn uses modern almost unbreakable melamine dinnerware, which comes in many patterns, has the design and color molded clear through and does not chip. A good idea when dishes may drop on stone terraces, she points out.

Fashionettes

The little red dress threatens to replace the little black dress as a basic item in women's wardrobes this fall and winter. The New York Fashion Group, in a preview of fall style trends, reports "red is the single most important color family." Blues rate next, said the group. Other colors seen frequently include purples, magentas, yellows, and bright and dull greens.

The arrival of the Mayflower II has inspired the Puritan look in children's fashions. One Dallas firm, Johnston, introduces a whole group of Miss Mayflower dresses with tight-fitting bodices, large white Puritan collars and cuffs, and brass buckles and buttons.

Restaurant Men Analyze Diners

By FRED DANZIG United Press Staff Correspondent NEW YORK (UP) — Restaurant owners now are dabbling in diner analysis. They don't get the customer on a couch—they just take notes as their customers sit and eat.

A restaurant magazine (Restaurant Management) recently concluded a survey of 4,000 American restaurant owners and managers to get the low-down on high tension during mealtime. This tension is described as "that rushed, nervous feeling at meals."

Fifty-six per cent of the restaurant owners questioned believe men suffer more from mealtime tension than women, but the latter are more demonstrative.

The survey found that men show more impatience and irritability while waiting for service. But women will complain more about the service and the food. Men apparently try to drown their impatience and irritability in coffee. Women, besides complaining, burn up irritation by smoking cigarettes.

Most restaurant owners said more men than women are bothered by indigestion or upset stomachs after a meal.

Soft Music, Please

The questionnaire also asked about ways to cut down on mealtime tension. Eighty-five per cent of the owners said good service and friendly personnel would do the trick. Fifty-two per cent replied that comfortable surroundings — air conditioning, background music, soundproofing and good lighting — help ease tension.

Science apparently goes along with them. Experiments have shown that soft music affects the thalamus, the part of the brain which controls emotional responses and regulates breathing pulse, blood pressure and metabolism as well as appetite.

One restaurant owner complained that working women ought to ease up.

"They try to do too many things like shopping and eating during a lunch break," he pointed out.

Another said women come into his place irritable from previous encounters with store clerks and "create more confusion by not knowing what they want to eat."

Some owners said they try to strike up conversations with women customers who show signs of mealtime tension. They believe small talk between the owner and the diner helps relieve tension. But that would depend on what they're talking about.

FISH PUZZLED

Navy's Newest Whale Certainly No Jonah

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Although future use is classified, one thing about the underwater apparatus being tested here by the Navy Electronics Laboratory is sure: it certainly has the fish puzzled.

The navy calls the unusual two-man submersible the "expectant whale." Fourteen feet long, it looks like a whale, except for great bumble-bee eyes. Pushed by counter-rotating propellers, the baby sub is very maneuverable.

"It can do anything a fish or a plane can do," says John A. Beagles, superintendent of diving at the navy laboratory. "A battery operated motor drives her at speeds up to five knots, but there are two sets of pedals provided for auxiliary power."

"Two of us can pedal her as fast as a man can swim, but we don't have to resort to foot power, for the batteries will run her for two hours, which is longer than our air supply would last."

The sub's interior is always flooded underwater and its operators wear self-contained air breathing devices. The craft weighs 425 pounds, is equipped with a ballast tank, and its weight can be equalized at any depth. It can be moored on the bottom like a surface craft. When submerged, its crew can climb out to stretch their legs.

The sub has crashed a few times in murky water, but Beagles says, these crashes don't resemble those of an airplane.

"You get shaken up a bit," he explains. "You hit bottom with a sickening thud, but you have to shake the stars out of your eyes and fly away. The sub is easy to operate, but there is an art in flying it. If you are not careful it skids around corners and cracks you like a whip."

"Fish peer into the plexiglass bubbles in the bow that serve as eyes. We're wondering what will happen if we ever see a real whale watching this sub doing flip-flops at 20 fathoms."

Built by Aerojet Corp., at Azusa Calif., the baby sub is constructed of polyester-bonded glass cloth applied in various thicknesses as required for strength.

PAST AND PRESENT

Museum Building Would Be 'Dream Fulfilled'

Does Northeast Louisiana need a museum... are there enough items to make one interesting? Ask the members of The Ouachita Genealogical Historical Society and they will immediately respond, "A museum, a building where we can place the large items in a setting to show how our forefathers and mothers lived, will be a dream fulfilled."

We do need a home for our relics. Starting a museum is a very serious undertaking, bringing many problems as members of the Ouachita Genealogical and Historical Society are realizing more and more. But, thanks to the wonderful people of this area, pleas bring prompt response. Daily the possibility of a complete display grows more certain.

Though establishing a museum has many serious angles such as finding a place to store the large donations received and the constant anxiety lest many of the priceless ones be destroyed before we can get a suitable home, it has its amusing incidents. For instance, without a home for everything what happens when large relics come in? They are too large for a case but they are most important and go to make a museum.

Just visualize the "Record of the Civil War" in a kitchen, a bedroom suite in an attic and imagine your reaction if you walk into a dark room or on a porch and come face to face with manikins. Thanks to Mrs. Hays Gentry of West Monroe for presenting the manikins to the museum and we hope to have a place in the future where they can be "at home."

One item we could really use to a wonderful advantage at this time is an old "time" hat rack. We want to use it to display our written articles, papers, and such that need to be in a glass frame. For donations call Fairfax 3-

G. Cooper, Audrey Hepburn Romance In Lively Comedy

Producer-director Billy Wilder's spicy romantic comedy, "Love In The Afternoon," filmed in France for Allied Artists with Gary Cooper, Audrey Hepburn and Maurice Chevalier starred, will open today at the Jim theatre.

The gay motion picture is based on "Ariane," spicy novel authored by Claude Anet. The screenplay was written by Wilder in collaboration with I. A. L. Diamond.

Cooper is cast as a rich American, who has gained a reputation, and deservedly so, as an international Casanova—a free and easy-going man-about-town who never wants to become entangled in a serious love affair.

Miss Hepburn portrays a music student and Parisian detective's daughter who first becomes familiar with Cooper through her father's dossiers and later romances with him at clandestine meetings in his hotel suite.

Chevalier, not singing for the first time in his long screen career, is cast as Miss Hepburn's father, who unsuccessfully tries to shield his daughter from the sordid details of his work as a specialist in obtaining evidence of marital dalliance.

With the exception of a romantic picnic scene between Cooper and Miss Hepburn which was filmed in a sprawling chateau 40 miles from Paris, all of the picture was made in Paris.

John Wagon Will Install New Officers

The L. B. Faulk Post No. 13 American Legion of Monroe will hold its annual installation of officers 8 p. m. Monday at the post home on Forsythe Avenue, with John Wagon, newly elected department vice commander as official installer.

Wagon, who rose from local Legion ranks of Farmerville in two years to the second highest office in the state among Legionnaires, was responsible for the fifth district membership increase of over 20 per cent as district commander. 40 posts comprise a district. He traveled many miles speaking to each post about new blood entering the ranks of the American Legion.

Vice Commander Wagon will install as commander of the Faulk Post, Milton W. Ford, a Legionnaire with a fine record of community service. Ford, at present, is manager of the Junior American Legion baseball team, which position he has held for three years. He is also outgoing vice-commander of the post.

Sam Rubin, Jr., is outgoing commander.

All veterans, honorably discharged, who would like to join the American Legion are invited to attend this installation meeting, Wagon said.

The bidding:
West, 1 spade; North, Pass; East, Pass; South, Double.
West, 2 spades; North, Pass; East, Pass; South, 4 hearts.
West, Pass; North, Pass; East, Pass.
Opening lead: King of spades.
The player who bids his cards up to and beyond the breaking point finds that he must resort to frequent prayer. From the manner in which providence responded, it appears that South had been going for righteous living.
West opened with one spade and East declined to keep the bidding open. South's double was more or less routine. West, not vulnerable against vulnerable opponents, decided on a slight obstructive maneuver and North was pleased to stay out.
South then decided to take the bull by the horns and contracted for game.
West opened the king of spades and followed with the queen, which declarer ruffed. The outlook did not appear bright for declarer, who recognized that he was subject to the loss of three diamond tricks.
West's opening bid and East's failure to keep it alive made it all too clear that the ace of diamonds was unfavorably located so that a direct diamond play must be declared over.
Declarer, however, hit upon a scheme that would prove effective if cards broke evenly in several suits. West's rebid of the spades marked him with at least five so that East could have not more than three. Now, if clubs were reasonably divided and each of the opponents had two trumps, declarer could lay a trap from which West could not escape.
He entered dummy with the nine of trumps and ruffed a spade. He then cashed the ace, king, queen of clubs at risk of having one ruffed, for that suit must be stripped before dummy was led to the king and both opponents followed. Dummy's last spade was led and declarer shed a diamond upon it. West was in and could find no lead that would prevent declarer from fulfilling contract. A diamond would set up South's king and a spade would permit South to discard a diamond as he ruffed in dummy.

Lassiter Sets Attendance At Short Course

District Attorney Albin P. Lassiter will leave early Monday to attend the twelfth annual short course for prosecuting attorneys, which will be held at the Northwestern University School of Law, Chicago, this week. Lassiter will be the only attorney from the south to participate on the program.

This is the second year the district attorney has been invited to take part in the course, which is endorsed and recommended by the National Association of County and Prosecuting Attorneys. Attendance is restricted to attorneys holding state or federal offices as prosecutor or assistant prosecutor.

Among the outstanding members of the lecture staff will be Richard Ford, head of the department of legal medicine, Harvard University; Fred E. Inbau, professor of law, Northwestern University; Dr. C. W. Muehlberger, state toxicologist for the Michigan department of health; Bert M. Keating, district attorney, Denver, Colo.; Ordway Hilton, examiner of questioned documents, New York City; and Junius L. Allison, field director, National Legal Aid Association of Chicago. Inbau will serve as course director.

Keating was the attorney in charge of the breaking and consequent prosecution of the celebrated Graham case in Denver, the airplane bombing and multiple murder case.

Hilton was the attorney which broke the Alger Hiss case.

Check Trees For Signs Of Starvation

By Mildred Swift

Now is the time to look over your trees to see if there are signs of starvation. Dead branches near the ends of the limbs are an indication that your trees need feeding. This is not the time to fertilize, but you can make a note of the trees that must be fed next winter or early spring. Many dead twigs are danger signs and usually appear on older trees.

After these rains are over, lawn grasses will not be growing too fast during August and September. This is the time to raise the lawn mower and give the grass a chance to put on a little foliage to help manufacture food. A thorough fall feeding is of benefit to your lawn. The grass then, will be in healthy condition, with food all stored up, ready to burst forth at the first call of spring.

Youpon is a versatile shrub. By pruning lower branches it will grow into a tree such as grows in Mrs. Josie Faulk's garden in West Monroe. All varieties are evergreen. This shrub, in its natural growth is an excellent screening plant and wind break. There is a weeping variety that is lovely as a specimen plant. The little dwarf youpons have filled a need for low growing plants. I have three of these planted in my patio in the driest spot in my garden. They are three years old and have never been watered (except by rain). Not once have they ever wilted. Each year they're fertilized along with the other shrubs. I can recommend these highly. And, Jo Evans of Haphazard Plantation says youpons and hollys will pollinate each other, if they bloom at the same time.

More compliments for the crepe myrtle. On the corner of Hudson Lane and Riverfront and on Auburn between Fourth and Fifth streets, in Monroe, there are some very old plants. Pass by and just look at the beauty of the gray gnarled trunks. Some plants have as many as sixteen or eighteen trunks which add to their interest. Both crepe myrtle and youpon thrive so well in our climate here. It's just not worth while to buy plants that must be pampered. Unless of course that's your hobby and you have plenty of time.

Remember, Dr. Kimbrough says that more roses are damaged by too much fertilizer than too little. He does recommend a light sprinkling of nitrogen now and a very light pruning for those rank growers that get out of bounds. Every time you cut blooms you're pruning. Leaves make food that makes the plant. Dr. Kimbrough also says that one reason rose bushes do not grow well or live long is that too much plant and too many leaves are removed with the blooms. He recommends cutting only a few blooms the first year.

A few leaves are beginning to fall which reminds us to build that compost pile, unless you have already done that. You can use wire or unfinished lumber. Buy posts that have been treated so they'll not rot. Be sure the pen is three feet high. Other measurements can be any size you need. Then this winter, plant some kind of screening.

Food In The News
First, Miss Estelle Fournel says that milk cartons make excellent containers for frozen foods, if you'll get a good seal. That is necessary at all times to prevent freezer burn.

Though the watermelon crop is not as large as last year, we'll have all we can eat. How can

Interest Increases In Home, Farm Week

By Euna Spielman

Three more cars have registered to take those interested in attending the Farm and Home Week at L. S. U. August 12-15th. These are Mrs. J. H. Kilpatrick, Woodlawn; Mrs. D. H. McMillen, Monroe; and Mrs. John R. Smith, W. Monroe — bringing the total to eight cars. Mrs. Arthur West, Mrs. J. H. Kilpatrick and Mrs. Mobley have filled their cars. If you have not made plans for your transportation, call Mrs. O. H. Manhart, Sterlington; or Mrs. T. W. Chapman, West Monroe or Mrs. Jack Joyner, West Monroe and make your own plans.

If there are others going in their own cars and would like to take passengers at $7, let me hear from you. Let's have a large number of people from Ouachita taking advantage of this week of recreation, education, inspiration and information offered by the Extension Service of L. S. U.

Ouachita Home Demonstration Council Sending Representative To National

Mrs. Marvin Shipp, Logtown Council will represent Ouachita Council at the National Home Demonstration Council to be held at Columbus, Ohio September 8-11. Mrs. Shipp will leave Monroe September 5th on a chartered bus with delegates from several other parishes. The group will return September 20th after having visited many places of interest, as Manmouth Cave, Overton Park at Memphis, etc.

Congratulations To 4-Hers In Order
The group of boys and girls of Ouachita Parish who participated in the state contests made an enviable record. The poultry team, Jeanette Holdeman, Betty DeMoss and Wayne Farmer placed first.

Taking part in the program will be representatives of Louisiana State University, the State Department of Health, and such organizations as the Louisiana Heart Association, the American Cancer Society, the Louisiana Tuberculosis Association and the Louisiana Association for Mental Health.

Each afternoon, Tuesday through Thursday, there will be a film forum on personality development, sight saving, juvenile delinquency, and drug addiction. Let Us Talk Turkey
With beef and pork high in price and turkey cheap, let's turn to turkey. Gold sliced turkey, turkey sandwiches, turkey salad, jellied salad made with chopped cooked turkey and vegetables — all these and more can be scheduled now for August meals if you take advantage of the big supply of turkeys on markets. To keep company with those turkeys, there will be a great variety of local market-garden vegetables, tomatoes, green beans, lima beans, peas, sweet corn, green peppers and to add to local supplies there will be celery, lettuce, onions and perhaps other vegetables shipped in. Fresh peaches will continue coming and there'll be lots of canned peaches on grocery shelves. See you next Sunday.

Time To Start Thinking About Fall Flower Bulbs

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The tall pink Hall's amaryllis really is a pink spider — lily instead of an amaryllis — has been in bloom for a week or more in gardens. When this happens, it is time to look in the July and August magazines and send a postal for the catalogues of fall and spring flowering bulbs. Incidentally, some of the bulb dealers keep a few of these spectacular Hall's amaryllis in cold storage so that they will still bloom if you wish to order them immediately. (See old copies of the column for the months of July and August for further information about this bulb, the botanical name of which is Lycoris squamigera).

Now is the time to order the fall crocuses and the colchicums which also flower in the fall. Most of the catalogues of tulips and daffodils and the like now offer you these fall bloomers, too. If you wait till October when you are ordering your tulips, the fall crocuses and the colchicums will be already in flower and gone. No bulbs can be bought as late as that. Even if you did get some, the flower buds would mostly be dried up or you would not get the full performance they should give. So do it right now.

The best known of the true fall crocuses is Crocus zonatus, a tiny lavender flower. The blossoms erupt from the little corne and make big blobs of lavender pink with as many as a dozen or so buds and flowers all at once. Sometimes the seed stores and "dime stores" carry this crocus. Then you will find various other fall crocuses listed in the catalogues if your seed store does not have them. All these kinds are good here in the south. They like ordinary garden soil in a well drained place. I incorporate one third coarse sand in your soil if it is on the heavy side or mostly made from clay. A five-inch potful of finely ground bone meal per bushel of soil should go into any soil in which you are planting bulbs. The type of location in which crocuses will last permanently is a slope. If it is a sun-baked hot slope, they will like it. Gritted soil is to their liking. In fact, if it is not poor. You can scatter bone meal over the area once a year in the fall after the flowers have gone and the evergreen fine leaves are developing.

Crocuses, as we have said before in the column, have few diseases, but mice and squirrels like to eat the corms and will dig them up. Rabbits have been your columnist's worst destroyers of crocuses. Rabbits love crocus leaves in winter. A little fence two feet high, however, seems to baffle rabbits. They do not have sense enough to jump over it, so you can keep them out all winter with some of this small fencing.

Next week, we shall discuss the much larger flowered fall bulbs called colchicums. They should be ordered now, too.

Fascinating Aspects Of Gardening Leads Into Collateral Interest Or Hobbies

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
CHAPPAQUA, N. Y. — One of the fascinating aspects of gardening — or of any hobby faithfully pursued — is that it leads one into collateral hobbies or interests.

Any number of gardeners have become camera bugs after they started snapping pictures of their own blooms and mass plantings. A New England man, who started by specializing in growing iris, today is an antiques dealer specializing in pressed glass. Somewhere along the line he started collecting antiques decorated with fleur de lys, a design based on the iris and used on an enormous range of articles, from corner cupboard to toothpick holders. He learned, in the course of collecting, a lot about antiques and eventually went into the business.

Gardening leads one into studying garden lore, garden history, botany and even — if one is interested in plant names and classifications — into Latin and Greek.

There's really no telling where you'll wind up once your fancy has been caught by the pleasures of making a garden. You might even turn out to be a flower show judge, certainly the elite of the gardening world.

This being the season when many gardening groups hold local flower shows, it might be well to point out that judges — no matter what you may privately think — are not allowed much latitude for personal preference or whim in awarding blue, red and white ribbons.

Most judging is conducted on a point basis. By this scale, the perfect bloom or plant would roll up 100 points. The American Rose Society, for example, has approved the following judging scale for cut roses:

Color, 20 points.
Stem, 20.
Foliage, 15.
Form, 15.
Size, 15.
Substance, 15.

Other flower societies have also set up their judging guides for, among others, carnations, peonies, iris, chrysanthemums, gladioli, dahlias, delphinium. Some of them list such items for consideration as calyx (carnation), florescence (gladioli) and symmetry of flower spike (delphinium).

However, judging, whether in a law court or a community flower show, is a touchy business. Most handbooks for local flower shows suggest, in any, insist — that judges be brought in from the outside to eliminate any possibility of favoritism. But whether you win

Policeman Ends Duty On Force Started In 1909

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

One blistering-hot summer day in 1909, a dark-haired, good-looking young man stood by the old Monroe swimming pool, located next to the levee at the corner of Riverside and Forsythe avenue. He was one of the pool guards, and well acquainted with many of the city residents who cooled off there.

One of the people who stopped by the pool that day was Dr. A. Forsythe, then mayor of Monroe. He passed the time of day with the guard, then asked him if he would like to be on the city police force.

Frank S. Pettit considered the possibility of the new job, as the mayor continued that he was going to meet with the city councilmen that night, and the group was going to elect new police officers. Pettit agreed to a nomination for the position — the mayor stepped into his surrey, motioned to the driver to start the horses — and the pool guard went back to his job.

Elections were held that night, and Pettit was elected to the force. Forty-seven years and eleven months later, on August 2, 1957, Captain Frank Pettit was presented with a watch by the police department of Monroe, as he retired from the force.

During the near half-century that Pettit was a police officer, he advanced through the ranks from patrolman to sergeant to the position of the first police captain in Monroe — and he saw enough to fill a book, since he was absent from his job for less than 30 days during the entire time, aside from days off and vacations.

One of Six
Wearing a large white hat and a blue uniform, Pettit was one of six men on the police force of 1909. His first assignment was as patrolman. Working 12 hours a day, seven days each week, with a salary of $85 per month.

The officers patrolled up and down the streets, either walking or riding horses. Pettit recalls that many times, he had to haul a drunk onto the horse, and then bring him in to the station.

In those days, there was no jail, and the policemen kept the keys to the jail in their pockets. "We didn't have a desk sergeant, so we arrested suspects, hooked them, put them in jail, and were witnesses at their trials," Pettit revealed.

The old city hall was on the location where the present one stands, and court was held in a building on Wood street.

Many a night, death stalked the streets of Monroe, but Pettit beat it at its own game. While walking past the Missouri Pacific office late one night, a prowling figure attracted the patrolman's attention.

"What are you doing around here at this time of night," Pettit asked the tall, husky Negro.

Two Gun Blasts

The reply came in two blasts from a gun held four feet away from the policeman's body. Pettit had seen the flash of the gun and dropped to the ground an instant before the bullets sped over him. The man paused, then moved in for the third shot.

During the few seconds between shots, Pettit whipped out his service revolver, a .38, and fired point-blank at his assailant. The shells hit the Negro and passed through his body — he turned, and ran a block before falling to the pavement.

That night, Pettit didn't mention the incident to his wife, but the following morning when he told her, she replied, "Well, I thought there must have been something happening, because you got home late."

"She got accustomed to looking for me when she saw me," Pettit commented, revealing that he was fortunate to have an ideal policeman's wife — one who accepted his work as it came without unnecessary worrying.

Dissatisfied with the way small 38 bullets went right through the man allowing him to run for a distance before he fell, Pettit bought himself a .44 revolver with "larger bullets."

Caught In Act

Another time, Pettit and a second police officer caught two men in the act of breaking in the door of a local tavern. The men had guns — but with the wrong size cartridges in them — and couldn't fire at the officers.

During his days on the force, Pettit recalls going out of town many times with warrants to bring back wanted men from other communities. He went to Texas several times to take criminals into custody.

In his early days on the force, Pettit saw times when "four mules could hardly pull a bale of cotton through the downtown streets" — after rainstorms, the unpaved streets became seas of mud. At that time, the only way to reach West Monroe from Monroe, besides the railroad bridge, number of fish in Black Bayou and several other good fishing spots around the area.

Resigned From Force
Pettit actually resigned from the force on August 1, and had no idea that he was going to be honored at a ceremony in the City Hall on Friday.

Chief of Police James C. Kelly, Jr., presented a gold watch to Capt. Pettit, and stated that it was "from the members of the Police Department, in appreciation of the years he served on the force."

Adding that Pettit is "a mighty fine officer and a mighty fine man," Kelly said that the police officers hope to see a lot of Pettit, even though he will no longer be on the force. A large group of officers attended the presentation in the lounge on the second floor of the City Hall.

Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard, in commenting on Pettit's retirement, said: "Capt. Pettit has served the citizens of Monroe for many years very faithfully, and has earned his retirement. We are going to miss him around City Hall, but we wish him well in his retirement."

An engraving on the back of the watch presented Pettit tells briefly the story of the last half-century of his life: "Frank S. Pettit, Monroe Police Department, 1909-1957."

Born in Bastrop in 1883, he came to Monroe with his family when he was 1 year old, and has lived here ever since.

This year, he and his wife celebrated their fifty-second wedding anniversary. Of their four children, three are living, and are residents of the Twin Cities. They also have eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

A fishing enthusiast, Pettit has used a cane pole to make his catches, and has caught quite a

PROBLEMS ALSO

N. Y. City Also Has Segregation Troubles

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (AP)—New York City has its desegregation problems too.

With the largest Negro community in the nation, it is weighing a controversial bill to eliminate discrimination in private housing.

The bill, now before the City Council, comes on the heels of a hotly debated action by school authorities in redistricting school neighborhoods to provide greater balance between whites and non-whites in classrooms.

Hearings on the housing bill have brought out equally vocal friends and foes. Proponents, led by Mayor Robert F. Wagner, term it "right and essential." Opponents, led largely by real estate groups, have cried "tyranny" and "communism."

The bill would make it an offense to refuse to rent or sell dwelling space in apartments, tenements or residential hotel suites for reasons of race, color, religion, national origin or ancestry.

It would affect 1,787,103 housing units, but would exempt one and two family houses, of which there are some 725,000.

The city's population of roughly eight million includes about 750,000 Negroes, of whom about a third are of Puerto Rican origin.

Most of them live in Harlem slums in northern Manhattan. Others live in Brooklyn's Stuyvesant section and a few other shabby neighborhoods.

There is no law forbidding them to live elsewhere.

But many landlords, whatever their personal views on anti-discrimination, fear that if they rent an apartment to a Negro family in a white area their white tenants will move out. The landlords argue that they would be hit economically.

Proponents of the bill hold the landlords are unduly fearful and that the real estate interests have exaggerated the possible impact.

The housing bill, as presently constituted, provides a $500 penalty for violation.

However, the Council is studying proposed amendments that would eliminate the penalty and instead report reported violations to the city's Commission on Intergroup Relations. The commission would have discretion as to whether to bring court action.

Another proposed amendment would exempt cooperative apartment suites — those that are owned rather than rented by the occupant — from provisions of the bill.

No date has been set for Council action on the amendments or on the bill itself.

The pros and cons of the bill have been debated at two hearings since the measure was introduced last May 21.

Mayor Wagner, a Democrat, expressed his views in this statement:

"I believe that it (the bill) is right and essential. I believe that it ranks with our existing legislation against discrimination in employment, public accommodations and publicly assisted housing."

"I firmly believe that New York City must show the way to our fellow Americans all over the United States; that we can speak in behalf of freedom and democracy throughout the world only if our own house is in order."

In similar vein, the Very Rev. James A. Pike, dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine (Episcopalian), said:

"So long as Harlem stands as a grim symbol of segregation and undemocratic treatment of minorities, so long will New York City contribute to the distrust and hesitation with which our country's professions of democracy are viewed by the colored millions of Asia and Africa."

James Andrews, representing the Real Estate Board of New York, is a leader of the opposition.

He has termed the bill "a mischievous piece of folly" that would drive upper income groups out of the city, would lead to the lessening or complete withdrawal of mortgage loans, and generally cause the city to deteriorate.

Andrews contends that an owner of property has the right to accept tenants of his choice and to reject those he does not want, regardless of race.

"We do not believe," he said, "that the government has the right to force the owner of private property to accept a tenant, if, for reasons of his own, mortgagee descendants give him a pain in the neck."

Andrews rejected a City Council demand that the Real Estate Board apologize for saying the bill is intended "to make an election year platform for demagogues."

A city election is scheduled this year.

Andrews told the Council: "Tyranny and communism, you are the life, the fabric, the warp and wool of this bill."

Louis Whitehead, representing the Associated Builders of Greater New York, told the Council there would be a substantial lessening of mortgage funds if the bill passed.

He said the bill would destroy incentive to produce more private housing and would affect real estate values adversely.

Robert W. Dowling, president of the City Investing Co., a large lending firm, has endorsed the bill.

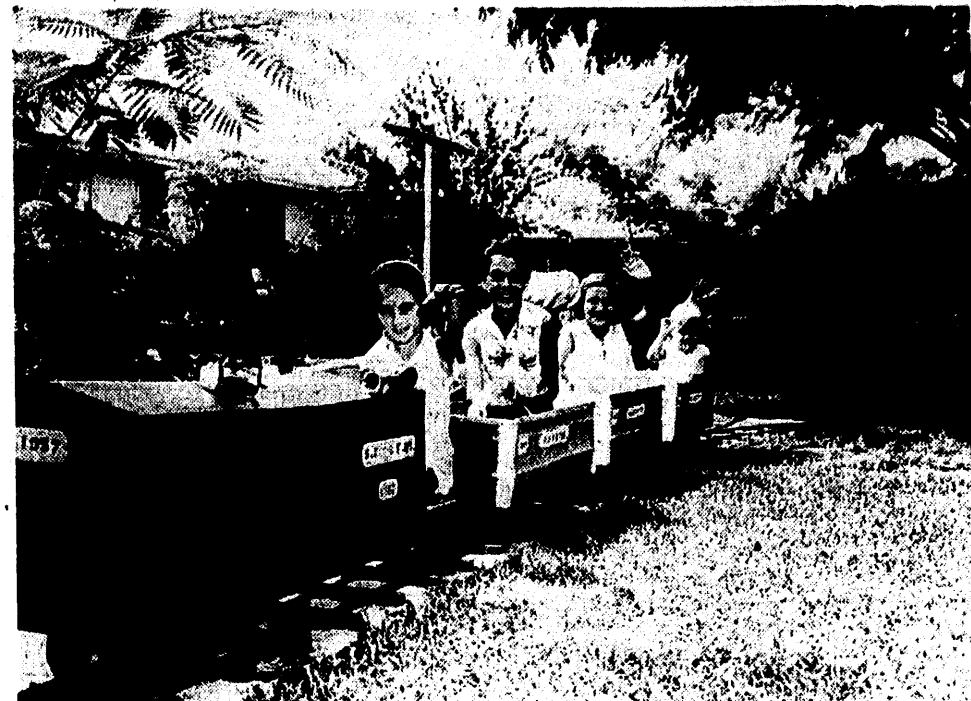

"Discrimination of any kind in the greatest democratic city the world has ever known is intolerable, and the sooner it ends legally, morally and spiritually, the better," he said.

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, has disputed assertions of real estate men that the bill would lower values and dry up mortgage loans.

He said he had read of "a famous call girl" and her business manager living on Manhattan's East Side and a "notorious personage" living on the West Side — both white areas. Without naming them, he said:

"All men are evil. None good. No, not one."

The voter failed to cast a ballot for a single candidate.

Inside the oval space thus formed are the playhouse — with furniture and a kitchen just like that in the big house, the merry-go-round and a future project shaping up for Sarah Ann's next birthday, a powered ferris wheel.

Plans also include stations to be placed along the S A B & F named after some of the friends who are regular riders; names like "Bonnieville" and "Sandybough."

The S A B & F made its first run on July 23, which just happened to be Sarah Ann's most recent birthday. Judging from its initial reception and continued patronage, Barnett's investment in S A B & F stock will pay many a happy dividend.
